WASHINGTON (AP) — A belated Christmas present awaits millions of America's lowest paid workers who are entitled to a pay raise Jan 1 under the federal minimum wage law

In an announcement Thursday, the Labor Department said nearly four million workers — among them, farm workers, domestics, local government employes and retail clerks — will be eligible for immediate pay hikes when the minimum wage rises to $2 30 an hour New Year's Day

The law covers 57 4 million workers, but the department estimated that more than 53 million already earn more than the new minimum

Congress amended the Fair Labor Standards Act in 1974, providing for three minimums, each to be raised by annual steps to lessen the inflationary impact All will reach $2 30 an hour by Jan 1, 1978

A proposal is pending in Congress calling for a $3-an-hour minimum wage

The AFL-CIO at its national convention last fall called for a $3 minimum, saying the annual income provided by a $2 30 an hour wage already was about $500 a year below the government's official poverty level for individuals

A higher wage floor would bring the pay of millions of workers "into line with current economic realities" and generate additional purchasing power to keep the recovery going, the labor federation declared

Under the 1974 amendments, the minimum wage for more than 1 2 million non-farm employes rises from the current rate of $2 10 an hour to $2 30 on Jan 1

This includes workers covered under the act before 1967 who are employed by — Companies engaged in or producing goods for interstate commerce

— Retail or service enterprises with annual gross sales of at least $1 million and a $250,000 annual inflow of interstate goods

— Local transit firms grossing at least $2 million a year

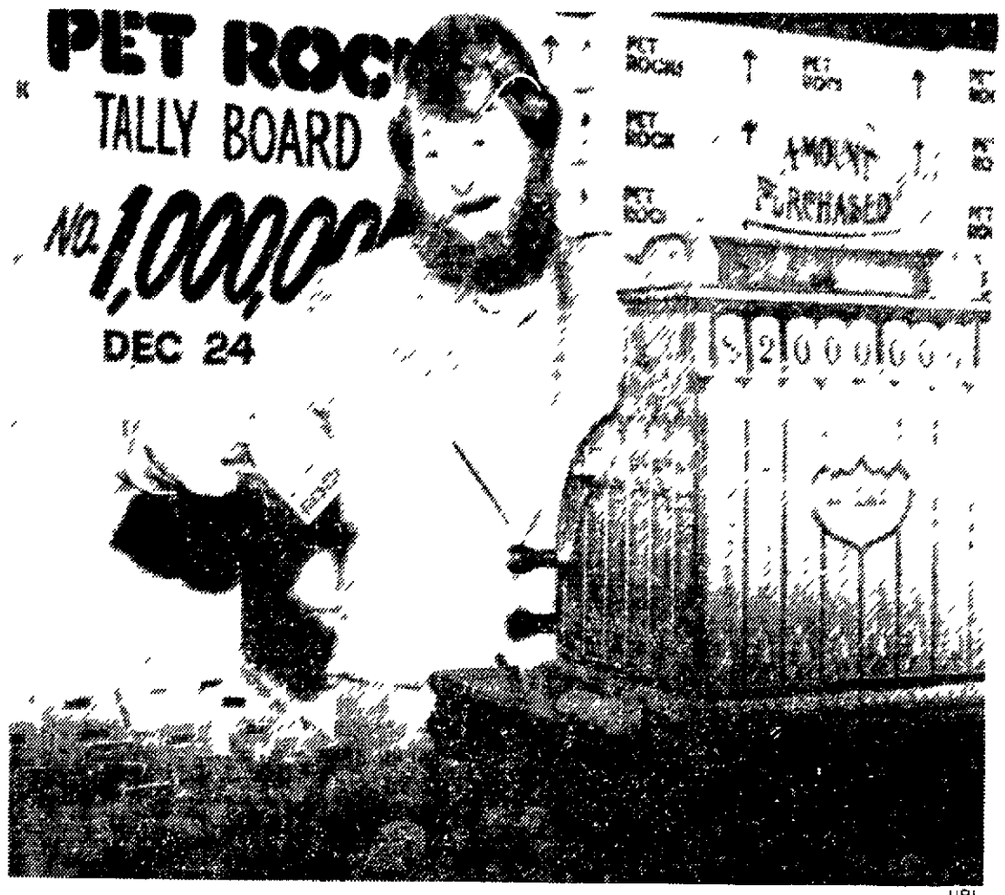

— Construction firms grossing at least $350,000

— Other establishments with individually covered employes in enterprises with gross sales of at least $350,000

Another 2 6 million non farm employes will be entitled to a $2 20 minimum wage on Jan 1 an increase of 20 cents an hour from the current $2 minimum

Included are workers covered by the law since 1967 who are employed by laundry and dry cleaning plants, small construction firms, hospitals, schools, federal, state and local governments, and hotels and restaurants Domestics are also part of this group

The law also covers 86 000 farmworkers who currently receive at least $1 80 an hour and who will be entitled to at least $2 an hour on Jan 1 with subsequent increases to $2 20 in January 1977 and to $2 30 on Jan 1, 1978

Diplomats' Deaths May Be Linked

ATHENS (AP) — Greek police said Thursday they were checking whether the assassination of an American diplomat identified as the head the CIA station in Greece might be related to the murders of Turkish ambassadors in Vienna and Paris earlier this year

Officials said no clues have been found in the slaying Tuesday night of the American, Richard S Welch The investigation continued Christmas Day

Andreas Papandreou, the vehemently anti-American leader of the political opposition, said the murder may have been committed ' to settle old scores "

Welch, 46 was shot down by maskee gunmen in front of his suburban home as he and his wife returned from the U S ambassador s Christmas party His wife and driver were unhurt

He was listed in the embassy directory as special assistant to Ambassador Jack B Kubisch but sources in Washington and a Greek newspaper had named him as the local Central Intelligence Agency chief

There are no new developments surrounding the murder,' a U S embassy spokesman said "We have nothing to go on yet We are depending on the investigative powers of the Greek police

Greek police said they believe the three assailants fired one shot each An autopsy showed two bullets hit Welch one in the abdomen and another passing through his lungs Police said a third bullet went through the edge of his coat and lodged in the door of his house

The Greek government described the unidentified assassins as ' cowards who could not belong to the Greek people whose honor and national interests they have deliberately tried to harm "

During his last hours at the ambassador s party, Welch mixed with the several hundred Greek and American guests He talked with one colleague about setting a date to complete a set of tennis

Welch also spoke briefly to an American news correspondent about the Greek-Turkish confrontation on Cyprus, where he was stationed several years ago He was reported later having said jokingly he was responsible for the crisis that erupted on the divided Mediterranean island in July 1974

After the party Welch and his wife drove straight home in his official embassy car Police said the driver, Evanghelos Chrisochaos, did not notice anthing unusual on the way

Welch, a 1951 Harvard University graduate who appeared to be well-liked by his colleagues, was described by an embassy co-worker as "a classical Greek scholar who spoke excellent Greek

Welch "knew Greece inside and out He loved Greece very much That s why it makes the tragedy even greater," the colleague said

The colleague said Welch, who sported a trim white moustache, was a damn good tennis player and smart at chess He was a man of exquisite taste and a neat dresser

He was an extremely decent human being, admired and respected by his fellow diplomats He had a good sense of humor and an easy manner possibly derived from his Irish background

During his service on Cyprus, Welch became one of the best known regulars at the round of diplomatic and other cocktail parties and official receptions and played tennis with many local people at Nicosia s select Field Club

Acquaintances recalled that he cultivated contacts at the Ledra Palace hotel and Cosmopolitan Club bars — the two most popular meeting places in Nicosia frequented by everyone from government ministers to senior civil servants businessmen and journalists

Several persons who met Welch during his Nicosia tour said he appered interested in everything, keen to learn all he could about Cyprus affairs but without leaving the impression he had any hidden motives for doing so

One Greek Cypriot who said he had come to know the American well said It never occurred to me Welch might have been a CIA operative when he served in Cyprus

But after hearing he was assassinated for being the top CIA agent in Greece, well I d say he played his role in Cyprus perfectly never giving anyone reason to suspect him He was a very likeable person

'Success' Not Enough For Release Program

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The operation was a success but the patient died

Seemingly contradictory, that statement nevertheless sums up state officials opinions about an educational release program for selected inmates at the Western Nebraska Technical College near Sidney

This week State Corrections Director Joe Vitek said the 1½-year-old program at Sidney which he termed ' a noble experiment, will end in January

Eight of the nine inmates in the program have been placed in similar programs elsewhere, Vitek said

Similar To Others

By conventional measurements the educational release program at Sidney, similar to ones in Lincoln, Omaha and Norfolk, was a success

But in corrections, the word success seldom means complete success Brian Hendrickson director of post care for the State Department of Correctional Services, said eight of the 60 inmates who took vocational classes through the program had to be removed

Vitek said that ratio is ' not unusual ' for such programs

The instances involved acts which were not criminal but did violate the program s strict rules for conduct

Basically the program ended because College President John Hawse pulled the welcome mat out from under it.

Problems Cited

Hawse cited poor supervision of prisoners, incidents including some criminal acts and faculty and student morale problems as reasons for removing the program from the Sidney campus

The incidents hurt enrollment and angered regular students and their parents, Hawse claimed

Subsequently the college's governing board asked corrections officials to remove the program from campus housing by June 1976

The state spent roughly $35 000 remodeling several old buildings for supervised housing for the inmates on campus

Despite the fact that they did not have to relocate until June and inmates could have continued to attend classes, Vitek decided to scrub the whole program

Economics A Factor

A prime reason given for the decision was economics Vitek said the college had limited the number of inmates who could participate to nine, corrections officials had hoped to enroll as many as 35-40 at one time

With six guards supervising nine inmates in housing capable of holding 40, Vitek said the program s continuation could not be justified economically

In addition, the 335 miles separating administrative offices in Lincoln with the program in Sidney made administration difficult, Vitek said

It just didn t work in th s instance Vitek said We saw that the situation just wasn t going to get any better

The college officials mentioned instances of breaking and entering bad checks and threats in explaining the disruptions caused by the inmates

Incidents Recalled

Cheyenne County Sheriff Orin Cox said he recalls five instances of escape and one alcohol offense involving participants in the program

"I can't remember any assaults or thefts ' involving inmates, he said He said he did not feel the inmates were a risk to the community

Hendrickson offered three instances where inmates caused problems

— One inmate a Sidney resident who was on furlough to see his mother, was arrested in a local bar He offered minor resistance to arrest The man s drinking did not violate a state law but did break one of the program s rules

— There was a scruffle, in the recreation hall volving inmates Hendrickson called this a minor situation

— Another was caused of entering a women's dorm and attempting to kiss a woman The State Parole Board, which supervises the work release inmates, said sufficient evidence was lacking to support the charge

Politics Involved?

There has been speculation among some familiar with the program that Hawse s opposition was either a political move involving the college s governing board or else an effort to gain use of the remodeled living quarters

Albert Crites of Chadron chairman f the governing board, said such accusations are unfounded

They (the inmates) caused too much friction," Crites said 'We d be happy to have them take courses, but we'd prefer they find meals and housing elsewhere "

Some have suggested Sidney s small size made the inmates more visible to the public

Vitek said the failure of the Sidney program in no way signals a moratorium on work or educational release programs

Hendrickson said corrections officials have come to realize that more community support is needed before such a program can be begun

He said cities the size of Sidney have not been ruled out for future programs however, he said there are no current plans for expanding the program to small cities

Cast Of Thousands To Star In 'Squirm'

Port Wentworth, Ga (UPI) — Millions of Massachusetts worms are going south for the winter

It's not an invasion, simply another one of those disaster movies in which animals, snakes, reptiles, birds — or in this case, worms — turn against humans And it seems there aren't enough Georgia worms to fill the cast of millions

Edgar Lansbury of New York, executive producer of the movie "Squirm," said it is about the terror a small community experiences when millions of worms — excited by a surge of electricity forced into the earth during a power failure — go berserk The worms multiply rapidly and become killers, he said

More than 100,000 worms are being flown in daily from an oceanographic institute in Wood's Hole, Mass Fresh worms are needed daily, Lansbury said, "because they wiggle more "

He said after the independent movie company is through with the worms, it sends them to the University of Georgia's Institute of Oceanography on nearby Skidaway Island for observation "We will have used millions when we're through," Lansbury said

The northeastern United States is the best place to get large quantities of worms this time of year, he said, since Maine is the major worm-producing state in the nation "These worms probably came from Maine, originally," he said

"Squirm," which features no well-known stars but a number of local residents, is expected to be ready for release in early spring The movie company used a local Boy Scout troop as "worm wranglers" to excite the worms and make them jump around in one scene

UNL Course To Discuss Medical Ethics

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The doctor discovers the fatal disease will kill his patient within two months

Should the doctor tell him, or lie — wondering whether the individual can deal with the news of certain death?

"There really isn't a simple answer to it," says Prof Robert Audi of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln The practice of medicine has always raised moral problems "

To help students pursuing medical and scientific careers ' form well reasoned moral positions which will guide them" in a terminal illness case, for instance, Dr Audi next semester will teach a new course examining moral principles of medical ethics

UNL Among First

"UNL is among the first universities to offer the course said Audi, chairman of the philosophy department Planned studies address the insufficiently emphasized preparation for dilemmas that healers and researchers must face

Although the practical problem of medical ethics has roots outside philosophy, Audi explained that practitioners and scientists must cope with "issues that need systematic moral reflection " And that's why the course has a logical place in his department

The "main topics" Audi plans to cover include experimentation on human subjects, biological engineering (such as altering genes or selective breeding), definitions of life and death, transplants, allocating limited medical resources and limits of behavior control (by drugs, conditioning or psychotherapy)

Physicians' Roles Eyed

The class will also study the question of commitment for sterilization of people considered "mentally incompetent " patients' rights to information and privacy, abortion and euthanasia, and the physician s role in society

Audi said moral philosophy is a basic part of the broad discipline It's a methodical study of the distinction between right and wrong conduct, and attempts to clarify and justify principles by which we should act "

I'm not going to try to indoctrinate" students to narrow ways of thinking Audi said Rather I want them to be able to analyze a problem in clear terms" and adopt moral positions based on their own choices

Audi said the course is "meant not only to help potential physicians and other medical practitioners but potential patients and relatives of patients, or indeed, anyone concerned with moral problems raised by medical practice

The more science progresses, the more likely the issues become but some have only come into the public eye ' recently particularly since the ' development of heroic life-sustaining equipment '

And while each group of scientists has its own code of ethics, Audi said continuously emerging technology raises "some new issues

There s a great deal to be brought to light ' Audi said, adding he ll bring in outside speakers including physicians, biological and social sciences experts

The students will examine some of the major positions in moral philosophy

For example, Audi said the 'utilitarian" position roughly 'holds that we should decide whether an act is right by determining how much of a contribution it makes to human happiness The idea is that it should make at least as much of a contribution as any alternative

According to the position derived from the work of German philospher Immanual Kant, We should decide whether an act is right by seeing whether it accords with sound moral principles — whether it contributes to human happiness or not

A third approach could be derived from the philosophical position of St Thomas Aquinas which essentially maintains that "only those acts are right which are in accordance with natural law. ' Audi said

Go Either Way

In a terminal illness case, the utilitarian would ask whether the patient's happiness would be best served by truth-telling or avoiding the question Audi said ' And he might come out either way '

The Kantian would demand that we obey the principle that one must tell the truth he said The Thomistic theory would probably come out on the side of the Kantian but based on scriptural teachings and some non-religious moral considerations

What kind of experiments is it morally legitimate to perform on human subjects?" Audi asks The researchers as philosopher must distinguish between children, normal adults and retarded adults and decide if their consent is fully informed, given freely and can be taken seriously "

The same question applies to military personnel or jailed persons Audi said Free consent may be affected by indirect duress from ' higher-ups

Both issues have become celebrated in the cases of Karen Ann Quinlan in New Jersey, vegetating in a coma, and the U S Army LSD experiments resulting in a serviceman s death

"This is not a technical course ' and students need no philosophy background, the chairman noted It's meant for students at the sophomore level and above, and "for out-of-school" persons

Individuals may audit the course for no credit, applying through the UNL registrar Hour-long course meetings will begin at 9 30 a m Tuesdays and Thursdays in the 501 Bldg , 501 N. 16th.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A belated Christmas present awaits millions of America's lowest paid workers who are entitled to a pay raise Jan. 1 under the federal minimum wage law.

In an announcement Thursday, the Labor Department said nearly four million workers — among them, farm workers, domestics, local government employes and retail clerks — will be eligible for immediate pay hikes when the minimum wage rises to $2.30 an hour New Year's Day.

The law covers 57.4 million workers, but the department estimated that more than 53 million already earn more than the new minimum.

Congress amended the Fair Labor Standards Act in 1974, providing for three minimums, each to be raised by annual steps to lessen the inflationary impact. All will reach $2.30 an hour by Jan. 1, 1978.

A proposal is pending in Congress calling for a $3-an-hour minimum wage.

The AFL-CIO at its national convention last fall called for a $3 minimum, saying the annual income provided by a $2.30 an hour wage already was about $500 a year below the government's official poverty level for individuals.

A higher wage floor would bring the pay of millions of workers "into line with current economic realities" and generate additional purchasing power to keep the recovery going, the labor federation declared.

Under the 1974 amendments, the minimum wage for more than 1.2 million non-farm employes rises from the current rate of $2.10 an hour to $2.30 on Jan. 1.

This includes workers covered under the act before 1967 who are employed by:

The "main topics" Audi plans to cover include experimentation on human subjects, biological engineering (such as altering genes or selective breeding), definitions of life and death, transplants, allocating limited medical resources and limits of behavior control (by drugs, conditioning or psychotherapy).

Physicians' Roles Eyed

The class will also study the question of commitment for sterilization of people considered "mentally incompetent," patients' rights to information and privacy, abortion and euthanasia, and the physician's role in society.

Audi said moral philosophy is a basic part of the broad discipline. It's a methodical study of the "distinction between right and wrong conduct, and attempts to clarify and justify principles by which we should act."

"I'm not going to try to indoctrinate" students to narrow ways of thinking Audi said. Rather, "I want them to be able to analyze a problem in clear terms" and adopt moral positions based on their own choices.

Audi said the course is "meant not only to help potential physicians and other medical practitioners, but potential patients and relatives of patients, or indeed, anyone concerned with moral problems raised by medical practice."

"The more science progresses, the more likely the issues become, but some have only come into the public eye" recently, particularly since the "development of heroic life-sustaining equipment."

And while each group of scientists has its own code of ethics, Audi said continuously emerging technology raises "some new issues."

"There's a great deal to be brought to light," Audi said, adding he'll bring in outside speakers, including physicians, biological and social sciences experts.

The students will examine some of the major positions in moral philosophy.

For example, Audi said, the "utilitarian" position roughly "holds that we should decide whether an act is right by determining how much of a contribution it makes to human happiness. The idea is that it should make at least as much ot a contribution as any alternative."

According to the position derived from the work of German philospher Immanual Kant, "We should decide whether an act is right by seeing whether it accords with sound moral principles — whether it contributes to human happiness or not."

A third approach could be derived from the philosophical position of St. Thomas Aquinas, which essentially maintains that "only those acts are right which are in accordance with natural law," Audi said.

Go Either Way

In a terminal illness case, the utilitarian would ask whether the patient's happiness would be best served by truth-telling or avoiding the question, Audi said. "And he might come out either way."

"The Kantian would demand that we obey the principle that one must tell the truth," he said. The Thomistic theory would probably come out on the side of the Kantian," but based on scriptural teachings and some non-religious moral considerations.

"What kind of experiments is it morally legitimate to perform on human subjects?" Audi asks. The researchers as philosopher must distinguish between children, normal adults, and retarded adults, and decide if their consent is fully informed, given freely and can "be taken seriously."

The same question applies to military personnel or jailed persons, Audi said. Free consent may be affected by indirect duress from "higher-ups."

Both issues have become celebrated in the cases of Karen Ann Quinlan in New Jersey, vegetating in a coma, and the U.S. Army LSD experiments resulting in a serviceman's death.

"This is not a technical course" and students need no philosophy background, the chairman noted. It's meant for students at the sophomore level and above, and "for out-of-school" persons.

Individuals may audit the course for no credit, applying through the UNL registrar. Hour-long course meetings will begin at 9:30 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays in the 501 Bldg., 501 N. 16th.

German Ransomed From Guerrillas

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Guerrillas have freed the German production manager of the Mercedes Benz subsidiary here, the company confirmed Thursday. He was the last foreigner known to be in Argentine guerrilla hands.

Franz Metz, 48, was released on Christmas Eve after an accord between Mercedes Benz and the left-wing "Montoneros" who kidnaped him Oct. 24 during a labor dispute.

He returned to Germany, a spokesman for Daimler-Benz AG, the parent company, said in Stuttgart.

The spokesman said an undisclosed ransom was paid in addition to labor concessions. Also, Mercedes Benz paid for advertisements in world newspapers, including the Washington Post, spelling out the Montoneros' position and saying Argentina was heading "dizzily toward a civil war."

Although few security authorities were predicting an end to high-ransom kidnapings of foreigners here, it appears as though the Montoneros and the Marxist People's Revolutionary Army have turned their attention to direct war against the government.

Late Tuesday a guerrilla force estimated at 500 tried to storm a vital army weapons depot as well as police stations, a small army regiment and traffic bridges. The army reported killing about 100 guerrillas in nine hours of battle. At least nine security men and 10 innocent civilians, including at least one child, were also killed.

The heavy guerrilla losses were attributed to an underestimation of the army's ability to muster a heavy defense, which included jet aircraft, helicopters and tanks.

Kidnaps have provided many millions of dollars in ransoms over the past few years, but they commit large numbers of guerrillas and require long and careful security arrangements to guard their "people's prisons."

The left-wing extremists' strategy is widely believed to be to force the military to take power, which could give the guerrillas more popular support. In political and military circles, the feeling is common that a military takeover is a distinct possibility if the government does not impose firm leadership.

Army chief Jorge Videla, in a Christmas message to his troops and the nation, declared flatly: "The army . . . demands with anguish but with firmness an immediate taking of consciousness to define positions. Corruption and immorality must be adequately punished. Political, economic and ideological speculation must stop."

He and other armed forces commanders were believed prepared to pressure congress to replace Mrs. Peron with a legal successor in order to confront the nation's economic and social problems without contravening the constitution.

Mrs. Peron, meanwhile, promised to remain in office and do her best to right wrongs. In a Christmas message, she called the fighting across Argentina "absurd" and pleaded for its end.

More than 1,700 persons have been killed in political violence since she took office in July 1974 on the death of her husband, Juan D. Peron.

'Cannon,' 'Jones' Sets Gutted In Predawn Fire

Hollywood (UPI) — Two sound stages used in popular television series were gutted Christmas morning in a predawn fire at Samuel Goldwyn Studios. Fire officials set the damage at $3 million, but there were no injuries.

"It was really a bad fire, both sound stages were just completely destroyed," James Velthuis, the security guard who reported the first alarm, said several hours later.

"The whole 'Cannon' set was in there. His apartment, his office, it's all been destroyed. 'Barnaby Jones' was shot there too, and that set's gone."

One wall in the 100-by-300-foot building, last used Christmas Eve afternoon for an employes party, caved in and the roof collapsed, filling the space up to 15-feet deep with debris.

Firemen knocked down the other three wood and stucco walls after they put out the flames to prevent them from collapsing.

The first fire units arrived at the scene just two minutes after the alarm, but the old structure was already lost.

"The wood's so dry, those buildings are extremely flammable," fire spokesman Ray Bartlett said.

"They really go when they get caught; they're tinderboxes. It was almost like lighting a Christmas tree."

A similar fire in a nearby sound stage was set off in May 1974, when a hot stage light tipped over on a stage prop during the filming of a children's television program. That fire caused $1 million damage.

The quick response by city and county fire departments Thursday did prevent the flames from spreading to six other sound stages, mobile equipment, offices and a backlot street scene on the studio grounds near the center of Hollywood.

The cause of the blaze was under investigation, but Velthuis, the only guard on duty when the first alarm sounded, said he doubted the fire was set on purpose.

"There's no way anbody could have sneaked in," he explained. "If anyone had gotten in, I would have known it. If you just touch the fence, the alarm goes off."

Velthuis, a former Laurel, Md., policeman who was on duty in a shopping center the day George Wallace was shot, said he was alerted to the fire by an audible alarm at 3 a.m.

POPE PAUL VI . . . delivers message.

Young 'Consoling' Pope By Returning To Religion

©The New York Times

Rome — Pope Paul VI delivered his traditional Christmas Day message to 100,000 people in the sunshine of St. Peter's Square Thursday, telling them that "the emptiness" of modern society had encouraged youth to return to religion and reject materialism.

It was "consoling" to watch trends in the new generation, the Pope said, because young people are decrying the activities of earlier generations which inoculated them with concepts of "war for power" and "materialism as the only justice." But, he said, "an intimate and powerful longing" has brought modern youth back to religion and to God's word.

'Proclamation Of Good News'

"Someone knows how to accept the proclamation of the good news, as a message of revelation and renewal," he said as he stood on his balcony overlooking the square. "Who are these unforeseen and yet predestined hearers of the secret and determining word?

"They are you, young people, in whose generation is unmasked, almost with subversive impetus, the exposure of the specious, at least insufficient; wisdom of the generations that preceded you."

The noon ceremony was the 78-year-old pontiff's second appearance in 12 hours in St. Peter's Square. At midnight he formally ended the Holy Year of 1975 by sealing the holy door of St. Peter's Basilica and then celebrating an outdoor Christmas Eve Mass.

The door, symbolizing "easier access to divine mercy," will remain shut until the next Holy Year, the year 2000. The celebration — now held every 25 years — brought more than eight million pilgrims to Rome in what the Vatican regarded as a dramatic demonstration of Roman Catholic piety around the world.

Many of the visitors seen this year around the square and in the major basilicas were young, and many wore blue jeans and carried back packs. Several Vatican officials often mentioned the apparent increase in the young in the churches of Rome during the Holy Year.

'Overwhelming Uproar'

In his message the Pope said the "overwhelming uproar" of modern life and the "powerful amplified words" of the mass media helped make it difficult to hear God's word. He added the word was also often submerged under the "formidable narcotic influence of the pressure of public opinion and of political propaganda."

But he said: "Someone is listening," and that someone was the youth of the world.

The Pope wished the world's Catholics a happy Christmas in 11 languages, including Chinese, Russian, and Swahili.

Security In Bethlehem Relaxed

Bethlehem, Israeli-occupied Jordan (UPI) — Israeli authorities relaxed strict security in Bethlehem Thursday after thousands of pilgrims celebrated Christmas in the traditional birthplace of Jesus Christ.

Authorities lifted the requirement for special passes to get into the town, six miles south of Jerusalem, and took down barricades that kept out motor traffic Christmas Eve.

A record crowd of about 15,000 persons, the largest since Israel captured Bethlehem in the 1967 Middle East War, crowded into the town Christmas Eve under the watchful eyes of Israeli troops.

Choirs from the United States, Canada, The Philippines, Belgium and Switzerland sang Christmas songs. A local high school group performed "Jingle Bells" in Arabic.

Some 5,000 visitors, ranging from sober pilgrims to long-haired Jesus freaks, filled Manger Square to witness the midnight mass by Msgr. Giacomo Beltritti, the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem.

Hundreds of soldiers and police guarded streets and rooftops as the pilgrims watched the televised mass on a large, outdoor screen set up next to the Bethlehem Police Station.

Hundreds of Arab notables, Israeli military officers, priests, nuns and pilgrims crowded into St. Catherine's Church to see the mass in person.

Inside, bearded, black-robed Greek Orthodox priests perfumed the low-ceilinged, candle-lit chamber with incense. Roman Catholic priests read low masses until morning.

Hundreds of visitors milled about Manger Square Thursday, visiting the Basilica of the Nativity and the cave underneath, where a silver star marks the spot where tradition says Christ was born.

The tourists bought wooden camels, plastic crosses, mother-of-pearl nativity scenes and roasted chestnuts from Arab vendors in the sunlit square.

Many of the visitors took off their coats in the warm afternoon. A few soldiers lounged outside the Basilica.

Sunday Edition Of Free Press Will Cost 50¢

Detroit (AP) — The Detroit Free Press is raising the price of its Sunday edition to 50 cents from 35 cents, the paper said.

The newstand price of the daily edition will remain 15 cents, the paper said.

The Free Press said the price hike was needed because of steadily rising newsprint and operating costs.

Gas Shortage Not As Serious As Thought

Washington (UPI) — Natural gas shortages this winter will not be as serious as previously forecast because of unseasonably warm weather in November and early December, the Federal Eenergy Administration reported Thursday.

But FEA Administrator Frank Zarb said the possibility of industrial shutdowns still exists in some areas — notably North Carolina, Ohio and Pennsylvania — because increased supplies may not meet needs.

And he said an onset of severely cold weather could still put a serious strain on supplies, particularly propane for North Carolina, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee and West Virginia.

On the other hand, Zarb said in the FEA statement, "The gas supply and alternative fuel outlook have significantly improved" in Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Virginia.

Zarb said no curtailment of gas supplies is projected for residential or small commercial customers, and any cutbacks "will fall upon industries and electric utilities which can readily switch to an alternative fuel."

An FEA survey "shows natural gas shortages will be greater this winter than last," Zarb said, "although not as great as previously forecast."

He said the shortage has been alleviated by reduced use of gas for heating in November and the first part of December, and by Federal Power Commission action giving high-priority users better access to supplies in an emergency.

"So far we can thank the weatherman for the improved outlook this winter," Zarb said, "but such good luck is not going to solve the nation's longer-range natural gas problem."

Domestic gas production is declining at a rate of 6% a year, he said, and current proven reserves are at the lowest level since 1952.

"Even a perennial summer won't save us from future shortages if we don't reverse these dangerous trends," Zarb said, and the answer is "to increase supply by encouraging production through higher natural gas prices."

Pending in Congress is Senate-passed legislation calling for a phase-out of federal price controls on natural gas sold in interstate commerce.

The Library of Congress — in a report released Tuesday by Rep. Andrew Maguire, D-N.J., who opposes the bill — estimated that decontrol could cost gas consumers an extra $20.2 billion to $22.3 billion a year.

Aspin Claims Gas Figures Are Lowered

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., charged Thursday that the U.S. Geological Survey deliberately lowers its estimates of the production capacity of natural gas reserves in the Gulf of Mexico to make producers look more efficient.

The Wisconsin Democrat said in a statement that the USGS merely "rubber stamps" figures provided by producers in order to make them "look good" and to help justify their requests for deregulation of gas prices.

By "juggling its books" to lower the production capacity estimate, Aspin said, the USGS makes gas reserves look lower and industry to be producing at nearly full capacity.

"If they can show that gas reserves are low and that exploration for new reserves is needed, then they can bring out their argument for deregulation — they must receive higher prices if they're going to pay for exploration," Aspin said.

Paper: IRS Auditing CREEP

Washington (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service has been auditing Richard M. Nixon's former Committee to Re-Elect the President, the Washington Post reported Thursday.

A spokesman said the IRS could not confirm it. And a spokesman for the Federal Election Commission confirmed only that "the 1972 Campaign Liquidation Trust," successor organization to the Nixon committee, had filed a report with the FEC.

According to the Post, a completely successful IRS action would mean the re-election committee's tax liability would be $1.5 million, the trust's current assets.

The committee raised $60.2 million and spent $56.1 million in the 1972 campaign, the Post said.

Battle Stifles Christmas Joy In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The traditional joy of Christmas in half-Christian Lebanon was stifled by gun battles, bomb blasts, kidnaping and sniping in the country's bitter civil war.

Christmas casualties, as Moslem and Christian private armies fought for the ninth month, were 26 dead and 61 injured.

Kurdish looters raided a Beirut Anglican church, stole its organ, chandeliers and rugs and wrecked pews, a witness reported. They also looted the pastor's house.

"Please help us. Do something for us," the pastor's maid, Samira Hayek, yelled in a telephone conversation with The Associated Press.

"Five young men have been visiting the church and looting. They might kill us. Please help us," she said.

A group of Palestinian guerrilla security men, alerted by The AP, arrived at the church and the looters fled, said Hayek.

The church was empty when looted, she added, 'because the community people were probably too scared to attend Christmas services."

Three explosions wrecked a clinic, a shop and a house in downtown Beirut.

Unidentified gunmen kidnaped five persons at gunpoint from a hotel on Hamra Street, Beirut's main shopping center. Other gunmen set up roadblocks in neighboring suburbs and abducted six pedestrians.

Three policemen were shot in the heads and killed by sniper fire near Martyrs Square, police said.

. "Beirut streers are empty, so are churches. Roads are unsafe and things are tense in the city and the north," a police spokesman said.

In the Christian province of Zahlah, 35 miles east of Beirut, mortar and rocket fighting broke out in seven suburbs, police reported. Internal security chief Hisham Shaar flew to the province in an army helicopter in a bid to disengage Christian and Moslem gunmen.

A series of explosions rocked the Mediterrnean city of Sidon, 40 miles south of Beirut, setting four buildings ablaze, police said.

One of the explosions blew up an ammunition dump belonging to the Popular Democratic Front, a Marxist Palestinian guerrilla group, near the Sidon citadel.

Premier Rashid Karami's cabinet reportedly reached agreement on terms for a solution intended to end the eight-month civil war. The agreement meets demands of both Christian and Moslem factions in Lebanon, said the daily newspaper An Nahar, whose editor, Ghassan Tueni, doubles as a cabinet minister.

The paper said the agreement will abolish the 6-5 Christian majority in parliament and divide the 99 seats evenly. The country's Christian president will be stripped of his power to appoint the Moslem premier, which is to be given to parliament, said An Nahar. The premier will be given powers at the expense of the president.

Farmers Knock Ford

Chicago — There are many signs that resentment against President Ford is rising among Republican farmers in the Midwest. As prices for wheat and corn continued to slip, the President was being criticized this week for the three-month embargo he imposed late last summer on grain sales to the Soviet Union. Not since 1948, when President Truman swept the Midwest by accusing a Republican Congress of "sticking a pitchfork in the farmer's back" has an issue angered farmers any more than the embargo.

Smokers Meet Resistance

New York — More restrictions on smokers that seek to give the public protection from tobacco smoke as well as fire hazards have gone into effect in about 30 states since 1973. Smokers who ask "Do you mind if I smoke?" are finding that the answer is often "Yes." Jacob Meyer, a New Orleans lawyer, who filed a class action suit to prevent smoking in the New Orleans Superdome is basing his case on the presumption that under the Bill of Rights people have a right to clean air in all state buildings.

Assassin Squad Reported

Washington — E. Howard Hunt Jr., the former Central Intelligence Agency officer who was convicted of helping carry out the 1972 Watergate break-in, says he was told in the mid-1950's that the CIA had a small unit set up to arrange for the assassination of suspected double agents and similar low-ranking officials.

November Sales Rose

New York — Early Christmas shopping and cooler weather, which helped lift sales of heavier outerwear, combined to push chain store sales in November to the best gain they have shown this year. The leading chain store organizations reported that November sales were ahead of the corresponding month last year by 10.5%. For the year to date, the 35 reporting chains showed an increase of 8.2%.

Astronomers Send Petition

New York — In a petition to President Nikolai V. Podgorny of the Soviet Union, 191 American astronomers have urged that a Soviet colleague, Kronid Lyubarsky, be freed for the last year of his five-year term in the prison at Vladimir, near Moscow.

Bomber Gets Death Penalty

Belgrade, Yugoslavia — A Croatian separatist accused of having planted three bombs in 1968 was sentenced to death in a Belgrade court. Public announcements of death sentences in Yugoslavia are extremely rare. Thursday's sentencing, coming on Christmas Day, appears intended as an indirect government warning against certain religious activists. The death sentence was passed by a District Court on Miljenko Hrkac, 28, who was described as a Ustashi terrorist.

Quake Limit Disputed

New York — Two scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have disputed the widely held belief that there is a clearcut limit on the magnitude of great earthquakes. They propose that some may be four times as strong as any recorded in recent years.

First Family Gathers Around Tree In Vail

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — With falling snow making a picture postcard setting,the nation's first family gathered around their Christmas tree and exchanged gifts on Christmas Day.

After a breakfast of pancakes, sausage and scrambled eggs, the President and Mrs. Ford and their children opened packages under the ceiling-high Christmas tree at their rented vacation home here.

The President received four turtleneck seaters — blue, brown, white and maroon — ideal for Vail's wintry climate. He also received black leather after-hour shoes from his wife and a blue ultra-suede shirt jacket.

Ford gave Mrs. Ford a ski outfit. Although she is not a skier, the First Lady likes to wear stylish outfits when she goes shopping in the village.

She also received books, a Chinese print and field-trial lessons for her dog Misty.

The four children, Mike, 25, Jack, 23, Steve, 19, and Susan, 18, received money, sweaters, ski gear, cold-climate clothing and other gifts. Sharing in the celebration was Mike's wife, Gayle.

The President, his children and other skiers here received a bonus Christmas gift when more than four inches of new snow fell.

It was the first snow here in nearly two weeks, and skiing conditions had ranged from only fair to poor.

But conditions were good and flakes still were falling Thursday as Ford, accompanied by a few friends and Secret Service agents, rode a gondola ski-lift to the top of 11,000-foot Vail Mountain.

Groups of reporters and photographers were stationed at various locations on the slope to observe the President dsplay his skiing capability which is described as very good.

"Great, great," Ford said of the fresh snow as he set off.

It is the only time during the eight-day vacation that newsmen will be permitted to observe the President on the high slopes. He has requested privacy for the rest of the visit, which is to end next Tuesday with his return to Washington.

Following an afternoon of skiing, the Ford family was to enjoy a traditional turkey dinner. The menu included turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, green peas with pearl onions, cranberry sauce, salad, rolls and pecan pie and cookies.

The first family attended Christmas Eve services at the Vail Interfaith Chapel and listened while the Rev. Donald Simonton told worshippers: "Skiing and Christmas have something in common — the need to look up if you want to appreciate them fully."

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen reported that on Wednesday the Fords had telephoned Christmas greetings to Vice President and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller, the Rev. and Mrs. Billy Graham and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

An attempt to place a call to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was unsuccessful.

The President skied for about three hours and afterwards confessed he was tired.

"It was hard work today," he said, and acknowledged that he fell once — "through carelessness."

Ford insisted, however, that his skiing technique was "the best it's been . . better now than when I was a good many years younger."

Newsmen observing the President rated him as an advanced intermediate skier.

He stopped before one group and joked about the great number of turtleneck sweaters he had received when asked what he had received for Christmas.

"I got about 12 turtlenecks," he laughed. "I ordered one and everyone in the family bought me one."

State Prison Insurrection Put Down By N.H. Police

Concord, N.H. (UPI)—A Christmas Day insurrection involving several hundred inmates at the New Hampshire State Prison Thursday was broken up by State Police after about four hours.

There were no immediate reports of arrests or injuries, but "considerable damage" in the prison was reported by the State Police A guard taken hostage was released unharmed, police said.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson went to the prison after a sitdown was reported and left after about two hours. The direct cause of the disturbance was not immediately known, but sources at the prison said inmates were protesting poor food and the placement of some inmates in solitary confinement.

State Police Sgt. Robert Dearborn said about 40 troopers were sent into the prison shortly after noon when a group of inmates took the guard hostage. Forty more troopers were placed in alert but were not needed.

Kidnapers Abduct 58th In Italy

ROME (AP) — Kidnapers pulled off Italy's 58th abduction before dawn on Christmas Day hours after police rescued a Roman youth who said rightwing extremists had snatched him for ransom 10 days ago.

The latest victim, Filiberto Fraccari, 40, stepped out of his car in front of his home in Verona when three masked men, wielding submachine guns, stepped out of darkness and carried him off in a car.

Police said a woman witnessed the kidnaping of Fraccari, owner of a jewelry business, from a window She reported a gunman told Fraccari: "Be quiet and no fuss" as they pulled away. Fraccari, married without children, was returning home after having toasted Christmas with friends in a downtown cafe.

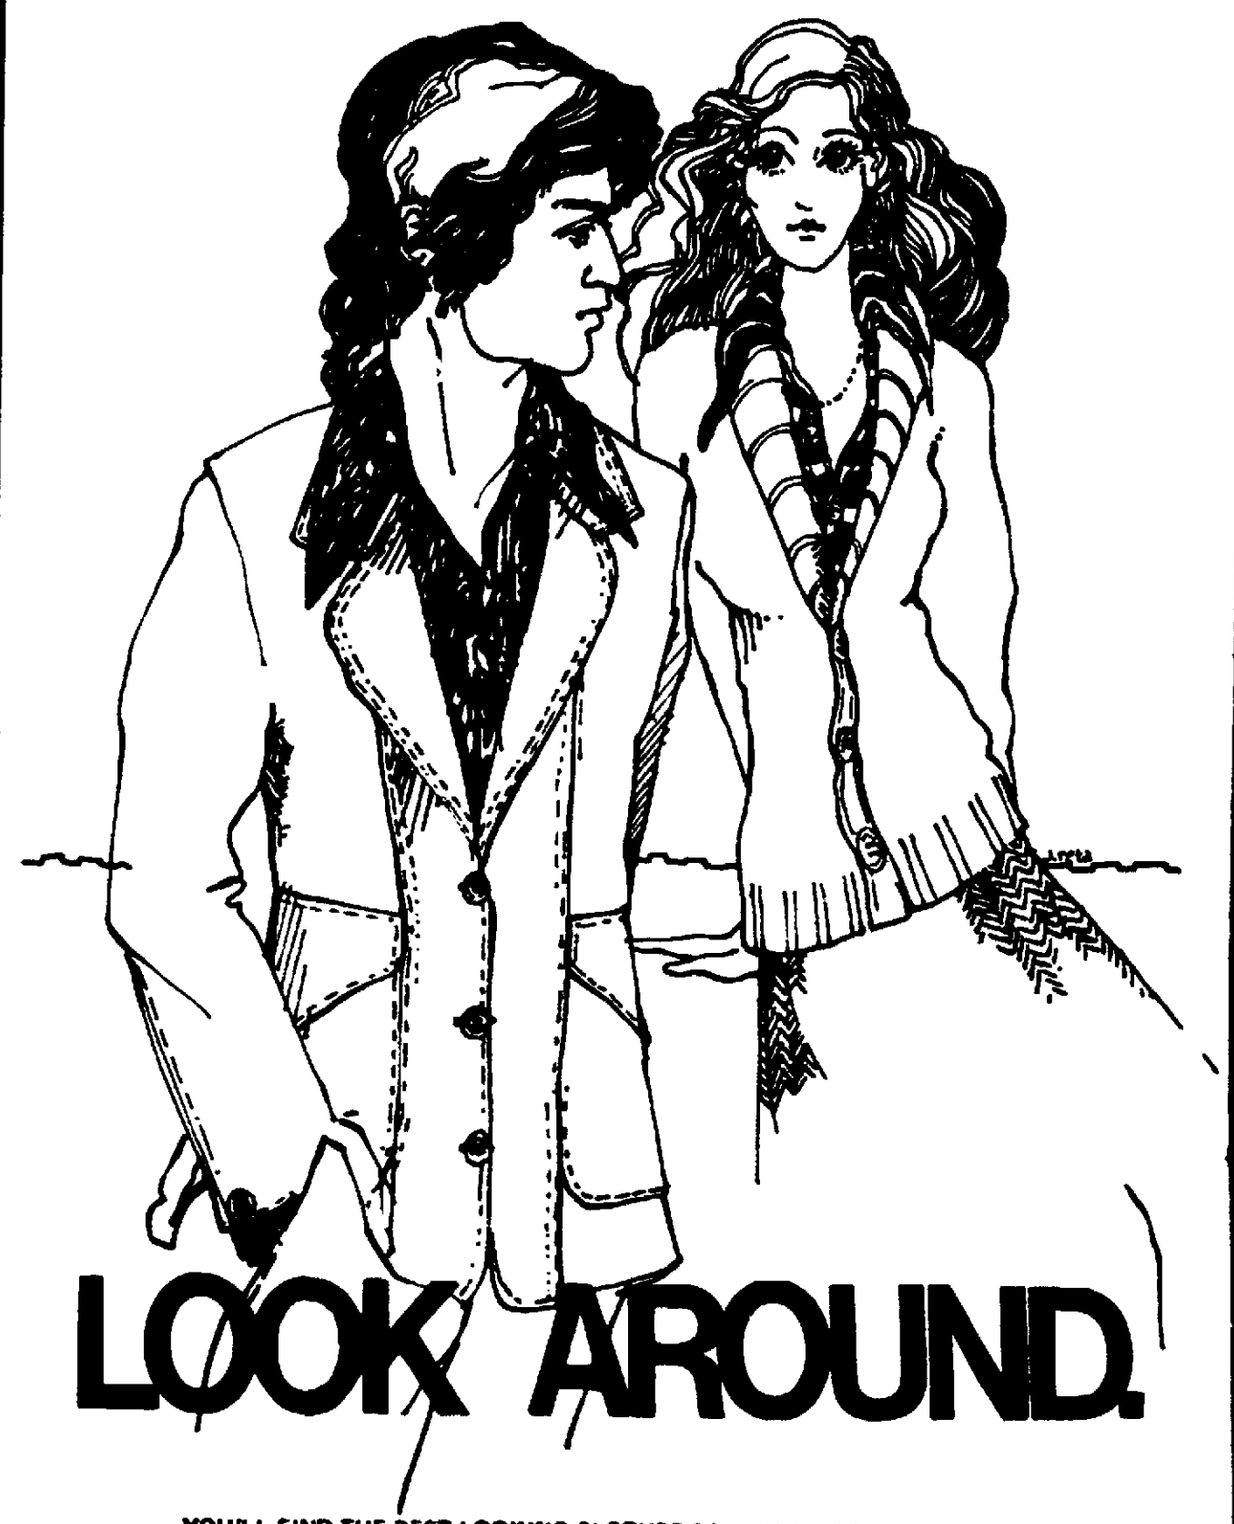

At Tor San Lorenzo, a seaside resort near Rome, police raided an uninhabited villa and freed Ezio Matacchioni, 23, who had been missing since Dec. 15.

Matacchioni was gagged and had his hands and feet tied. Police said they were looking for four youths ranging between 17 and 22, including the son of the villa's owners and one who was wanted in connection with the rape and killing of a girl three months ago. Two of the four are known as rightwing extremists. Police found posters of an extremist group, National Vanguard, in the villa.

Police quoted Matacchioni as saying he had made friends with two of the youths at the beach last summer — and that they made him captive when they asked him into their car for a drive. Police said Matacchioni, the son of an engineer, admitted to having boasted of large family riches.

A Splendid City. Why?

As part of recent personal attacks on Planning Director Douglas Brogden for allegedly being most responsible for delays in completing an update of the Lincoln-Lancaster Comprehensive Plan, the City Council was urged by one of its members to "hire somebody to ramrod it" through. The whole city, it was said, "is being held up."

Growth and development in Lincoln being "held up" by officials and citizens who are putting together a revised plan and posing alternatives for Lincoln's future? Perhaps the city is being "held up," not in the sense of development being obstructed, but in the sense that the planning process moves at a measured pace. And that is probably one of the main reasons Lincoln is such a quality city and object of resident pride.

In Lincoln we tend to be concerned about the compatibility of land uses and an even pattern of growth and development. We encourage development, but not at the expense of existing businesses and that is one reason Lincoln has a central business district which is one of the healthiest in the nation for a city of this size. We are concerned with preserving the esthetic attributes of the city and hope we can balance that with the requirements of progress. We are coming to the point where we have more respect, in our decision-making processes, for human beings than for machines. We have not paved everything in sight with concrete. We have some examples of spot zoning and haphazard development but the examples are not preponderant. There are some blighted areas in Lincoln, but that problem is being attacked in a comprehensive manner. Although the city generally cooperates with developers, our officials are not inclined to buy every single proposed development scheme that is dangled before them and they are rightfully skeptical of those based on unsound planning principles.

In short, we have a fine city, one we are proud of, because we have taken the time and generally have followed the principles to make it so.

Some of the people who complain about time being wasted and who accuse Brogden of lack of leadership in getting the plan completed, who think a comprehensive plan can be hastily thrown together with a minimum of difficulty, are people who also will agree that Lincoln is a splendid city. They should ask themselves why — and they might come to the conclusion, however grudgingly, that the Brogdens of this city have had something to do with it.

The "whole city being held up" because of dealys in updating the plan? Maybe so. And maybe that's good.

Truth A Powerful Irritant

Our opinion of American Ambassador to the United Nations Daniel P. Moynihan was raised another notch some days ago by an attack on his recent performances in the world forum. You can tell a lot about a person from the motives and character of his enemies and critics.

To be sure, we were somewhat perplexed at the attack on Moynihan by the British ambassador a few weeks past. But criticism from the Kremlin is not so surprising and it is that to which we refer.

A top Pravda commentator through whom the Soviet leadership speaks has blasted Moynihan, claiming that the U.S. ambassador "only deteriorates international relations by his insulting and defiant reproofs against independent states . . ." Further, Moynihan has "assumed the role of supreme judge" and has "thundered at the overwhelming majority of the U.N. member states," said Pravda's Yuri Zhukov.

Moynihan has been in big trouble at the Kremlin for his remarks accusing the Soviet Union of attempting to recolonize Africa.

That is why he has been excoriated by the Soviet press: he has been telling the truth, loudly and persistently, and the truth can be a powerful irritant.

There is no mistaking the ominous shift in Soviet strategy. More than at any time since Khrushchev stopped pounding his shoe in rhythm with denunciations of the west in favor of peaceful coexistence and economic competition, the Soviet Union is on the march, seeking to extend its sphere of influence across the far reaches of the globe and seeking to dominate even more people than it now enslaves.

This nation, not wanting to offend world opinion in the wake of the Vietnam involvement and desiring to compromise in the interests of peace, finds itself underwriting the U.S.S.R.'s failing agricultural production efforts, making concessions on armaments and turning the other cheek as Soviets or their agents push and shove their way around the world.

Moynihan is serving the purpose of putting the world on public notice that in this detente arrangement, the tensions are being relaxed at only one end. His may be a lonely voice in the present administration, but we are in his debt nevertheless.

KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

Jerry Brown, Doubtful Candidate

WASHINGTON — Political punditry has a new fad. More and more people are saying that California Governor Jerry Brown's politics of asceticism, budget-cutting and frugality could signal a philosophic revitalization of the Democratic Party or even make the popular 37-year-old Californian a plausible 1976 presidential candidate.

I doubt it — like I doubt that Maharaji Ji will be the next pope. Brown's unusual background and outlook has not caused much adverse comment in the unique cultural and political climate of California. But the odds are that his extraordinary blend of counter-culturish thinking, Jesuit asceticism and Asian mysticism cannot survive full-blown national amplification or indeed reach beyond Pacific shoes to mount a successful political appeal in the Dixie Bible Belt and Northeastern ethnic mill towns.

To elaborate: A recent New York Times magazine story noted that Brown claims three men — Ho Chi Minh, Mao Tse-tung and Mahatma Gandhi — as heroes because of their asceticism. A Buddhist choir sang at Brown's January 1975 inaugural, he has taken visiting journalists to eat in an Asian vegetarian restaurant, and so forth.

This may seem like trifling stuff, but note what his campaign manager, Thomas Quinn, has admitted about Brown's pre-November 1974 ideological reticence: "We wanted to avoid any discussion of substance. We found obscure, boring issues and talked about them. Jerry's real ideas were dangerous, but we were generally successful in avoiding them."

Additional suggestive evidence can be found in Brown's admitted favorite book, "Small Is Beautiful," by E. F. Schumacher, a British utopian Socialist and economic planner. Schumacher advocates economic asceticism, saying — for example — that it is "highly uneconomic to go in for complicated tailoring, like the modern West, when a much more beautiful effect can be achieved by the skillful draping of uncut material." As in Buddhist robes, perhaps?

"We need not be surprised," also writes Schumacher, "that the pressure and strain of living is very much less in, say, Burma than it is in the United States, in spite of the fact that the amount of labor-saving machinery used in the former country is only a minute fraction of the amount used in the latter." Unfortunately, socialist Burma is so low-key that British-built factories and railroads are rusting, disease is widespread, and the average life expectancy is only 44 years.

If it's unfair to link the governor too closely with the Schumacher book, his Jesuit training offers a similar focus. A November article in San Francisco magazine describes Brown as having told a group of Loyola Marymount University (Los Angeles) students and faculty "If you want to know what my administration will be like, look at St. Ignatius' 11th and 12th Rules."

St. Ignatius Loyola was the 16th Century founder of the Jesuits, and those two rules state that each Jesuit must abhor completely all that which the world loves, and must make his main object self-denial and continuous mortification. More asceticism. More "small is beautiful."

☆ ☆ ☆

My point is not to deny Jerry Brown's popularity in California. His frugality and skepticism toward government has struck a positive chord. But California may not be a good national testing ground or launching pad. While the state anticipates trends, it also distorts and exaggerates them. The great tides of American politics have always washed up in odd waves on California's shores.

Back in the 1930's, when the popular tide was towards government action and government panaceas, California translated the New Deal into the Weird Deal — Technocracy, the Utopian Society, the EPIC (End Poverty in California) crusade, Plentocracy, the Townsend Plan, "Ham and Eggs" and Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday. Opton Sinclair almost got elected governor with EPIC in 1934, and Townsendite Sheridan Downey made it to the Senate.

Today, of course, the tide is running the other way — away from faith in government spending, programs and remedies. Think frugal — think small. And in Jerry Brown, California has once again opted for an unusual version both of zealotry, strange temples and exotic metaphysics. This is not the stuff of which American presidents are made.

Mr. Ford Still Has Reserve Time

WASHINGTON — There were, among Republicans, many whose hearts belonged to Ronald Reagan but who supported Gerald Ford because he is the incumbent president. These Republicans are forever lost to President Ford as a result of Howard ("Bo") Callaway's foolish, unnecessary and cheaply nasty attack on former California Gov. Reagan.

The loss comes at a time when the polls have shown that Mr. Ford's popularity is declining and Reagan's rising. It is not merely that, for the first time, Ronald Reagan is leading the President — but that Mr. Ford is slipping badly in the public's assessment of the way he is doing his job.

The President's major political asset was his sense of openness and decency. This image was tarnished by the unseemly way he fired Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, It has been further muddied by his defense of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's devious diplomacy — which renders unto the Caesars in the Kremlin what is not his to give — and by his surrender to forces where ideology he would have sternly repudiated when he was in the House of Representatives.

Those Republicans who have held the party together through its lean years, moreover, will derive little solace from the words of Nelson Rockefeller, who wrote off the GOP leaders in the South with an obscenity. No Republican presidential candidate can win without the South, and unless Mr. Ford repudiates his own vice president — as he must repudiate Callaway — he can kiss the nomination goodby.

The test of Ford strength will come in New Hampshire and Florida, where Reagan has formidable support. Those primaries may be to Gerald Ford what the 1968 primary in New Hampshire was to Lyndon Johnson — and there is a strong feeling in reasonably informed quarters that President Ford may take the same course as President Johnson did, withdrawing from the race if he loses.

☆ ☆ ☆

Political analysts here note that whereas the tone of attack on Lyndon Johnson was one of vicious abuse, Mr. Ford is being assailed with ridicule — which is far more devastating. On Capitol Hill, old "Polish" jokes are being revamped to fit the President — and it would be cruel to quote them. These observers add that, unlike President Truman when his political fortunes were at the lowest, Mr. Ford is still trying to be all things to all men.

'BO' CALLAWAY
. . . lost possible votes for the President . . .

As an example of this, they point to White House support for the "common situs" bill, which will cause tremendous economic dislocation in the construction industry and benefit Big Labor alone, though there is not the slightest chance that it will throw its weight behind the administration. The White House mail urging him to veto this pernicious piece of legislation has been the heaviest in many years. Yet if the President does reject it, his previous vacillation will mark it as a sign of panic, not principle.

There is still time for the President to prove that he can be a man of decision.

He can clean out the White House of those Rockefeller underlings who, like the head of his Domestic Council, have done little more than sow confusion.

He can take a forthright stand against the gross violations of SALT I by the Soviet Union. He can fire "Bo" Callaway and the other time-servers who are making a shambles of his campaign committee.

But most of all, he must demonstrate that he has not let the blandishments of power sway his judgment or temper the loyalty to himself and to his friends that made him the nation's first appointed president. Can he do this? That, to quote Hamlet, is the question.

Big Brother's Handbook

WASHINGTON — In seemingly innocuous but prying little ways, the federal government is compiling data on millions of Americans. This could extinguish the right of privacy and lead to a regimented society in this land of the free.

Federal snoops for example, can consult a 452-page manual, which will tell them how to track down the most obscure personal details about almost anyone, anywhere.

A Metropolitan Opera singer? Check "Opera Biographies," published in London by Werner Laurie. A New Jersey hog farmer? The manual advises: "Hog farmers who feed garbage are required to obtain a license from the Department of Agriculture."

Or do you want to locate a divorced construction worker of Croatian descent? No problem. Just look up his marriage and divorce papers. You can also check with the construction union and the Croatian-American Association.

This exhaustive handbook on snooping is called "Where's What," with the subtitle, "Sources of Information for Federal Investigators." It was compiled in 1965 by Harry J. Murphy, who was then an investigator for the Central Intelligence Agency.

Perhaps significantly, the CIA gave him a year's leave at the Brookings Institution to work on the project. He returned to the CIA but has now retired. He stressed to us that the investigative techniques suggested in his book were used by the CIA only to check prospective employees, not to pay on citizens.

Nonetheless, the CIA keeps tabs on hundreds of thousands of Americans who have absolutely no wish to work for the CIA.

This can best be done, apparently, through the government itself. According to Murphy's handbook, the federal government offers a smorgasbord of information about the citizenry. Selective Service and military records, income tax returns, social security files and even census records can be pried open by federal snoops.

Just about every time a citizen rubs against the government, whether it be to license a business, register a car, claim unemployment insurance or even purchase savings bonds, he must leave behind his life history.

Much of the information is of no practical value to anyone except some bureaucrat with a Big Brother complex.

For page after page, Murphy also tells how to dig out information from private sources. He relates, for example, how he tracked down a nameless Hungarian airplane-parts manufacturer by using bank records.

Another time, he checked whether a subject had ever been bonded by one of her employers. It turned out that she had, and he swept up the loose information that had been unavailable from other sources.

Murphy has also found landladies an excellent source of information. "The landladies of these rooming houses often get to know their roomers quite well," he counsels federal investigators.

Alumni reunions can be productive. "At such gatherings," he advises, "a photograph is inevitable, and it might be the means of obtaining an up-to-date photograph for use in your inquiry."

Murphy also recommends checking with the public utilities that serve the subject's neighborhood. "The records of the gas, electric, water, telephone and sewer companies are particularly helpful," he confides.

It is clear from Murphy's handbook that newsmen often come under the federal spyglass. He has found the musty, old accreditation records from World War II and the Korean War are loaded with intimate details about correspondents.

"The files will contain travel data and will include complaints about the (newsman), such as leaving debts behind, excessive drinking or inaccurate reporting," Murphy says.

Read singly, the federal files may seem merely another dreary example of bureaucratic excess. Examined in larger lots, they provide an intriguing study of just how far the government has intruded into the lives of Americans.

Mandate Of Death

Lincoln, Neb.

I read the editorial in the December 13 issue of The Star and I was appalled by what I read. Let us look at the question raised: "Is the death penalty justified?"

First of all, this is not the real issue. The present issue is the constitutionality of the death penalty as ruled upon by the supreme courts, versus the people of individual states such as Nebraska. The people have mandated that the death penalty is fair and just and should be carried out when so commanded by a fair trial and jury. This is our system that we the people elect to have and should support.

A petition by 8,004 persons represents approximately one-half of 1% of the people of Nebraska. This is the size of the group that desires the Nebraska Supreme Court to set aside the court sentence in question.

On this the editorial was based and supported by what I feel were weak arguments.

Yes, the people of Nebraska share in the death verdict, it is so declared by the law and a jury. The question of deterrent is valid, however. The Star's rationale is not. How many murderers will admit freely that they considered the death penalty prior to their act? If this was considered, is it not agreed that a consideration was also given to these facts: (1) I may not be caught, (2) I may not be proven guilty; (3) I may not be given the death penalty, (4) The death sentence if given probably will not be carried out due to court rulings and present day public sentiment.

The Star stated that "The crime of murder has consistently been treated with an abundancy of inconsistency," and that few convicted murderers get the electric chair.

The real crime is in the way that our system carries out the sentence. No consideration is given the victim when that person's life is taken. So why should our courts be so liberal? When a sentence is given, set a date for execution and if there is no legal reason shedding light on why it should be postponed, then carry out the people's mandate of death.

This is not a "personal judgment of our justices," and it is not a "sacrifice on the altar of retribution," as stated. This is the law of the people and as such, we the people must either support the court decision to the letter or overthrow it by popular vote, thus ending this controversy.

Look To England

Arcadia, Neb.

I read The Star editorial, "A Gift From Uncle Scrooge," on Dec. 19 with disbelief. I cleaned my glasses and read it again, still puzzled. How can anyone in this position be so ill-informed? "President Scrooge and that minority" are not the guilty parties in this case. There are enough Democrats in both houses to override any presidental veto if they so choose. Thank God, reason prevailed.

The President never did say he opposed a tax cut — only couple a spending cut with it. All the majority had to do was cut spending by nearly the same as the tax cut and the bill would have been signed by Mr. Ford. It is obvious that The Star and the majority in the Congress have absolutely no concept of fiscal responsibility. These ideas of liberalism are bankrupt. New York City has gone under for that reason and the only reason the federal government has not is because they own the printing presses. It is not the President nor the minority in the Congress who is picking our pockets; rather, the liberal majority that is filching our hard-earned money through inflation and excessive waste in huge government spending. The liberal Establishment is on a road hell-bent for Socialism and if The Star believes that is so good, as it must to espouse such irresponsibility, just take a close look at England.

Regarding Column A, by Nancy Hicks and Don Walton, Star staff writers, in the Dec 22 issue, in the future, writers should consult someone with a basic understanding of mathematics when tossing around percentages, such as in this article dealing with retirement plans.

A Splendid City. Why?

As part of recent personal attacks on Planning Director Douglas Brogden for allegedly being most responsible for delays in completing an update of the Lincoln-Lancaster Comprehensive Plan, the City Council was urged by one of its members to "hire somebody to ramrod it" through. The whole city, it was said, "is being held up."

Growth and development in Lincoln being "held up" by officials and citizens who are putting together a revised plan and posing alternatives for Lincoln's future? Perhaps the city is being "held up," not in the sense of development being obstructed, but in the sense that the planning process moves at a measured pace. And that is probably one of the main reasons Lincoln is such a quality city and object of resident pride.

In Lincoln we tend to be concerned about the compatibility of land uses and an even pattern of growth and development. We encourage development, but not at the expense of existing businesses and that is one reason Lincoln has a central business district which is one of the healthiest in the nation for a city of this size. We are concerned with preserving the esthetic attributes of the city and hope we can balance that with the requirements of progress. We are coming to the point where we have more respect, in our decision-making processes, for human beings than for machines. We have not paved everything in sight with concrete. We have some examples of spot zoning and haphazard development but the examples are not preponderant. There are some blighted areas in Lincoln, but that problem is being attacked in a comprehensive manner. Although the city generally cooperates with developers, our officials are not inclined to buy every single proposed development scheme that is dangled before them and they are rightfully skeptical of those based on unsound planning principles.

In short, we have a fine city, one we are proud of, because we have taken the time and generally have followed the principles to make it so.

Some of the people who complain about time being wasted and who accuse Brogden of lack of leadership in getting the plan completed, who think a comprehensive plan can be hastily thrown together with a minimum of difficulty, are people who also will agree that Lincoln is a splendid city. They should ask themselves why — and they might come to the conclusion, however grudgingly, that the Brogdens of this city have had something to do with it.

The "whole city being held up" because of dealys in updating the plan? Maybe so. And maybe that's good.

Truth A Powerful Irritant

Our opinion of American Ambassador to the United Nations Daniel P. Moynihan was raised another notch some days ago by an attack on his recent performances in the world forum. You can tell a lot about a person from the motives and character of his enemies and critics.

To be sure, we were somewhat perplexed at the attack on Moynihan by the British ambassador a few weeks past. But criticism from the Kremlin is not so surprising and it is that to which we refer.

A top Pravda commentator through whom the Soviet leadership speaks has blasted Moynihan, claiming that the U.S. ambassador "only deteriorates international relations by his insulting and defiant reproofs against independent states . . ." Further, Moynihan has "assumed the role of supreme judge" and has "thundered at the overwhelming majority of the U.N. member states," said Pravda's Yuri Zhukov.

Moynihan has been in big trouble at the Kremlin for his remarks accusing the Soviet Union of attempting to recolonize Africa.

That is why he has been excoriated by the Soviet press: he has been telling the truth, loudly and persistently, and the truth can be a powerful irritant.

There is no mistaking the ominous shift in Soviet strategy. More than at any time since Khrushchev stopped pounding his shoe in rhythm with denunciations of the west in favor of peaceful coexistence and economic competition, the Soviet Union is on the march, seeking to extend its sphere of influence across the far reaches of the globe and seeking to dominate even more people than it now enslaves.

This nation, not wanting to offend world opinion in the wake of the Vietnam involvement and desiring to compromise in the interests of peace, finds itself underwriting the U.S.S.R.'s failing agricultural production efforts, making concessions on armaments and turning the other cheek as Soviets or their agents push and shove their way around the world.

Moynihan is serving the purpose of putting the world on public notice that in this detente arrangement, the tensions are being relaxed at only one end. His may be a lonely voice in the present administration, but we are in his debt nevertheless.

Jerry Brown, Doubtful Candidate

WASHINGTON — Political punditry has a new fad. More and more people are saying that California Governor Jerry Brown's politics of asceticism, budget-cutting and frugality could signal a philosophic revitalization of the Democratic Party or even make the popular 37-year-old Californian a plausible 1976 presidential candidate.

I doubt it — like I doubt that Maharaji Ji will be the next pope. Brown's unusual background and outlook has not caused much adverse comment in the unique cultural and political climate of California. But the odds are that his extraordinary blend of counter-culturish thinking, Jesuit asceticism and Asian mysticism cannot survive full-blown national amplification or indeed reach beyond Pacific shoes to mount a successful political appeal in the Dixie Bible Belt and Northeastern ethnic mill towns.

To elaborate: A recent New York Times magazine story noted that Brown claims three men — Ho Chi Minh, Mao Tse-tung and Mahatma Gandhi — as heroes because of their asceticism. A Buddhist choir sang at Brown's January 1975 inaugural, he has taken visiting journalists to eat in an Asian vegetarian restaurant, and so forth.

This may seem like trifling stuff, but note what his campaign manager, Thomas Quinn, has admitted about Brown's pre-November 1974 ideological reticence: "We wanted to avoid any discussion of substance. We found obscure, boring issues and talked about them. Jerry's real ideas were dangerous, but we were generally successful in avoiding them."

☆ ☆ ☆

Additional suggestive evidence can be found in Brown's admitted favorite book, "Small Is Beautiful," by E. F. Schumacher, a British utopian Socialist and economic planner. Schumacher advocates economic asceticism, saying — for example — that it is "highly uneconomic to go in for complicated tailoring, like the modern West, when a much more beautiful effect can be achieved by the skillful draping of uncut material." As in Buddhist robes, perhaps?

"We need not be surprised," also writes Schumacher, "that the pressure and strain of living is very much less in, say, Burma than it is in the United States, in spite of the fact that the amount of labor-saving machinery used in the former country is only a minute fraction of the amount used in the latter." Unfortunately, socialist Burma is so low-key that British-built factories and railroads are rusting, disease is widespread, and the average life expectancy is only 44 years.

If it's unfair to link the governor too closely with the Schumacher book, his Jesuit training offers a similar focus. A November article in San Francisco magazine describes Brown as having told a group of Loyola Marymount University (Los Angeles) students and faculty "If you want to know what my administration will be like, look at St. Ignatius' 11th and 12th Rules."

St. Ignatius Loyola was the 16th Century founder of the Jesuits, and those two rules state that each Jesuit must abhor completely all that which the world loves, and must make his main object self-denial and continuous mortification. More asceticism. More "small is beautiful."

☆ ☆ ☆

My point is not to deny Jerry Brown's popularity in California. His frugality and skepticism toward government has struck a positive chord. But California may not be a good national testing ground or launching pad. While the state anticipates trends, it also distorts and exaggerates them. The great tides of American politics have always washed up in odd waves on California's shores.

Back in the 1930's, when the popular tide was towards government action and government panaceas, California translated the New Deal into the Weird Deal — Technocracy, the Utopian Society, the EPIC (End Poverty in California) crusade, Plentocracy, the Townsend Plan, "Ham and Eggs" and Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday. Opton Sinclair almost got elected governor with EPIC in 1934, and Townsendite Sheridan Downey made it to the Senate.

Today, of course, the tide is running the other way — away from faith in government spending, programs and remedies. Think frugal — think small. And in Jerry Brown, California has once again opted for an unusual version both of zealotry, strange temples and exotic metaphysics. This is not the stuff of which American presidents are made.

Mr. Ford Still Has Reserve Time

WASHINGTON — There were, among Republicans, many whose hearts belonged to Ronald Reagan but who supported Gerald Ford because he is the incumbent president. Missionaries Discover Chile A Friendly Land

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Compared to Chile, the United States has no inflationary problem.

In fact, a Chilean unit of money worth 96¢ in 1960 is now worth only 1/100 of a cent, according to Stanley Moore, who with his family is visiting in Lincoln while on furlough from their work as Methodist Church missionaries in Chile.

Moore, who has served as principal of the El Vergel Agricultural School at Angol, Chile, for more than 10 years, also notes that unemployment in Chile has reached 20%, according to Chilean government statistics.

And a Catholic bishop there recently said that in some places of Chile unemployment was as high as 90%, Moore said.

Work Not Affected

Although the Chilean press has been critical of U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Sen. Edward Kennedy and some U.S. policies, any tension existing between Chile and the United States has not affected their work, according to the Moores.

Mrs. Moore, who has taught English in the Chilean schools in addition to raising the Moores' four children, said the Chilean people always have been very friendly toward them.

Although there are occasional misunderstandings and problems in working with people of a foreign nation, the Moores said any anti-North American feelings of the Chilean people are not reflected in their attitudes toward the Moores.

Sympathies Divided

Some Chileans are solid supporters of the United States while others are anti-North America, they said. One of their best Chilean friends is anti-North America but not negative at all in his attitude toward individual Americans in Chile.

Mrs. Moore, who is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University, and her husband both were "short-term missionaries" prior to their marriage after which they went to Chile.

Moore, a native of California, had spent his three-year short term in Chile, while Mrs. Moore spent those three years in Rhodesia, Africa.

"It is difficult with the children to try to communicate in Spanish when our native tongue is English," Mrs. Moore commented, noting that it is essential to speak Spanish in the home there because of other Chileans who are in the home.

Conveniences Lacking

Homemaking in Chile takes up more time than in the United States because of the lack of modern conveniences.

Heating all one's water, cooking on a wood stove and washing clothes without a washer and dryer are time-consuming tasks, but "we're essentially used to it," Mrs. Moore said.

She said it would be nice to have an automatic washer and dryer with four children but the advantages of knowing two cultures outweigh the inconveniences in the home.

The ElVergel school, which is the oldest agricultural secondary school in Chile, was opened in 1919 by United States Methodist missionaries and is now operated by the Chilean Methodist Church.

The some 100 resident students of the school come from all parts of Chile and a few have come from Peru and Argentina, according to Moore.

Students Screened

He said they are screened and interviewed prior to acceptance in the tuition-free school.

Most of the students come from low economic level homes, and much of the satisfaction of working in such an assignment is to see the changes which are apparent in many students, the Moores said.

"Some of the students which caused the most trouble in school become the greatest leaders," Moore said, citing examples of some young men who showed drastic changes.

Although the Chileans are beginning to recognize women, the general feeling is that the woman's place is in the home.

Women Were Accepted

In 1966, the El Vergel School opened its doors to women for about four years but due to lack of interest and few job opportunities, the school was forced to discontinue the co-educational practice.

Moore said there is an effort nationally to enroll girls in secondary and higher education schools; but for the agricultural school, the costs didn't warrant continued female enrollment.

He said maintaining adequate dormitory facilities is a great expense in such resident schools.

Although the children had mixed feelings about leaving their Chilean friends and schoolmates, the Moore family is looking forward to a new assignment.

Moore said he will be working in a rural extension project with Indians of Temuco.

After that two to three-year assignment, the future is not yet determined. Whether the Moores will return to the States, stay in Chile or accept another assignment is not yet known, they said.

Dr. Hoiberg Helping Measure Local Communities' Heartbeat

Dr. Otto Hoiberg says there's nothing he would dislike more than to be "cut off entirely from work."

So, he did something about it and the city of Lincoln is better off for it.

Hoiberg "retired" last year as head of the University of Nebraska's community development extension division. But, retired he's not. Just ask the staff of the city's Urban Development Department.

Since July, Hoiberg has been helping the city measure the heartbeat of Lincoln neighborhoods.

Otto Hoiberg

Hoiberg, who was one of the leading pushers for establishing community development programs in Nebraska, now works for the city's Neighborhood Assistance Bureau (NAB).

Quarters Cramped

Several days a week the professor treks to his "office" — a desk located in the NAB's cramped basement quarters at the "Clinton House." The house, at 2137 Clinton St., is the office for many of the Urban Development Department's staff and VISTA workers.

His desk is overflowing with stacks of computer printout sheets, which, under Dr. Hoiberg's practiced eye, will outline the needs and wants of Lincoln neighborhood groups.

Information on those computer sheets are obtained from attitude surveys, which are considered the foundation of neighborhood planning efforts.

Those surveys, Hoiberg explains, attempt to measure the problems, wants and needs of people living in a certain geographic area. Eventually, development programs will be drafted. Federal funds may then be channeled into those areas.

Working On Manual

In addition to working on those surveys, Hoiberg is putting together a neighborhood developmend guide. The manual will be distributed to neighborhood leaders, giving them tips on how to generate interest in neighborhoods and neighborhood planning.

The NAB also is planning to conduct workshops next year on neighborhood planning.

Hoiberg, who helped found Atiturk University in Turkey in 1957-58, has left his mark on many Nebraska communities, not just Lincoln.

Through the years he has helped set up community organizations in Nebraska towns, helped plan surveys and conducted community planning.

Hoiberg is exceptionally happy that so many agencies and federal funds are available to aid in various community development programs.

In the beginning, he remembers, "We were just playing it by ear."

Coordination A Problem

Now with the myriad of state, local and private agencies working in the field, the situation has "posed a problem of coordination," he reports.

As a result, he is pleased that a chapter of the Community Development Society has been formed in the state which "keeps the communication lines open."

Such sharing of information is needed, Hoiberg said, to avoid duplication and conflicting programs.

Hoiberg says he enjoys working for the city. The pace is a little slower now than when he worked for the university. And he likes it that way.

"It's very convenient. I work when I want to and how much I want to."

City officials say they're glad he does.

171 Good, Murphy Letters Were 'Helpful Warnings,' Not Threats

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — "Many people with knives who love earth will bring what you deserve" reads one of the 171 letters that Sandra Good and Susan Murphy are accused of conspiring to write.

The two former roommates of Lynette Fromme face federal charges that could bring them sentences of five years in prison and $10,000 fines if convicted.

But Miss Good says the letters were meant as helpful warnings to stop pollution, not "personal threats," to the business and government leaders who were supposed to receive them.

Here is the text of a letter which was introduced by the prosecution Wednesday in arguing against the women's request to be freed without bail:

"Anyone moving for Nuclear Plants is moving for Death. Many people with knives who love earth will bring what you deserve for trying to take it with you

"Crazy horse from nuthouse come with butchers through bedrooms as the screams and cries tell of trampled, warning you

"Laugh at this until one of your family in blood makes deal to you your murder Stop now We have enough energy Or test me! And Indians in my grave is in the night of your mind!"

Miss Good said she didn't write the letter She said Miss Fromme wrote 3,000 letters that were seized by the FBI on Sept 5, when Miss Fromme was arrested for trying to kill President Ford.

Miss Good also said she "felt no guilt" about the letters and had asked the FBI to mail them.

"Those people should thank me for warning them," she said.

U.S. District Court Judge Philip Wilkins refused to lower the $50,000 bail for each woman, but set another hearing for Jan. 6.

It was not clear whether the 3,000 letters allegedly written by Miss Fromme included the 171 letters in the Good-Murphy indictment.

The indictment says the women gave the 171 letters to a friend, Michael Davies, to be mailed, but he turned the letters over to the FBI.

It also wasn't known to whom the letter introduced in court was supposed to be sent, or whether the recipient was among 70 business and government figures on a so-called "death list" released by Miss Good on Sept. 11.

At that time, she said "a wave of assassins" would carry out the killings unless the people on the list stopped polluting the earth

Miss Fromme, like Miss Good a disciple of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson, has been sentenced to life in prison for attempted assassination. She was named as an unindicted coconspirator by the federal grand jury that indicted Miss Good and Miss Murphy.

Better Cuban Relations Is Man's Target

MIAMI (AP) — Cyrus Eaton, the 91-year-old industrialist, has set out on a one-man campaign to improve U.S.-Cuban relations but says he is pessimistic about immediate improvement.

"I don't think there is any change of any improvement — not while Ford is President and (Henry A.) Kissinger the secretary of state," Eaton said before flying to Cuba on Christmas Eve

"A year from now, we will have a new administration. With it may come change," said Eaton. "I've been going to Cuba for 60 years. I think our policy is wrong there, just as it was in Vietnam."

Missionaries Discover Chile A Friendly Land

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Compared to Chile, the United States has no inflationary problem.

In fact, a Chilean unit of money worth 96¢ in 1960 is now worth only 1/100 of a cent, according to Stanley Moore, who with his family is visiting in Lincoln while on furlough from their work as Methodist Church missionaries in Chile.

Moore, who has served as principal of the El Vergel Agricultural School at Angol, Chile, for more than 10 years, also notes that unemployment in Chile has reached 20%, according to Chilean government statistics.

And a Catholic bishop there recently said that in some places of Chile unemployment was as high as 90%, Moore said.

Work Not Affected

Although the Chilean press has been critical of U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Sen. Edward Kennedy and some U.S. policies, any tension existing between Chile and the United States has not affected their work, according to the Moores.

Mrs. Moore, who has taught English in the Chilean schools in addition to raising the Moores' four children, said the Chilean people always have been very friendly toward them.

Although there are occasional misunderstandings and problems in working with people of a foreign nation, the Moores said any anti-North American feelings of the Chilean people are not reflected in their attitudes toward the Moores.

Sympathies Divided

Some Chileans are solid supporters of the United States while others are anti-North America, they said. One of their best Chilean friends is anti-North America but not negative at all in his attitude toward individual Americans in Chile.

Mrs. Moore, who is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University, and her husband both were "short-term missionaries" prior to their marriage after which they went to Chile.

Moore, a native of California, had spent his three-year short term in Chile, while Mrs. Moore spent those three years in Rhodesia, Africa.

"It is difficult with the children to try to communicate in Spanish when our native tongue is English," Mrs. Moore commented, noting that it is essential to speak Spanish in the home there because of other Chileans who are in the home.

Conveniences Lacking

Homemaking in Chile takes up more time than in the United States because of the lack of modern conveniences.

Heating all one's water, cooking on a wood stove and washing clothes without a washer and dryer are time-consuming tasks, but "we're essentially used to it," Mrs. Moore said.

She said it would be nice to have an automatic washer and dryer with four children but the advantages of knowing two cultures outweigh the inconveniences in the home.

The ElVergel school, which is the oldest agricultural secondary school in Chile, was opened in 1919 by United States Methodist missionaries and is now operated by the Chilean Methodist Church.

The some 100 resident students of the school come from all parts of Chile and a few have come from Peru and Argentina, according to Moore.

Students Screened

He said they are screened and interviewed prior to acceptance in the tuition-free school.

Most of the students come from low economic level homes, and much of the satisfaction of working in such an assignment is to see the changes which are apparent in many students, the Moores said.

"Some of the students which caused the most trouble in school become the greatest leaders," Moore said, citing examples of some young men who showed drastic changes.

Although the Chileans are beginning to recognize women, the general feeling is that the woman's place is in the home.

Women Were Accepted

In 1966, the El Vergel School opened its doors to women for about four years but due to lack of interest and few job opportunities, the school was forced to discontinue the co-educational practice.

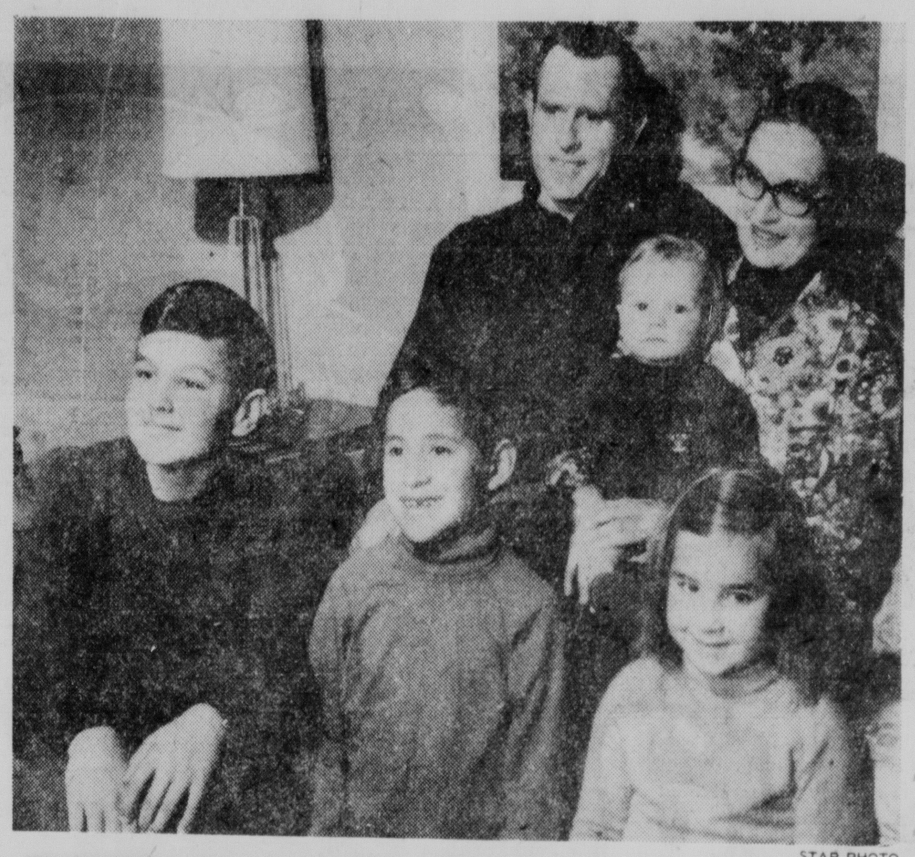

Moore said there is an effort nationally to enroll girls in secondary and higher education schools; but for the agricultural school, the costs didn't warrant continued female enrollment.

He said maintaining adequate dormitory facilities is a great expense in such resident schools.

Although the children had mixed feelings about leaving their Chilean friends and schoolmates, the Moore family is looking forward to a new assignment.

Moore said he will be working in a rural extension project with Indians of Temuco.

After that two to three-year assignment, the future is not yet determined. Whether the Moores will return to the States, stay in Chile or accept another assignment is not yet known, they said.

Indira Gandhi To Ask Party's Mandate

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, maintaining that internal and external forces are trying to destabilize India, plans to ask her Congress party next week for a mandate to continue her tough emergency rule, authoritative sources said Thursday.

Her decision, the sources said, means that there is not likely to be an early relaxation of the strong measures the government has taken since proclaiming a national emergency last June 26.

These have included the widespread arrests of opposition political leaders and workers, imposition of rigid censorship and other stringent press controls and suspension of most civil liberties.

According to a draft resolution prepared by Mrs. Gandhi and other party leaders, the annual convention of the Congress party will be asked to urge the government to continue the national emergency because of threats to the country's security.

"It would be premature to conclude that the dangers of internal and external subversion had been fully surmounted," the draft resolution states. "The forces of destabilization are still at work within and outside the country."

In a reference to the ouster and assassination of pro-Indian President Sheik Mujibur Rahman in Bangladesh in August, the resolution declares: "Happenings in neighboring countries and beyond cast their ominous shadows upon our land and affect our security and stability."

The draft resolution does not identify the forces of destabilization, although the language is similar to that used in recent weeks by the party's pro-Soviet president, Dev Kant Borooah, to warn of possible dangers from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The resolution will be considered by delegates to the party convention beginning Monday in northern Chandigarh City. It is expected to win easy passage with little or no opposition.

Since the emergency, the leading critics of Mrs. Gandhi within the party have either been expelled from the organization or arrested.

The emergency was originally proclaimed to head off a planned civil disobedience campaign by opposition parties to force Mrs. Gandhi's resignation while appealing a conviction of electoral malpractices.

The supreme court set aside the conviction Nov. 7, upholding parliament's retroactive writing of the election laws to erase the prime minister's offenses.

The resolution prepared for the party convention substantially broadens the argument for having declared — and for wanting to continue — the emergency.

Authoritative sources said the resolution also would urge the government to conduct a "thorough re-examination" of the country's 25-year-old constitution.

Observers thought this aspect of the resolution would give the prime minister the go-ahead to consider major constitutional changes that would give her more powers than she now has.

The government is known to have studied the possibility of switching from the parliamentary system to a strong presidential model, with Mrs. Gandhi becoming the president. But no final decision is believed to have been taken.

Even without any constitutional changes, the functioning of parliament is expected to change, so that the role of debates and opposition criticism of the government would be reduced.

According to reports published in Indian newspapers Thursday, a committee of the Congress party has proposed that parliament be in session for less than three months a year, compared to more than six months at present.

Additionally, most of the work would be done by committees, which traditionally meet in private, and opportunities to censure the government through no-confidence and other motions in the full parliament chamber would be reduced drastically.

Miami Student Police Unit Takes To Holiday Streets

MIAMI (AP) — An auxiliary police unit composed of college students has helped reduce the number of holiday-season crimes committed against downtown businesses and shoppers, officials say.

"They're the greatest. The program has unlimited potential," said Lt. Charles Palamara, supervisor of the police department's Public Service Aides program.

Eight of the 55 aides have been assigned to the department's "Santa Claus Detail," which patrols the downtown shopping district. The squad makes itself as conspicuous as possible to discourage crimes and has captured several thieves, Palmara said.

Officers said 434 robberies were reported in the area in December 1974. So far this month, slightly more than 200 robberies have been reported. Officials said purse snatchings, muggings and other crimes have shown a similar decrease.

"They're all over," Palamara said of the college students, aged 18 to 21. "Out there where they can be seen, providing us with additional sets of eyes and ears." The aides are unarmed but wear uniforms similar to regular police uniforms.

Since 1974, the aides have participated in all facets of police work, handling 65,000 calls and writing thousands of reports. Their efforts have freed police officers to handle enforcement duties and have speeded response time, officials said.

Twelve aides, having passed their 21st birthdays and made their career decisions, already are in the police academy and 25 others become eligible next year, Palamara said.

"We look at them," he said. "They look at us, and if it's a happy marriage, we hope in a year or so they'll go into the academy.

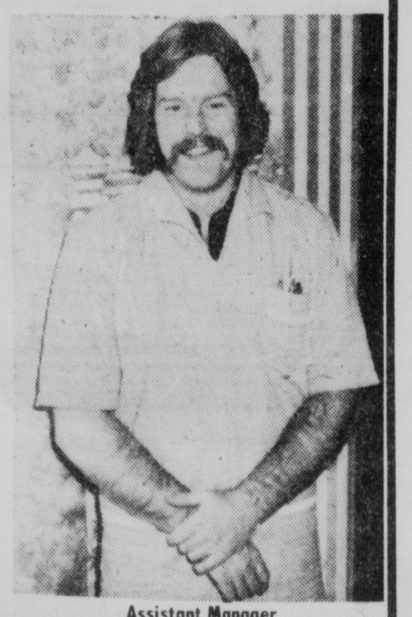

"If not, there's no catch. They provide us with a service.

"Even if they don't decide on police careers, we still have somebody in the community familiar with the Miami Police Department," he said.

PETS ROCKS . . . are anywhere you find them, and those with character stand out.

Do-It-Yourself Pet Rock

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Dogs may be man's best friend, but rocks have been man's oldest friend. They gave shelter, fire, food, to our ancesters, the cave man.

And rocks are the rage this holiday season. Pet rocks, a gimmicky gift for the person who has everything, are a hot-selling item in stores across the nation.

But for those cheapskates, who hate to pay four bucks for a hunk of stone and a set of hilarious instructions, pet rocks are an easy do-it-yourself project.

All you need is one rock and lots of imagination.

And if two cheapo reporters can do it you readers can too.

Our rock, dubbed Blarney Stone, was a superior fellow, washed up along the shores of Lake Superior.

A kindly reporter's mom crocheted a leashe and blanket, and a candy dish was selected from the local discount store for a bed.

The rest, a set of instructions and information, came from brain power.

Possible rock names are Hudson Rock, Gibraltar, Nick Gneiss, Charles Chert, Doris Dolomite, Oliver Obsidian, Agate Christy, Coquina Cornerstone, and Frandenstone.

Every rock needs a little class — an elite family background. Blarney, for example, was the son of Captain Marble and Opal Agate, and some say he is just a chip off the ol' rock.

And every rock has a magnetic personality. Blarney's motives are pure as crystal and he's generous to a fault. He also has a heart of gold and a gravelly voice.

Blarney loves to be consulted on decisions. He hates to be taken for granite. He is also a bit shy, but with tender loving care will grow boulder with age.

Blarney's feelings are easily crushed. He has been sitting in stony silence ever since a passing feline catily called him a "Dumb pollrock."

Rocks have certain hard and fast likes and dislikes. They love adventure movies, particularly cliff-hangers, and are normally rock-ribbed Republicans. And most rocks still harbor a slight admiration for that great stonewaller — Richard Nixon.

Rocks really enjoy television. Some favorites are rock operas like "The Sands of Time," and the cartoon reruns of the Flintstones.

But many a rock has crumbled into dust when viewing the commercial for Prudential Insurance.

Rocks require some specific care requirements. They prefer a bed of limestone and feed on sweet nothings. Rocks are particularly susceptible to the diseases of igneous itch and Sisyphus Syndrome and should be periodically dusted with Desinex to prevent petrified athlete's bottom.

Of course rocks must be on a leash at all times. Otherwise the owner could be fined for letting his rock roll at large.

But enough of this sedimetary slush. We leave the rest of the rock report up to you . . . and Rocksa Ruck.

Michigan Pet Rock Show Set

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. (UPI) — The Pet Rock Kennel Club, sponsors of the prestigious Bicentennial All-Breed National Pet Rock Show, has angrily accused a California rock breeding firm of shipping helpless rocks in unheated boxcars and other atrocities.

Glen Somes, bench chairman for the Jan. 20-22 classic in a Lake Superior State College geology lab, said rock bottom Products is wantonly producing and selling the beloved pets without regard for the sensitivity of various breeds.

"The show is in no way connected with Rock Bottom Productions, which has been indiscriminately selling rocks and shipping them all over the country, often in unheated boxcars.

"This sort of indiscriminate rock proliferation is weakening the breeds and can tend only to mongrelize the species. Many of the rocks they sell at outrageous prices don't even have pedigrees beyond two generations. It's the kind of thing that ruined the poodle."

Somes' stern accusation came in an announcement of the upcoming show for domestic-bred male or female rocks in working, sporting, toy and non-sporting classes. Acceptable sizes are pebble, stone, boulder and gibraltar.

Except for obedience trials and novice rock competition, only four-generation pedigreed rocks will be allowed in accordance with international rules, organizers said.

"Although the show is several weeks off," Somes said, "we are authorizing early entrants so that owners will have time to groom their rocks.

"This will also give pets a chance to become acclimated to the northern winter before they are taken into the ring. It often takes a nervous pet rock several days to settle down after a harrowing airline flight."

PETS ROCKS . . . are anywhere you find them, and those with character stand out.

Do-It-Yourself Pet Rock

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Dogs may be man's best friend, but rocks have been man's oldest friend. They gave shelter, fire, food, to our ancesters, the cave man.

And rocks are the rage this holiday season. Pet rocks, a gimmicky gift for the person who has everything, are a hot-selling item in stores across the nation.

But for those cheapskates, who hate to pay four bucks for a hunk of stone and a set of hilarious instructions, pet rocks are an easy do-it-yourself project.

All you need is one rock and lots of imagination.

And if two cheapo reporters can do it you readers can too.

Our rock, dubbed Blarney Stone, was a superior fellow, washed up along the shores of Lake Superior.

A kindly reporter's mom crocheted a leashe and blanket, and a candy dish was selected from the local discount store for a bed

The rest, a set of instructions and information, came from brain power.

Possible rock names are Hudson Rock, Gibraltar, Nick Gneiss, Charles Chert, Doris Dolomite, Oliver Obsidian, Agate Christy, Coquina Cornerstone, and Frandenstone.

Every rock needs a little class — an elite family background. Blarney, for example, was the son of Captain Marble and Opal Agate, and some say he is just a chip off the ol' rock

And every rock has a magnetic personality. Blarney's motives are pure as crystal and he's generous to a fault. He also has a heart of gold and a gravelly voice

Blarney loves to be consulted on decisions. He hates to be taken for granite. He is also a bit shy, but with tender loving care will grow boulder with age.

Blarney's feelings are easily crushed. He has been sitting in stony silence ever since a passing feline catily called him a "Dumb pollrock."

Rocks have certain hard and fast likes and dislikes. They love adventure movies, particularly cliff-hangers, and are normally rock-ribbed Republicans. And most rocks still harbor a slight admiration for that great stonewaller — Richard Nixon.

Rocks really enjoy television. Some favorites are rock operas like "The Sands of Time," and the cartoon reruns of the Flintstones.

But many a rock has crumbled into dust when viewing the commercial for Prudential Insurance.

Rocks require some specific care requirements. They prefer a bed of limestone and feed on sweet nothings. Rocks are particularly susceptible to the diseases of igneous itch and Sisyphus Syndrome and should be periodically dusted with Desinex to prevent petrified athlete's bottom.

Of course rocks must be on a leash at all times. Otherwise the owner could be fined for letting his rock roll at large.

But enough of this sedumetary slush. We leave the rest of the rock report up to you . . . and Rocksa Ruck.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich (UPI) — The Pet Rock Kennel Club, sponsors of the prestigious Bicentennial All-Breed National Pet Rock Show, has angrily accused a California rock breeding firm of shipping helpless rocks in unheated boxcars and other atrocities.

Glen Somes, bench chairman for the Jan. 20-22 classic in a Lake Superior State College geology lab, said rock bottom Products is wantonly producing and selling the beloved pets without regard for the sensitivity of various breeds.

"The show is in no way connected with Rock Bottom Productions, which has been indiscriminately selling rocks and shipping them all over the country, often in unheated boxcars.

Poor Countries Poorly Run

By KEYES BEECH
(c) Chicago Daily News

Hong Kong — A familiar Third World argument these days is that if the rich countries would only consume less, the poor countries would have more.

How valid is this argument? Should Americans feel guilty because they have too much to eat while the people of Bangladesh don't have enough?

A look around Asia, where more than half the world's people live, suggests that the problem lies not with the rich countries but within the poor countries themselves. It also suggests that some people are better at looking after themselves than others.

It is no accident that the poorest countries in Asia are also the most mismanaged, the most corrupt, the most lethargic, the least likely to succeed.

India is a good horrible example. For a decade or so the United States supplied India with enough grain to feed 10% of its population — not that it ever got down to the people who needed it most.

The result was that it only postponed the day when India would have to come to grips with reality. Yet India is not a poor country; only its people are poor. India has 50% more arable land than China and only half of China's population. It also has a more favorable climate for growing things.

Yet the Chinese have enough to eat while Indians starve.

There is no correlation between economic growth and natural resources, a fact noted by Business International in a comprehensive 217-page $140 guide for foreign investors called "Business Strategies for Developing Asia, 1975-1985."

Analysis

In fact, the Asia countries richest in natural resources are also the poorest, while those that are poorest in raw materials are the most prosperous.

Leaving Japan out of the picture because economically it belongs more to the West than to Asia, the most prosperous countries are South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Singapore. All, except of course South Korea, are wholly or predominantly Chinese.

The Chinese take care of themselves, regardless of where they are.

On the other hand, the two most richly endowed countries in Asia, the Philippines and Indonesia, are among the poorest in East Asia. The slums of Manila and Jakarta are not in the same league with Calcutta, but they are enough to make the average well-fed American wish he had never seen them.

If the rich countries are getting richer and the poor countries poorer, the same applies within the poor countries. Per capita income as an economic indicator in countries like the Philippines and Indonesia is virtually meaningless because income is so unevenly distributed.

Oil keeps Indonesia afloat. But in Indonesia, as in some other Southeast and South Asia countries, the average man was better off economically in colonial days than he is today.

Although it is now forgotten, Indonesia under the Dutch was the world's biggest sugar exporter. Indonesia has been short of sugar ever since it got independence.

Burma, perhaps the most mismanaged country in Asia, was in British colonial days the world's biggest rice exporter. This year, thanks to the "Burmese road to socialism," Burma will be lucky to export half a million tons.

The Philippines, birthplace of "miracle" rice, still imports rice.

A look at the record indicates that capitalism, despite all its excesses, especially in a developing society, is a faster road to a better life than doctrinaire socialism in non-communist Asia.

The line seems to be drawn at the Thai-Burmese border. Countries east of that line which have a free market economy also have some of the world's highest economic growth rates.

Those west of the line, including Burma, India and Sri Lanka but not Pakistan, have varying forms of socialism and little economic growth.

We wish to extend to all of our fine customers sincere Holiday Greetings.

We will be closed today and Saturday to give our employees an extended Christmas vacation. We will be open as usual again Monday December 29.

Just Say Amy's Living With A Friend

DEAR ABBY: Our 22-year-old daughter (I'll call her "Amy") has been living with her boyfriend for three months. Although I don't approve of the arrangement, I can't do anything about it without cutting off all communication with her, and I don't want to do that.

My problem is that I feel terribly awkward when a relative or close friend inquires about Amy. One question leads to another, and I am inevitably asked where Amy is living and with whom.

I don't feel comfortable talking about her living arrangements, but I have to say something. What should I say?

I'm sure lots of parents have the same problem these days, so you'd be doing all of us a favor by answering this in your column.

MOM IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR MOM: Simply say, "Amy's living with a friend, going to school (or working) and seems to be learning (or enjoying life)." Period. If the inquirer wants to know more, talk about Amy and leave the "friend" out of it. And if the interrogator wants to probe further, change the subject. Matter of fact, no matter if "relative" or "close friend" inquires, Amy's lifestyle is her own, and you should not explain, defend or apologize for it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a successful executive, age 55, and recently married a wonderful woman who is 40, trim, beautiful and looks younger than her age.

She has too much time on her hands and has seriously considered modeling dresses, suits, sportswear and swimwear. She possesses all the necessary attributes to be a first-class professional model.

The first agent she approached wanted to sign her immediately. So far, she hasn't signed because I have discouraged her. I'm afraid that she will find herself confronted with unwelcome advances from manufacturers, buyers and designers. Also, I fear that she may be manhandled, and the privacy of her dressing room will be invaded.

She says none of my fears are legitimate. Can you tell me just what fashion models can expect?

HER HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND: If you don't want your beautiful bride on display scantily clad before strange men, say so, but your fears of her having to fend off "unwelcome advances," being man-handled and having her private invaded are unfounded.

The one legitimate objection to her working as a fashion model you didn't mention. It is very hard work.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Bridge

Test Bidding Skill

You are South and the bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 NT	Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠ QJ9632 ♥ A8 ♦ 94 ♣ A73
2. ♠ KJ863 ♥ 762 ♦ 5 ♣ Q1074
3. ♠ AJ872 ♥ 95 ♦ Q6 ♣ KJ92
4. ♠ KJ943 ♥ AK8 ♦ Q73 ♣ 64

1. Three spades. Game is rather likely, despite North's signoff of one notrump, when you have 11 high-card points and also a reasonably good six-card suit. It is therefore best to jump to three spades (forcing) in order to get to game.

Partner's notrump bid guarantees either two or three spades — he can't very well have a singleton and rebid one notrump — and you are consequently certain of at least some spade support. You plan to pass if North bids either three notrump or four spades.

2. Two clubs. The most you can reasonably expect to make in this case — opposite a minimum opening bid — is a part score. The two club bid (not forcing) is designed to find the best part score contract. You should feel more secure about making two clubs if partner passes, or two spades if he gives you a preference in spades, than one notrump. Hands with singletons usually don't play well in notrump.

3. Two notrump. Obviously you can't bid two clubs with this hand, as well as with the preceding hand, because partner wouldn't know whether you were simply aiming for a part score or trying to get to game. You're very close to the game zone, but you don't quite have the values for either three clubs, three spades or three notrump.

In such cases you invite partner to undertake a game, without actually compelling him to do so. Two notrump serves that purpose almost exactly. It allows partner to get off the hook if he has a bare minimum, and at the same time requests him to go further with greater values than he might have for his first two bids.

4. Three diamonds. Since you have an opening bid facing an opening bid you are bound to get to game, but, since you can't be sure of the best contract at this point, you should consult partner by making a forcing bid of three diamonds. You plan to pass three notrump if partner bids it, or go to four spades over three spades.

Catering Crunch Continues

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

Christmas has come and gone.

You'd think Lincoln caterers would be kicking off their shoes and taking a well-deserved breather after the holiday crunch.

But wait! New Year's is right around the corner.

Holiday parties keep caterers on their toes what with all the parties — parties for relatives, friends, fellow workers and business associates.

Although the economic situation seems tigher this year due to the rising cost of living, local caterers say their businesses have not been adversely affected by the money crunch.

Rather, the proprieters of local catering businesses contend that their volume continues to grow.

"The catering business keeps growing," said Paul C. Wilcoxen, owner of Lee's Restaurant. "Our sales are up at the restaurant every month and catering seems to grow with it."

In fact, due to the increase in business, Wilcoxen said he has had to hire additional help, attach a small addition to his building and purchase one more delivery vehicle.

Wilcoxen had to turn down several jobs because he was completely booked the Saturday before Christmas.

"We served 1,500 people just on catering alone," he said, referring to that weekend's business.

"I know what I can take care of and how far I can stretch it. But it comes to a point when I can't take any more" party orders.

"We will not sacrifice quality for quantity," he said.

Rick Sauikis, catering manager at the Super Sub, agreed. "I've been in food service about 2½ years. I've been in Lincoln over a year now and I think people have money to spend here.

"People are getting away from self-service," Saduikis added. "Everyone wants to be catered, served and for that people will spend the money."

Yet, while conceding that business is good during the holidays, Saduikis said, "This time of year, people are in a hurry and they don't plan ahead. They rush you in the winter."

He added he would like to have at least "a day or two notice" when preparing for a party.

Wilcoxen said for large parties he would like two weeks to order the food — beef, ribs, turkey, steak, ham or chicken — although it is not prepared until right before the party.

"But people know we are open until 11:30 p.m., so they might call in and want 50 pieces of chicken" for a small party, Wilcoxen said. "We can usually pop that out pretty easily."

Saduikis pointed out that the Super Sub specializes in party trays — cheese, meat and homemade bread — and brunch foods. For the Super Sub, a medium-size party numbers about 50 to 60 people while a large party could mean 100 to 150 people.

On the other hand, at Lee's Restaurant a catering job for 50 people is considered small. It is not until figures reach 500 or more that the job is considered a large one.

"We have done parties for up to 2,025 people," Wilcoxen said, "but those are few and far between. Usually the larger parties are booked by businesses, naturally. The smaller ones are home parties."

Still, Saduikis and Wilcoxen agreed that "the majority of parties are buffet style."

Although Lee's provides full table service, Wilcoxen said, "buffet style is more reasonable for the people.

"If we have to purchase or rent dishes, utensils and linen and have our servers stay there, the people are going to have to pay more for this service," he explained.

"People would rather have buffet style," Saduikis said. "The number one reason is that not everyone is satisfied with the same dish."

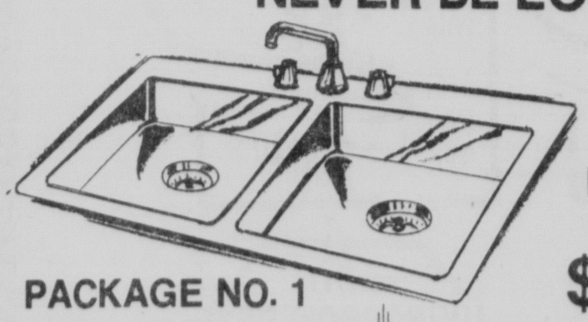

FOR A BIG CATERER . . . numbers must reach hundreds before it's a big job.

YOU GET YOUR CHOICE . . . of a full table service or more economical buffet style.

Catering Crunch Continues

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

Christmas has come and gone.

You'd think Lincoln caterers would be kicking off their shoes and taking a well-deserved breather after the holiday crunch.

But wait! New Year's is right around the corner.

Holiday parties keep caterers on their toes what with all the parties — parties for relatives, friends, fellow workers and business associates.

Although the economic situation seems tigher this year due to the rising cost of living, local caterers say their businesses have not been adversely affected by the money crunch.

Rather, the proprieters of local catering businesses contend that their volume continues to grow.

"The catering business keeps growing," said Paul C. Wilcoxen, owner of Lee's Restaurant. "Our sales are up at the restaurant every month and catering seems to grow with it."

In fact, due to the increase in business, Wilcoxen said he has had to hire additional help, attach a small addition to his building and purchase one more delivery vehicle.

Wilcoxen had to turn down several jobs because he was completely booked the Saturday before Christmas.

"We served 1,500 people just on catering alone," he said, referring to that weekend's business.

"I know what I can take care of and how far I can stretch it. But it comes to a point when I can't take any more" party orders.

"We will not sacrifice quality for quantity," he said.

Rick Sauikis, catering manager at the Super Sub, agreed. "I've been in food service about 2½ years. I've been in Lincoln over a year now and I think people have money to spend here.

"People are getting away from self-service," Saduikis added. "Everyone wants to be catered, served and for that people will spend the money."

Yet, while conceding that business is good during the holidays, Saduikis said, "This time of year, people are in a hurry and they don't plan ahead. They rush you in the winter."

He added he would like to have at least "a day or two notice" when preparing for a party.

Wilcoxen said for large parties he would like two weeks to order the food — beef, ribs, turkey, steak, ham or chicken — although it is not prepared until right before the party.

"But people know we are open until 11:30 p.m., so they might call in and want 50 pieces of chicken" for a small party, Wilcoxen said. "We can usually pop that out pretty easily."

Saduikis pointed out that the Super Sub specializes in party trays — cheese, meat and homemade bread — and brunch foods. For the Super Sub, a medium-size party numbers about 50 to 60 people while a large party could mean 100 to 150 people.

On the other hand, at Lee's Restaurant a catering job for 50 people is considered small. It is not until figures reach 500 or more that the job is considered a large one.

"We have done parties for up to 2,025 people," Wilcoxen said, "but those are few and far between. Usually the larger parties are booked by businesses, naturally. The smaller ones are home parties."

Still, Saduikis and Wilcoxen agreed that "the majority of parties are buffet style."

Although Lee's provides full table service, Wilcoxen said, "buffet style is more reasonable for the people.

"If we have to purchase or rent dishes, utensils and linen and have our servers stay there, the people are going to have to pay more for this service," he explained.

"People would rather have buffet style," Saduikis said. "The number one reason is that not everyone is satisfied with the same dish."

Turtle Bay — "The trouble is," the man from St. Thomas said, "the cruise ship people never see the Virgin Islands.

"They get off the ship — 800 to 1,000 at a time. They head down the main street like a flock of sheep. 'Did you see that watch for $50?' they say. 'How about the low price on that Rollei?'

"They wind up at night back on the ship and they say: 'I saved $2 on that bottle of gin!'

"Never mind that it cost them $2,000 to get here."

☆ ☆ ☆

The lights of Christmas swing over Charlotte Amalie but Santa must come barefoot in Bermuda shorts. The nights are warm as mother love. You can sit in a floating beach chair — an arm pocket for your beer and your paper back.

Up in the castor tree, a comical looking stork watches the water for his breakfast. Swoop! Splash! Gulp!

Merry Christmas, stork!

A tropical shower splashed on the Virgin Island of St. John last night. And when I walked home, a honeymooner's moon broke overhead, laying a path of silver across the water where St. Thomas's hills rise dark against the sky.

"Honey?" said a voice in the cottage I was passing.

"Darling!" said the lady.

"Spray some of that repellent on my back, will you?" he said.

That's one reason to get married. How can you spray insect goop on your own back? Impossible.

☆ ☆ ☆

This is the high season in the Caribbean. The time when New Yorkers pay a hundred dollars a day just to thaw out.

"Then," said the man from St. Thomas, "we are a port of call for practically every cruise ship. The shopping, you know."

The Virgin Islands have a curious status in America — it is all free port. No duty.

The entire main street of Charlotte Amalie, the old Danish town of sugar cane and rum days, is now filled with gift shops. Duty-free Swiss watches. German cameras. Japanese transistors. Danish silver. And every kind of liquor in the world.

☆ ☆ ☆

Besides the sprayed honeymooners — oh, yes, they make a rummy, creamy, iced drink at Caneel Bay Plantation. Straws for two. You like that?

Besides these loving couples, a number of States-side fugitives have settled down to the lotus life.

Like the man who told me about the tourists . . .

"It's different than New Rochelle. But one day I just decided what's life getting me up here? I packed up the family and landed in St. Thomas and stayed."

I asked him if there was any tax advantage as in Europe.

"Theoretically, no," he said. "We're a U.S. Territory and American citizens. But when I arrived here I found there was no enforcement or investigation center of Internal Revenue. There had never been a tax case in the federal court here.

"Naturally," he said, "it made no difference to me. I pay my taxes."

☆ ☆ ☆

The islands were taken over by Denmark in 1666. They imported African slaves which gave them their predominantly black natives. They brought in English and Scotch overseers — which gave the islands English as a native speech.

They had a nice assortment of built-in killers — yellow fever, malaria and elephantiasis. (All cleaned up now. I'm glad that isn't what's biting me.)

Saxbe Expects To Be Back By Next Christmas

Urbana, Ohio (AP) — William B. Saxbe, U.S. ambassador to India, says he expects to be back in America by Christmas, 1976.

"I expect to be home permanently by next year," Saxbe told the Urbana Citizen in a telephone interview from New Delhi on Wednesday.

Saxbe was appointed ambassador in December, 1974, after serving as U.S. attorney general and a senator from Ohio.

"I came over here with the understanding it would be just for a few years," Saxbe said.

Syrians Welcome Saudian King

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — King Khaled of Saudi Arabia began a three-day visit to Syria on Thursday to dramatize his wealthy kingdom's concern for the troubled Arab alliance against Israel.

The pro-Soviet Syrian regime turned out thousands of school children to line the airport road and cheer the conservative anti-Communist monarch as he arrived from neighboring Jordan.

"Khaled, Khaled," they shouted, waving photos of the 62-year-old monarch and President Hafez Assad. "Assad. Our blood and our spirits for Assad."

The Syrians slaughtered 10 sheep in a traditional Bedouin gesture of welcome as Khaled drove up to the official Damascus guest house where he was staying.

The Christmas Day show underlined Assad's reliance on contributions from Khaled and other oil potentates to finance his 150,000-man army and Soviet-equipped air force.

Khaled's fortune — with income of $25 billion a year — provides Syria with the largest share of a billion-dollar annual subsidy from Arab petroleum giants, almost a quarter of Syria's 1976 budget.

Saudi Arabia also stations a garrison reported to number between 15,000 and 30,000 soldiers along Syria's Golan Heights front with Israel. It is backed by Saudi armor and a Saudi air force squadron that recently took part in war maneuvers with Syrian troops.

Syrian officials and diplomats in Damascus said the Saudi military commitment will play a key role in the three days of talks between Khaled and Assad.

Another major issue between the monarch and Assad was Syria's bitter dispute with Egypt over the Sinai withdrawal accord signed by President Anwar Sadat and the Israelis under American patronage.

Assad's angry reaction to the accord — he called it a sellout of Syria and the Palestinians — has opened a rancorous chasm between the two major Arab military powers ranged against Israel.

Observers said Khaled, who also provides a large share of the billion-dollar subsidy going to Egypt, was trying to smooth over the quarrel in the interests of Arab solidarity against Israel.

"Neither Egypt nor Syria is red hot on reconciliation," said a knowledgeable diplomat. "But both have an enormous amount of respect for the Saudis and their money."

UNO Goal Is $3,000

Omaha (AP) — If the University of Nebraska Cornhusker Marching Band can raise more than $50,000 for a trip to the Fiesta Bowl, can some 20 University of Nebraska at Omaha jazz musicians and cheerleaders raise enough money to follow the Maverick basketball team on its upcoming trip to the West Coast?

The question is long but the answer is simple — they sure hope so.

Norm Major and Russ Jones Jr., both UNO students, said they figure expenses for the trip will run about $3,000.

But, as of Wednesday, the group had only a little more than $932.

The UNO Alumni Assn. has agreed to act as a clearinghouse for contributions.

The UNO Student Government Assn. has already kicked in with $800, and collections taken during the Mavs' last two basketball games have netted another $32.50.

UNO is sporting a perfect 8-0 mark, and is ranked 15th this week in the AP's small college basketball poll.

While on the trip to California, the Mavericks will be tested by Pepperdine, University of the Pacific and San Diego University.

Farmers' Sea Cruise Hampered By Storms

MIAMI (AP) — Bill Bodish built a sailboat in land-locked Iowa, gave up his farm and set sail with his wife on an around-the-world cruise.

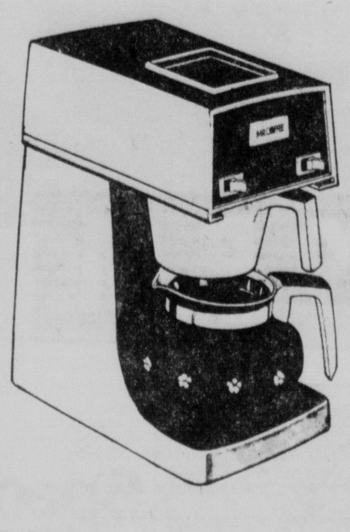

They got as far as the Bahamas before bad weather and bland food took its toll. His wife, Mamie, is headed back to Iowa to visit relatives after saying she would never set foot on another boat.

"My wife swore she'd never get on another boat for the next 100 years. She'll be back and we'll talk it over," said Bodish, 66, of Graf, Iowa. "I spent six years building this tank, and I ain't about to give it up."

Mamie returned to Iowa to spend the holiday with granddaughter Cindy Marie, namesake of the boat. Bodish spent Christmas with cousins in Miami.

In August, Bodish took his homemade, 58-foot yacht named "Cindy Marie" to the Mississippi River and launched it. The Bodish couple sailed down river to the Gulf of Mexico and then into The Bahamas.

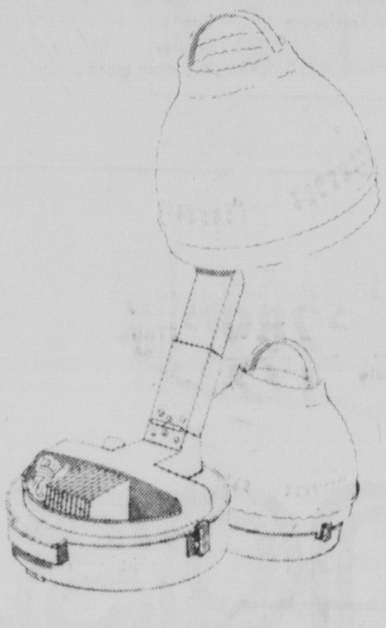

Problems they encountered included a harsh southeast wind that hit while they were sailing near the Ambros Islands.

Bible, Guitar, Revolver York Policeman's Tools

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

York — Following in the footsteps of the Fisherman has transformed Sam West from a hard-drinking country and western singer in Denver bars into a reborn Christian serving as a York policeman.

Armed with a Bible, a growing repertory of Gospel music and a pistol, which he will use if he must, West finds his new job a good opportunity to testify for the Lord.

"I don't feel it's a hindrance to me," he says. "I feel I can be a good cop and a good Christian too."

West was adopted by his grandparents as a child. Although both were good musicians, he didn't pick up a guitar until his ninth-grade summer in Geneva.

"Grandfather said, 'You'll never learn to play that darn thing. I don't know why you fool with it.' Well, that made me determined to do it," West recalls.

After playing for a few banquets and civic affairs, West landed a job playing dinner music twice a week at the Geneva Country Club.

Joined Army in '72

By 1972 he was playing a few night spots in Grand Island and decided to enlist in the Army, intending to continue his music career with a Special Services unit.

Despite the recruiter's promises, West soon found himself a truck driver at Ft. Carson near Denver.

West didn't let that stop his career, however, and was soon making enough money in Denver bars with "Sam West and the Original Playmates" to pay fellow soldiers to stand his night duty.

One of West's superiors heard of his success and talents and asked him to form a group and go on the road to drum up support for the then fledgling all-volunteer Army. "I wasn't too excited because I was making good money downtown, but I decided to do it," West said.

After eight months touring every part of the country but California, West returned to Ft. Carson — and another misunderstanding with the Army.

"They promised to pay for wear and tear on the equipment we were using, which was all my own. But when we came back, they refused to pay," West said. So it was back to the Denver bars and the life of "a real rag entertainer."

Money Rolls In

The money continued to roll in and West's group made a demonstration tape for an album in Applewood, Colo., but his personal life was falling apart.

He and his wife, Gail, were married in June 1973 and shortly after the first of their children — Jennifer, 2, and Sam West V, 1 — was born, the relationship went on the rocks. "I knew something was wrong. I thought maybe I didn't want to be tied down," West said.

Then he met a 26-year-old sergeant and Church of the Nazarene minister, whom he found amusing at first. "Ron would sit and talk with me and ask me to go to his church and I'd kind of laugh at him," West said. "I didn't know it then, but he had his church praying for me."

West was suffering a nervous disorder that became so intense he had to go to the infirmary for shots to keep him from hyperventilating. "I'd scare myself into a frenzy. I had an intense fear of death and that nobody could help me," he says. "I was ready to give it all up and do away with myself."

Last December, West went to the Nazarene pastor as a last resort. "He gave me a little book that began, 'Does your life seem meaningless?' Everything in the book fit me.

"When we got down in the study and prayed, I could feel everything change. A peace came over me, and I knew I had found Christ."

West said faith doesn't solve all problems, but it makes them easier to face.

Bars Left Behind

The smoky Denver bars were soon behind him and his talented voice was put to work spreading the Word with a Colorado Gospel group.

He left the Army last June and returned to Nebraska, where he worked for Champion Home Builders in York before joining the police force.

Agreeing that his story sounds like the scenario for a soap opera, West said people accept him for what he has become. "I was a little uptight when I first went back to Geneva," he said, "but I found most people respect the heck out of you if you really believe."

The 21-year-old officer said his age and the street knowledge he collected working in bars help him in his police contacts with teen-agers.

"I can relate to young people very well," he said. "I can put myself in their place and really understand them." Police must earn the respect of young people, West said, not demand it.

West and another York officer are coaching a grade-school basketball team, and the young policeman is interested in helping establish a Golden Gloves boxing program in York.

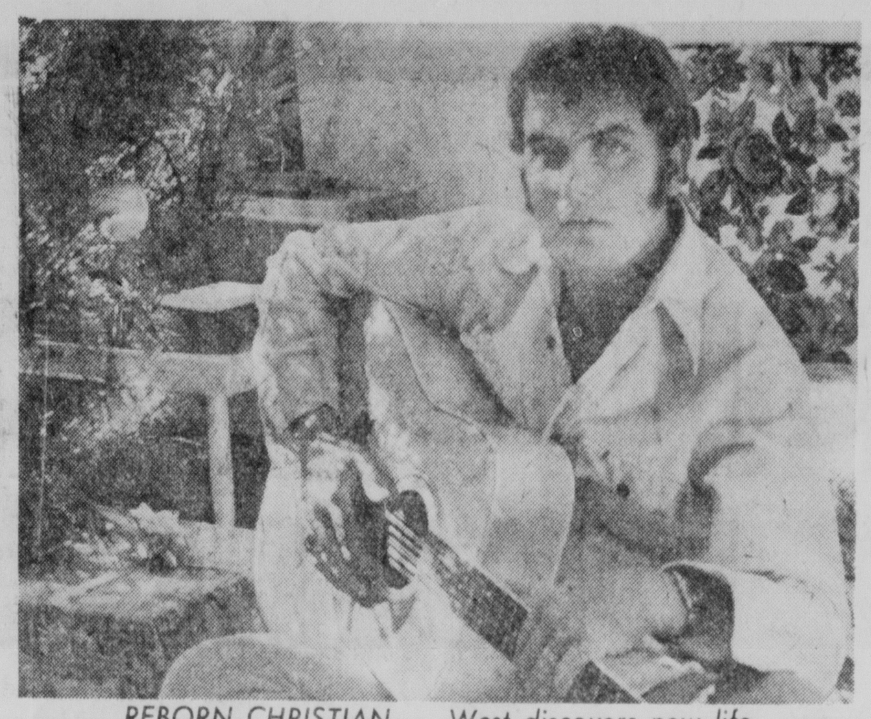

Athletics, Music

Athletics and music are the way to a young person's heart, according to West, who believes he has already seen results.

"There was one girl who was on the streets just driving around all night," he said. "Some people had given up on her, but I used my music and talked her into going to church with me."

West is studying for the Nazarene ministry, and once the pressures of learning to be a policeman are behind him, he hopes to work through other churches in Nebraska to carry his message through Gospel music.

Even though West beams with the excitement of a reborn Christian, the flicker of an entertainer is still there. "My one goal in life now is to cut a Gospel album," he said.

REBORN CHRISTIAN . . . West discovers new life.

Strippers Counter Religious Picketers

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Faced with the prospect of Christmas Day picketing by a religious group, owners of a burlesque theater kept the stage dark.

An official of the theater, where strippers have staged counter-demonstrations on the sidewalk, had insisted that the show would go on Christmas afternoon.

But the box office remained empty Thursday. A sign saying "Merry Christmas" stood next to one announcing the admission as $5.

A spokesman for the 170-member "Christ Is the Answer" caravan said the "brothers and sisters" who had been prepared to picket the Capitol Burlesque Theater would spend the rest of holiday at other tasks.

"We'll just go around collecting gifts for the needy," said Mark Gungor, 21, of Neillsville, Wis. "We'll definitely be back Friday."

For the past three weeks, Christmas shoppers in downtown Chattanooga were forced to side step the members of the evangelistic group and bikini-clad burlesque dancers sent into the street by theater manager Monique Starr.

In one instance, tempers flared as Carol Conners, a stripper who appeared in the movie "Deep Throat," began an exotic sidewalk dance.

Suspensions Dealt For Strip Poker

New Orleans (UPI) — Strip poker apparently is not in the true spirit of Christmas — at least not at a food stamp office, a city official has ruled.

Two top administrators at the food stamp office were dealth five-day suspensions because of their participation in a strip poker game. Game rules forbade touching.

City Finance director Henry G. Simmons said the game was at the office among four women and four men last week. He suspended program administrator Cornelius Smith and assistant administrator Melvin Pierre, saying Pierre participated and Simmons knew the game was going on but did not stop it.

Word got out after a security officer told his boss about playing in the game.

Kennedys Ski In Sun Valley

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — The Kennedy clan took to the ski slopes of Sun Valley on Christmas Day, and Jackie Onassis planned to join them later.

"We're quite certain she's coming," a spokeswoman for this central Idaho resort said. She said Mrs. Onassis, widow of President John F. Kennedy and Aristotle Onassis, was believed to be bringing her children, John and Caroline Kennedy.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and his family were seen walking around the village together on Wednesday, the spokeswoman said.

Kennedy went cross-country skiing with a friend, Marshall Bennett, while his wife Joan and children descended the downhill runs. Edward Jr., who had one leg amputated because of bone cancer, skis on a single ski.

Also at the resort for the Christmas holiday are Pat Lawford and her children and the Steven Smith family. Mrs. Lawford, ex-wife of actor Peter Lawford, and Mrs. Smith are sisters of the senator.

Big Mailing Ahead

Bible, Guitar, Revolver York Policeman's Tools

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

York — Following in the footsteps of the Fisherman has transformed Sam West from a hard-drinking country and western singer in Denver bars into a reborn Christian serving as a York policeman

Armed with a Bible, a growing repertory of Gospel music and a pistol, which he will use if he must, West finds his new job a good opportunity to testify for the Lord

"I don't feel it's a hindrance to me," he says. "I feel I can be a good cop and a good Christian too"

West was adopted by his grandparents as a child. Although both were good musicians, he didn't pick up a guitar until his ninth-grade summer in Geneva.

"Grandfather said, 'You'll never learn to play that darn thing I don't know why you fool with it.' Well, that made me determined to do it," West recalls

After playing for a few banquets and civic affairs, West landed a job playing dinner music twice a week at the Geneva Country Club

Joined Army in '72

By 1972 he was playing a few night spots in Grand Island and decided to enlist in the Army, intending to continue his music career with a Special Services unit.

Despite the recruiter's promises, West soon found himself a truck driver at Ft Carson near Denver

West didn't let that stop his career, however, and was soon making enough money in Denver bars with "Sam West and the Original Playmates" to pay fellow soldiers to stand his night duty.

One of West's superiors heard of his success and talents and asked him to form a group and go on the road to drum up support for the then fledgling all-volunteer Army "I wasn't too excited because I was making good money downtown, but I decided to do it," West said.

After eight months touring every part of the country but California, West returned to Ft Carson — and another misunderstanding with the Army

"They promised to pay for wear and tear on the equipment we were using, which was all my own But when we came back, they refused to pay," West said. So it was back to the Denver bars and the life of "a real rag entertainer."

Money Rolls In

The money continued to roll in and West's group made a demonstration tape for an album in Applewood, Colo., but his personal life was falling apart

He and his wife, Gail, were married in June 1973 and shortly after the first of their children — Jennifer, 2, and Sam West V, 1 — was born, the relationship went on the rocks "I knew something was wrong I thought maybe I didn't want to be tied down," West said.

Then he met a 26-year-old sergeant and Church of the Nazarene minister, whom he found amusing at first. "Ron would sit and talk with me and ask me to go to his church and I'd kind of laugh at him," West said "I didn't know it then, but he had his church praying for me."

West was suffering a nervous disorder that became so intense he had to go to the infirmary for shots to keep him from hyperventilating. "I'd scare myself into a frenzy. I had an intense fear of death and that nobody could help me," he says "I was ready to give it all up and do away with myself"

Last December, West went to the Nazarene pastor as a last resort. "He gave me a little book that began, 'Does your life seem meaningless?' Everything in the book fit me

"When we got down in the study and prayed, I could feel everything change. A peace came over me, and I knew I had found Christ"

West said faith doesn't solve all problems, but it makes them easier to face

The smoky Denver bars were soon behind him and his talented voice was put to work spreading the Word with a Colorado Gospel group

He left the Army last June and returned to Nebraska, where he worked for Champion Home Builders in York before joining the police force

Agreeing that his story sounds like the scenario for a soap opera, West said people accept him for what he has become "I was a little uptight when I first went back to Geneva," he said, "but I found most people respect the heck out of you if you really believe"

The 21-year-old officer said his age and the street knowledge he collected working in bars help him in his police contacts with teen-agers

"I can relate to young people very well," he said. "I can put myself in their place and really understand them" Police must earn the respect of young people, West said, not demand it

West and another York officer are coaching a grade-school basketball team, and the young policeman is interested in helping establish a Golden Gloves boxing program in York.

Athletics, Music

Athletics and music are the way to a young person's heart, according to West, who believes he has already seen results.

"There was one girl who was on the streets just driving around all night," he said. "Some people had given up on her, but I used my music and talked her into going to church with me."

West is studying for the Nazarene ministry, and once the pressures of learning to be a policeman are behind him, he hopes to work through other churches in Nebraska to carry his message through Gospel music

Even though West beams with the excitement of a reborn Christian, the flicker of an entertainer is still there "My one goal in life now is to cut a Gospel album," he said

REBORN CHRISTIAN . . . West discovers new life.

Free Husker Ticket List Made Public

University of Nebraska officials have released the names of 199 Nebraska public officials and media representatives who received at least two free tickets to Cornhusker football games this fall.

The disclosure came as a direct result of requests made by newspapers.

The list included 32 state senators, 10 of the 11 NU regents, 2 former governors, 5 former regents and 2 former chancellors. There also were 158 names of men and women associated with Nebraska newspapers, radio and television stations — most of them at executive levels.

Richard L. Fleming, director of information at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, reported that approximately 50 more media representatives who received tickets have voluntarily paid the full price for them. So did 15 state senators who received two season tickets each.

Two Refuse

Two other lawmakers, Steve Fowler of Lincoln and Ernest Chambers of Omaha, refused to take any tickets, Fleming said.

Source media representatives advised the university they would no longer take tickets, even given the option of paying for them.

Fleming said Gov. J. J. Exon was "among the first" paying full price for 14 season tickets. The chief executive got them free in 1974.

Other state constitutional officers who paid for complimentary season tickets tendered them:

Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas, Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann, State Treasurer Frank Marsh, State Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson.

State senators insisting on paying full price for a pair of season tickets, according to Fleming, were Douglas Bereuter of Utica, George Burrows of Adams, Herbert Duis of Gothenburg, Don Dworak of Columbus, Maurice Kremer of Aurora, Richard Marvel of Hastings, Myron Rumery of North Platte, Loran Schmit of Bellwood, Jerome Warner of Waverly and John Cavanaugh III, James Dickinson, Tom Fitzgerald, Eugene Mahoney, Harold Moylan and William Skarda, all of Omaha.

Mayor Pays

Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis paid for tickets traditionally given free to the Capital City mayor. Payment also was made, Fleming said, by former Gov. Robert Crosby and Clerk of the Legislature Vincent Brown.

Legislative Fiscal Analyst Eldon Ehrlich, like Chambers and Fowler, turned down the university's offer of free tickets.

And so, Fleming said, did UNL Student Regent Jim Say.

In previous years, regents were eligible for a dozen complimentary tickets to each game. In 1975, only two free tickets were provided, although regents could purchase extras if they wished.

Some did, Fleming said.

The following State senators received two complimentary season tickets to the 1975 football games:

Gary Anderson, Axtell

Second Phase Of Tax Reform Hearings To Begin Soon—Smith

Chappell (UPI) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said she has been advised by the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee that the second phase of tax reform hearings will begin soon.

It is during those hearings, she said, that the estate tax reforms she has proposed will be considered.

"These improvements are long overdue and there is widespread interest in getting changes approved, especially an increase in the exemption from $60,000 to $200,000," Mrs. Smith said.

On another matter, Mrs. Smith said the six-month extension of the tax reductions coupled with a commitment to put a ceiling on spending "may be the most important legislation we passed in the first session of the 94th Congress.

"It puts into law the principle of relating cuts in taxes to cuts in spending."

She added that taxes will continue to be collected at reduced levels to stimulate the economy spending limitation "being put into effect will prevent the reduction in revenue from fueling another round of cruel inflation."

This, Mrs. Smith said, is "sound policy that will benefit both individuals and the nation as a whole."

She was critical of the "Christmas tree" bill, "loaded with something for everyone," which was brought up just before adjournment for immediate enactment.

She said the measure which made her uneasy was the one making certain amendment to the Medicare Act.

Action on the bill was delayed a day to allow time for study.

Widow Files Suit In Freak Accident

Omaha (AP) — The widow of a 23-year-old Omaha man killed in a Nov. 9 traffic accident on Interstate 480 in the city has filed suit in Douglas County District Court seeking damages.

The action was filed by attorneys for Mrs. Diane Burns, whose husband, Thomas, was killed in a freak mishap while trying to aid a motorist who had had an accident.

Mrs. Burns is seeking general and special damages of an unspecified amount, plus reimbursement for the cost of her husband's funeral.

The suit names Donald Johnson, 51, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, as defendant, and claims that he was driving negligently at the time of the mishap, in which Burns fell to his death from an elevated section of the Interstate.

8 Students Go To Soviet Union

Fremont — Eight Midland Lutheran College students and their professor, Dr. Martin Trautrimas, will tour eastern Europe and the Soviet Union Jan. 5-29. The trip, part of an interim class, will include Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Latvia, Lithuania and Poland. "We hope to get away from the propaganda of guides and, during our free time, get around on our own to observe and engage people in conversation," Dr. Trautrimas said. He was born in Lithuania and grew up in northern Germany.

Ak-Sar-Ben Shows Garner Stars

Omaha — Andy Williams, John Davidson, Bob Newhart, Florence Henderson and the Mills Brothers headline the 1976 Ak-Sar-Ben member shows lineup, according to Sydney L. Cate, member shows chairman. He said production costs have forced dues to increase to $18. Newhart and Henderson kick off the season March 23-28. All shows are scheduled Tuesday through Sunday with performances at 7:30 p.m. those days and matinees at 2 p.m. Saturdays and Sunday.

Christmas Fire Destroys Barn

Schuyler — A Christmas morning fire destroyed a wood and tin barn about three miles southeast of here, killing nine feeder pigs. The barn was owned by Melvin Sahs. The flames, which broke out about 1 a.m., apparently were started by a propane water heater. About 20 breeding sows in the barn at the time managed to escape safely.

Jewish Men Work On Christmas

Omaha — A group of Jewish businessmen here once again volunteered their services so their Christian friends could be off work on Christmas. Volunteers of the B'nai B'rith Cornhusker Lodge manned facilities at Children's Memorial Hospital, Nebraska Methodist Hospital and Eppley Care Center. Leonard Shefren, project chairman, said the coverage was expanded to include the Eppley Care Center this year "because of the enthusiasm and growing support of the volunteers."

Sunshine Act Draws Ag Clouds

Omaha (AP) — The proposed Nebraska Political Reform Act of 1976, called the "Sunshine Act," is beginning to draw some opposition from the farm front.

The act is designed to increase the accountability of public officials, and to restrict lobbying, campaign financing and conflict of interest in government.

The Coalition for Open Government and Common Cause in Nebraska are sponsoring a petition drive to get the measure on next November's ballot, and a variety of groups have formed a coalition to support that effort, according to Illga Dambro, Nebraska's Common Cause coordinator.

So far, the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Assn. (NLFA) has taken the strongest stand against the Sunshine Act, while other farm groups are still studying the proposal.

NLFA officials say that because of the stringent campaign financing requirements in the act, qualified candidates would be discouraged from seeking office, thusly producing a less effective government.

The Nebraska Stock Growers Assn. (NSGA) has taken no official stand on the measure yet, but is urging its members to read the petitions carefully before signing.

Writing in an NSGA publication, Mickey Stewart, the association's executive director, said, "While the general outline of the proposal sounds promising, it may be that very few worthwhile people would endure the hassle and exposure it (the act) calls for in order to run for office."

The Nebraska State School Boards Assn. has also expressed skepticism about the effort to get the issue on the ballot, saying the Sunshine proposal might better be labeled "anti-government petition."

Sunshine proponents say the act will diminish the influence money has on government, and will make government more responsive to the needs of people in the long run.

New Trial Won In Rape Case

St. Louis (UPI) — Vincent Garza of Omaha has won a new trial on a 1970 rape charge on grounds that his attorney failed to represent him properly before and during his trial.

A panel of the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals split 2-1 in ruling that a public defender had been negligent in not calling certain witnesses and in not looking into a report of the crime that had been published in the Omaha World-Herald.

Garza was found guilty and was sentenced to 20-35 years in prison for the rape of 17-year-old girl Sept. 4, 1970. Former Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark said the attorney should have called to testify four boys who had accompanied Garza and the victim on an automobile ride the day of the alleged rape.

Clark said the defense lawyer should have investigated police accounts of the case that had been published in the newspaper. The victim was quoted by police as having given a version of the incident different from her testimony at the trial.

The court ordered a new trial even as it acknowledged that the defense lawyer, identified in the opinion only as Mr. Cullan, had "unfortunate family difficulties" immediately before the trial, including the death of one of his children and the hospitalization of his wife and another child.

Clark was joined in the opinion by Judge Donald P. Lay.

In a dissent, Judge Donald R. Ross said the majority had engaged in "hindsight concerning the trial tactics of the defense attorney."

Ross said he agreed with a lower court judge who ruled that Cullan "had conducted a vigorous and knowledgeable defense, not impeded by lack of necessary investigation or preparation."

Omahan Arrested In California

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man wanted for armed robbery and for questioning in the shooting of a Ralston police officer last month has been arrested in San Francisco.

Omaha police said James Washington, 30, was picked up early Tuesday after San Francisco police made a check on outstanding warrants through the National Crime Information Center computer.

Washington is wanted in connection with the Nov. 18 shooting of William White, 28, a Ralston patrolman.

White was wounded twice in the chest by a man he stopped near a major southwest Omaha intersection.

The officer has since been released from the hospital, and is recuperating at home, officials said Thursday.

If Washington refuses to waive extradition, police said, Douglas County authorities will proceed with efforts to return him to Nebraska.

Blackmail Possible

Des Moines (UPI) — The discovery that records concerning customers and their sexual practices were being kept by Des Moines massage parlors and adult book stores could indicate the possibility they were used for blackmail, Iowa Atty. Gen. Richard Turner said.

Free Husker Ticket List Made Public

University of Nebraska officials have released the names of 199 Nebraska public officials and media representatives who received at least two free tickets to Cornhusker football games this fall.

The disclosure came as a direct result of requests made by newspapers.

The list included 32 state senators, 10 of the 11 NU regents, 2 former governors, 5 former regents and 2 former chancellors. There also were 158 names of men and women associated with Nebraska newspapers, radio and television stations — most of them at executive levels.

Richard L. Fleming, director of information at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, reported that approximately 50 more media representatives who received tickets have voluntarily paid the full price for them. So did 15 state senators who received two season tickets each.

Two Refuse

Two other lawmakers, Steve Fowler of Lincoln and Ernest Chambers of Omaha, refused to take any tickets, Fleming said.

Source media representatives advised the university they would no longer take tickets, even given the option of paying for them.

Fleming said Gov. J. J. Exon was "among the first" paying full price for 14 season tickets. The chief executive got them free in 1974.

Other state constitutional officers who paid for complimentary season tickets tendered them:

Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas, Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann, State Treasurer Frank Marsh, State Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson.

State senators insisting on paying full price for a pair of season tickets, according to Fleming, were Douglas Bereuter of Utica, George Burrows of Adams, Herbert Duis of Gothenburg, Don Dworak of Columbus, Maurice Kremer of Aurora, Richard Marvel of Hastings, Myron Rumery of North Platte, Loran Schmit of Bellwood, Jerome Warner of Waverly and John Cavanaugh III, James Dickinson, Tom Fitzgerald, Eugene Mahoney, Harold Moylan and William Skarda, all of Omaha.

Mayor Pays

Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis paid for tickets traditionally given free to the Capital City mayor. Payment also was made, Fleming said, by former Gov. Robert Crosby and Clerk of the Legislature Vincent Brown.

Legislative Fiscal Analyst Eldon Ehrlich, like Chambers and Fowler, turned down the university's offer of free tickets.

And so, Fleming said, did UNL Student Regent Jim Say.

In previous years, regents were eligible for a dozen complimentary tickets to each game. In 1975, only two free tickets were provided, although regents could purchase extras if they wished.

Some did, Fleming said.

The following State senators received two complimentary season tickets to the 1975 football games:

Second Phase Of Tax Reform Hearings To Begin Soon—Smith

Chappell (UPI) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said she has been advised by the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee that the second phase of tax reform hearings will begin soon.

It is during those hearings, she said, that the estate tax reforms she has proposed will be considered.

"These improvements are long overdue and there is widespread interest in getting changes approved, especially an increase in the exemption from $60,000 to $200,000," Mrs. Smith said.

On another matter, Mrs. Smith said the six-month extension of the tax reductions coupled with a commitment to put a ceiling on spending "may be the most important legislation we passed in the first session of the 94th Congress.

"It puts into law the principle of relating cuts in taxes to cuts in spending."

She added that taxes will continue to be collected at reduced levels to stimulate the economy spending limitation "being put into effect will prevent the reduction in revenue from fueling another round of cruel inflation."

This, Mrs. Smith said, is "sound policy that will benefit both individuals and the nation as a whole."

She was critical of the "Christmas tree" bill, "loaded with something for everyone," which was brought up just before adjournment for immediate enactment.

She said the measure which made her uneasy was the one making certain amendment to the Medicare Act.

Action on the bill was delayed a day to allow time for study.

Widow Files Suit In Freak Accident

Omaha (AP) — The widow of a 23-year-old Omaha man killed in a Nov. 9 traffic accident on Interstate 480 in the city has filed suit in Douglas County District Court seeking damages.

The action was filed by attorneys for Mrs. Diane Burns, whose husband, Thomas, was killed in a freak mishap while trying to aid a motorist who had had an accident.

Mrs. Burns is seeking general and special damages of an unspecified amount, plus reimbursement for the cost of her husband's funeral.

The suit names Donald Johnson, 51, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, as defendant, and claims that he was driving negligently at the time of the mishap, in which Burns fell to his death from an elevated section of the Interstate.

8 Students Go To Soviet Union

Fremont — Eight Midland Lutheran College students and their professor, Dr. Martin Trautrimas, will tour eastern Europe and the Soviet Union Jan. 5-29. The trip, part of an interim class, will include Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Latvia, Lithuania and Poland. "We hope to get away from the propaganda of guides and, during our free time, get around on our own to observe and engage people in conversation," Dr. Trautrimas said. He was born in Lithuania and grew up in northern Germany.

Ak-Sar-Ben Shows Garner Stars

Omaha — Andy Williams, John Davidson, Bob Newhart, Florence Henderson and the Mills Brothers headline the 1976 Ak-Sar-Ben member shows lineup, according to Sydney L. Cate, member shows chairman. He said production costs have forced dues to increase to $18. Newhart and Henderson kick off the season March 23-28. All shows are scheduled Tuesday through Sunday with performances at 7:30 p.m. those days and matinees at 2 p.m. Saturdays and Sunday.

Christmas Fire Destroys Barn

Schuyler — A Christmas morning fire destroyed a wood and tin barn about three miles southeast of here, killing nine feeder pigs. The barn was owned by Melvin Sahs. The flames, which broke out about 1 a.m., apparently were started by a propane water heater. About 20 breeding sows in the barn at the time managed to escape safely.

Jewish Men Work On Christmas

Omaha — A group of Jewish businessmen here once again volunteered their services so their Christian friends could be off work on Christmas. Volunteers of the B'nai B'rith Cornhusker Lodge manned facilities at Children's Memorial Hospital, Nebraska Methodist Hospital and Eppley Care Center. Leonard Shefren, project chairman, said the coverage was expanded to include the Eppley Care Center this year "because of the enthusiasm and growing support of the volunteers."

Sunshine Act Draws Ag Clouds

Omaha (AP) — The proposed Nebraska Political Reform Act of 1976, called the "Sunshine Act," is beginning to draw some opposition from the farm front.

The act is designed to increase the accountability of public officials, and to restrict lobbying, campaign financing and conflict of interest in government.

The Coalition for Open Government and Common Cause in Nebraska are sponsoring a petition drive to get the measure on next November's ballot, and a variety of groups have formed a coalition to support that effort, according to Illga Dambro, Nebraska's Common Cause coordinator.

So far, the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Assn. (NLFA) has taken the strongest stand against the Sunshine Act, while other farm groups are still studying the proposal.

NLFA officials say that because of the stringent campaign financing requirements in the act, qualified candidates would be discouraged from seeking office, thusly producing a less effective government.

The Nebraska Stock Growers Assn. (NSGA) has taken no official stand on the measure yet, but is urging its members to read the petitions carefully before signing.

Writing in an NSGA publication, Mickey Stewart, the association's executive director, said "While the general outline of the proposal sounds promising, it may be that very few worthwhile people would endure the hassle and exposure it the act calls for in order to run for office."

The Nebraska State School Boards Assn. has also expressed skepticism about the effort to get the issue on the ballot, saying the Sunshine proposal might better be labeled "anti-government petition."

Sunshine proponents say the act will diminish the influence money has on government, and will make government more responsive to the needs of people in the long run.

Unicam To Face Controversial Issues

By United Press International

State Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue is predicting the 1976 legislative session will probably be "the most volatile in a decade."

Lewis, chairman of the education committee, said his committee will face many controversial issues, including school finance, redistricting, the role of educational service units and coordination of higher education.

Commenting on financing problems that Nebraska education faces, Lewis said, "Nebraska has the dubious distinction of being first in the country in the number of school districts and being the third highest in dependence on local sources for financing education."

He noted further property tax rates are increasing and Nebraska is among the lowest in state aid per school district, averaging about 28%. The national average is 43%.

Lewis said there will be a new state aid bill this year and suggested the answer might be gradually increasing aid to the schools until it reaches 50%.

State Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston plans to re-introduce his bill which would up state aid $15 million annually until it reaches half the public schools' operational costs.

Lewis said he is "not that concerned about the need to mandate reorganization, if there are other steps available."

He suggested legislation be drawn to encourage elementary school districts to join larger high school districts to benefit from the broader curriculum and tax base which would result.

The Bellevue lawmaker said he spent some time in western Nebraska and found there are some schools so isolated they could not feasibly be merged or closed.

"We would be making a serious mistake by putting an arbitrary limit on the number of districts," Lewis said.

The education committee has agreed to draft two bills dealing with educational service units. One would define their roles and the other would allow districts to leave a unit.

The committee flatly rejected a State Education Department task force recommendation that wants mandatory membership in the units with closer ties to the department.

Regarding coordination of higher education, Lewis said he will resurrect LB579 to create a statutory coordinating commission.

Absent IRS Worker Prosecuted

Omaha (AP) — An Internal Revenue Service employe who took unreported leave from his job was prosecuted "as a deterrent" to other government employes, U.S. Atty. Daniel Wherry said Wednesday.

"Government employes often are in positions of public trust and therefore are held to high standards of performance and integrity," Wherry said.

For that reason, he said the prosecution of Darwin L. Severson was important, even though Severson was only charged with a misdemeanor.

Severson pleaded guilty to the charge, which essentially accused him of taking leave from his job without reporting it to superiors.

The government alleged that Severson failed to request, and receive approval for, a seven-day absence in September, 1974. After accepting Severson's guilty plea, U.S. Magistrate Richard Peck fined him $350.

Severson was chief of the office branch in the IRS's collection division until his retirement Nov. 7, according to IRS public affairs officer Charles O'Grady.

Asst. U.S. Atty. T. Roderic Anderson said Severson, 56, was employed by the IRS for more than 30 years.

While Severson did not tell Peck that he had been forced to resign, Anderson said he did tell the magistrate that he "would have liked to keep working."

Anderson said Severson told Peck that he had made restitution to the government for the unreported leave he took.

Odds Less Than 50%

Pierre, S.D. (AP) — A survey of legislators indicates that repeal of the sales tax on food has a less than even chance of passing the 1976 Legislature.

Goodyear Issues Recall For Tires

Akron, Ohio (UPI) — The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. recalled 12,500 automobile tires because some failed laboratory compliance tests conducted by the U.S. Transportation Department.

Recalled were BR70-13 Load Range B, Custom Steelgard with raised white letters and serial numbers starting with the letters "MK" and ending with 015 through 185 and 304 through 524.

Tires recalled will be replaced without charge by Goodyear stores and dealers if returned for inspection within 60 days after receipt of notification, a company spokesman said.

New Trial Won In Rape Case

St. Louis (UPI) — Vincent Garza of Omaha has won a new trial on a 1970 rape charge on grounds that his attorney failed to represent him properly before and during his trial.

A panel of the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals split 2-1 in ruling that a public defender had been negligent in not calling certain witnesses and in not looking into a report of the crime that had been published in the Omaha World-Herald.

Garza was found guilty and was sentenced to 20-35 years in prison for the rape of 17-year-old girl Sept. 4, 1970. Former Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark said the attorney should have called to testify four boys who had accompanied Garza and the victim on an automobile ride the day of the alleged rape.

Clark said the defense lawyer should have investigated police accounts of the case that had been published in the newspaper. The victim was quoted by police as having given a version of the incident different from her testimony at the trial.

The court ordered a new trial even as it acknowledged that the defense lawyer, identified in the opinion only as Mr. Cullan, had "unfortunate family difficulties" immediately before the trial, including the death of one of his children and the hospitalization of his wife and another child.

Clark was joined in the opinion by Judge Donald P. Lay.

In a dissent, Judge Donald R. Ross said the majority had engaged in "hindsight concerning the trial tactics of the defense attorney."

Ross said he agreed with a lower court judge who ruled that Cullan "had conducted a vigorous and knowledgeable defense, not impeded by lack of necessary investigation or preparation."

Omahan Arrested In California

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man wanted for armed robbery and for questioning in the shooting of a Ralston police officer last month has been arrested in San Francisco.

Omaha police said James Washington, 30, was picked up early Tuesday after San Francisco police made a check on outstanding warrants through the National Crime Information Center computer.

Washington is wanted in connection with the Nov. 18 shooting of William White, 28, a Ralston patrolman.

White was wounded twice in the chest by a man he stopped near a major southwest Omaha intersection.

The officer has since been released from the hospital, and is recuperating at home, officials said Thursday.

If Washington refuses to waive extradition, police said, Douglas County authorities will proceed with efforts to return him to Nebraska.

Blackmail Possible

Des Moines (UPI) — The discovery that records concerning customers and their sexual practices were being kept by Des Moines massage parlors and adult book stores could indicate the possibility they were used for blackmail, Iowa Atty. Gen. Richard Turner said.

Omaha Uses Subterfuge To Avoid Losing Funds

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky said Wednesday that City Hall had to resort to a subterfuge to avoid losing $155,000 in federal funds.

The city had expected to be reimbursed for the money when it proceeded with emergency demolition of three blocks in the Central Park Mall.

Officials said the local office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development had informally okayed it. But Washington HUD officials later said it wouldn't reimburse the city because an environmental impact statement wasn't filed.

City officials said they had filed such a statement earlier on the entire mall project, though not specifically on the demolition.

The city apparently will get around it by using money budgeted to pay for a landfill site to pay for the demolition. And the landfill site will now be made part of Omaha's Housing and Community Development plans, qualifying it for federal reimbursement from HUD.

Unicam To Face Controversial Issues

By United Press International

State Sen Frank Lewis of Bellevue is predicting the 1976 legislative session will probably be "the most volatile in a decade"

Lewis, chairman of the education committee, said his committee will face many controversial issues, including school finance, redistricting, the role of educational service units and coordination of higher education

Commenting on financing problems that Nebraska education faces, Lewis said, "Nebraska has the dubious distinction of being first in the country in the number of school districts and being the third highest in dependence on local sources for financing education"

He noted further property tax rates are increasing and Nebraska is among the lowest in state aid per school district, averaging about 28%. The national average is 43%

Lewis said there will be a new state aid bill this year and suggested the answer might be gradually increasing aid to the schools until it reaches 50%

State Sen Gerald Koch of Ralston plans to re-introduce his bill which would up state aid $15 million annually until it reaches half the public schools' operational costs

Lewis said he is "not that concerned about the need to mandate reorganization, if there are other steps available"

He suggested legislation be drawn to encourage elementary school districts to join larger high school districts to benefit from the broader curriculum and tax base which would result

The Bellevue lawmaker said he spent some time in western Nebraska and found there are some schools so isolated they could not feasibly be merged or closed

"We would be making a serious mistake by putting an arbitrary limit on the number of districts," Lewis said

The education committee has agreed to draft two bills dealing with educational service units. One would define their roles and the other would allow districts to leave a unit.

The committee flatly rejected a State Education Department task force recommendation that wants mandatory membership in the units with closer ties to the department.

Regarding coordination of higher education, Lewis said he will resurrect LB579 to create a statutory coordinating commission

Absent IRS Worker Prosecuted

Omaha (AP) — An Internal Revenue Service employe who took unreported leave from his job was prosecuted "as a deterrent" to other government employes, U S Atty Daniel Wherry said Wednesday

"Government employes often are in positions of public trust and therefore are held to high standards of performance and integrity," Wherry said

For that reason, he said the prosecution of Darwin L Severson was important, even though Severson was only charged with a misdemeanor

Severson pleaded guilty to the charge, which essentially accused him of taking leave from his job without reporting it to superiors

The government alleged that Severson failed to request, and receive approval for, a seven-day absence in September, 1974

After accepting Severson's guilty plea, U S Magistrate Richard Peck fined him $350

Odds Less Than 50%

Pierre, S D (AP) — A survey of legislators indicates that repeal of the sales tax on food has a less than even chance of passing the 1976 Legislature

Severson was chief of the office branch in the IRS's collection division until his retirement Nov 7, according to IRS public affairs officer Charles O'Grady

Asst. U S Atty T Roderic Anderson said Severson, 56, was employed by the IRS for more than 30 years

While Severson did not tell Peck that he had been forced to resign, Anderson said he did tell the magistrate that he "would have liked to keep working"

Anderson said Severson told Peck that he had made restitution to the government for the unreported leave he took

Fire Chief Raps Code For Blaze

Sydney, Australia (UPI) — The New South Wales fire chief Thursday blamed lenient building codes for the Christmas morning fire that swept through the Savoy Hotel, killing 14 holiday guests and injuring more than 25 others.

Authorities, who earlier said 18 persons died in the pre-dawn blaze, lowered the toll by four, explaining confusion had arisen becaue the injured were taken to three different hospitals.

The fire, which trapped many of the victims in hotel rooms where they suffocated from the dense smoke, was the second Christmas tragedy in a row for Australia.

Last Dec. 25, Cyclone Tracy smashed through the northern city of Darwin, demolishing 90% of the homes and killing more than 50 persons.

Police, citing heavy fire damage near a wall unit housing the Savoy's electrical circuit, believed an electrical fault may have caused the fire.

Detectives combed the building for signs of arson.

Fire officials said the blaze apparently started in an elevator shaft on the ground floor of the four-story hotel in Sydney's night club district, startling awake some 75 holiday guests.

Most of the dead were trapped in smoke-filled rooms and corridors. Some victims apparently died while trying to jump to safety.

New South Wales Fire Chief Fred Davies warned that similar fires could break out in other buildings under 84 feet high.

Such structures are not covered by the Height of Buildings Act which lays down stringent codes for fire prevention.

"The hotel was not breaking fire regulations, but it still had no fire protection," Davies said.

"The fire brigade is powerless to do anything about old buildings," he said.

At least 26 persons were injured, eight seriously.

Eight fire brigades fought the blaze for six hours and ambulances ran a shuttle service to Sydney hospitals.

Supersonic Flight Debut Postponed

Moscow (UPI) — The Soviet Union postponed the Christmas Day inauguration of the world's first supersonic airline service because of bad weather.

A responsible employe at Moscow's Domodedovo Airport said the first regular flight of the TU144 was delayed a day because of heavy snow at Alma Ata, capital of the Kazakh republic.

The Soviet government declined comment on the postponement. The ministry of civil aviation said it had "no knowledge" of the flight.

But the Moscow airport employe said the 1,900-mile flight between Moscow and Alma Ata was rescheduled for 8 a.m. Friday.

Last week, Nikolai Bykov, deputy civil aviation minister, said the 1,550 mile per hour "Konkordski" would start non-passenger service Christmas Day, flying over remote regions because of "some unresolved questions" about the aircraft.

He said the plane would carry only freight and mail until mid-1976.

Air France and British Airways have announced plans to begin Supersonic Concorde passenger service from Paris to Rio De Janeiro and from London to the Persian gulf state of Bahrein Jan. 21.

Bykov said in a news conference last week the TU144, operated by the National Airline Aeroflot, would eventually go into international passenger service if granted approval by other governments.

The Concorde has been refused permission to land in New York and Washington because of environmental considerations. Bykov said such questions also influenced Soviet officials in their choice of the Moscow-Alma Ata route.

"We chose this route to see whether the noise produced by the plane is really that great," he said, adding there had been "a big hubbub" about noise and pollution in the west.

The Soviet plane, an improvement on the prototype that crashed at the 1973 Paris air show killing 14 persons, will make the flight to Alma Ata in one hour and 55 minutes against the four hours taken by a Subsonic IL62.

Huskers, Sun Devils Primed For Fiesta

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Tempe, Ariz. — Nebraska, co-champion of the Big Eight Conference, and undefeated Arizona State, champion of the Western Athletic Conference, meet at 1 p.m., Lincoln time, Friday in the fifth Fiesta Bowl football game.

A sellout crowd of over 51,000 and a national television audience will watch these two nationally ranked powers in what is expected to be an "emotional" game for both.

The Cornhuskers, who won ten games in a row before falling to Oklahoma, view the game as an opportunity for 25 seniors to bow out as "winners," which they have been most of the time.

During the past three seasons, Nebraska has won 28 games, lost six and tied one and ended up ranked in the top ten each year in final Associated Press polls.

"We were very disappointed in not getting a big bowl bid," co-captain Terry Luck said Wednesday. "But after being here and seeing everything this bowl does for you, there's no way you can classify the Fiesta Bowl minor. It's really a great honor to play in this bowl, and especially against a fine team like Arizona State."

Arizona State Coach Frank Kush and his Sun Devil players look at the game as an opportunity to show the rest of the football world that the pollsters have been wrong through the years in not rating ASU and other Western Athletic Conference teams higher.

Despite being undefeated at 11-0, the Sun Devils are ranked seventh in both the AP and United Press International polls while Nebraska goes into the game fifth in UPI and sixth in AP.

In five of the past six seasons, Arizona State has won 11 games four times and ten another time. Only last season, when ASU went 7-5, were the Sun Devils not ranked in the top 11 in that period, but their highest finish has been sixth in 1970.

Over the past five seasons, ASU ranks first in scoring offense (37.2 points a game), first in total offense (478 yards a game), fifth in passing offense (193 yards a game), and fifth in rushing defense (yielding 124 yards a game).

The Fiesta Bowl game, theoretically, will decide if Sun Devil claims they've been underranked are correct.

Arizona State is 4-1 against Big Eight teams, but three of the victories are over Kansas State, the Big Eight's all-time last place team.

The Sun Devils defeated Missouri in the 1972 Fiesta Bowl 49-35. That same season Nebraska whipped the Tigers 62-0. Also, in 1972, ASU won from K-State 56-14 while Nebraska beat the Wildcats 59-7.

Kush goes into the Fiesta Bowl with an impressive 150-39-1 overall record, but his current team gave him the most satisfaction in all of his 18 seasons at ASU.

"No, I didn't envision this team going undefeated," Kush said. "Of course, we never go into a game figuring to lose, but to win them all you need an absolute combination of skill, position talent, experienced veterans and luck."

He opened the season with a sophomore at the skill position of quarterback and two sophs at the wide receiver spots and all came through.

"For the most part we didn't have super talent, but we made weekly progress and always seemed to do what we had to do. We had poise and pride that belied our experience."

Nebraska, too, opened with inexperienced quarterbacking, but also had an almost all-new offensive line, new linebackers, and other first-year starters at key defensive back spots.

Like Arizona State, the Huskers under third-year coach Tom Osborne, showed improvement every week, escaped a couple of potential upsetters (Kansas and Oklahoma State), and rolled into the Oklahoma game with a spotless record.

The only time during the season the Huskers had turnover problems was against the Sooners, losing two interceptions, four fumbles and the game 35-10.

So, after recovering from that disappointment — after "sleeping" on a Fiesta bid — the squad elected to come here to atone for that loss and go out as winners.

Nebraska will be going for its seventh consecutive victory in a bowl game (ASU) has won four in a row).

The Huskers will line up the same way they did at Oklahoma and all of the 85 players here are healthy and ready to play.

Senior fullback Tony Davis will be trying to get at least 35 yards in order to become Nebraska's all-time rushing leader.

Davis has been a Nebraska hero in the past two bowl victories over Florida (1974 Sugar Bowl) and Texas (1974 Cotton Bowl).

"I'm real impressed with their (ASU's) overall team speed," Osborne said. "Arizona State always has had a lot of quickness in their running attack and this club doesn't seem to be any different. They play an I-formation and we have faced that a lot this year. They also play a 5-2 defense, which we see all the time in the Big Eight.

"I do know this we'll have our work cut out for us playing Arizona State, especially in their own stadium. If any of our kids are fat-headed, we'll get that out of them real quick. It's a big game for us, and we won't be going through the motions, I promise you."

Coaches Capsules

Arizona State's Frank Kush: "We're not a 'physical' team, not physical enough to attack Nebraska head-on. But we're a good team, and have a lot of cohesiveness on and off the field. The kids are enthused about the game, and are in no way apprehensive about playing a power like Nebraska."

Nebraska's Tom Osborne: "I felt in preseason we had enough weaknesses that we were looking at a possible 6-5 or 7-4 year. A lot of people had to come through for us, and they did. We got improvement from a lot of people and we got tremendous leadership from our older kids."

Will The Best Go On?

Tempe, Ariz. — Nebraskans have had a lot to cheer about since Bob Devaney came to Lincoln and turned around a sick program and started all this bowl-trip business.

The Huskers went 21 years with just one bowl invitation, went through eight coaches before Devaney arrived, and won just 68 games while losing 125 in the interim. Since then the NU record is 129-26-3.

The Fiesta Bowl game against Arizona State Friday afternoon will be the 12th Nebraska appearance in a post-season classic in the last 15 years, including seventh year in a row. The Huskers have won eight of them, including the last six in a row.

Tom Osborne, Devaney's hand-picked successor, has kept up the winning ways of his predecessor in three short seasons. His record is 28-6-1, with two bowl victories included.

Had the Huskers beaten Oklahoma and then won the Orange Bowl game against Michigan, it's likely Osborne would get a lot of votes for coach of the year.

Even with the loss to the Sooners, the job done by Osborne and his staff has to rank among the great feats in Nebraska's football history.

CBS Television Game

The Nebraska-Arizona State game will be the second half of a nationally televised doubleheader Friday. Kickoff here will be at 2 p.m. Lincoln Time.

The first game, starting at 10 a.m. will match the surprising Kansas Jayhawks against Pittsburgh, in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex. I'll take the Jayhawks 30-21. I picked Nebraska 24-14 in my Christmas Day Column.

Rumor has it that Pitt back Tony Dorsett has had influenza and has lost 15 pounds. Even with him healthy, I'd take Kansas, which was the Big Eight's leading team in rushing offense.

The Jayhawks also tied Nebraska as the conference team which protected the football best. Both squads had plus-14 ratios in the giveaway-takeaway department. Kansas reversed its 4-7 record of a year ago and scored impressive victories over Oklahoma, Missouri and Wisconsin.

Star handicapper Mort Olshan likes Kansas, too, by 27-17. He talks not of Pittsburgh's minus-6 ration and says, "Simply stated KU is the steadier, more dependable football team."

This weekend's only other bowl game will see Colorado meeting Texas. Olshan says it will be the Buffaloes 27-16 if the Longhorns have to play without quarterback Marty Akins, the Football Writers Association All-American pick. If Akins plays, Olshan says it'll be CU by 24-20.

Bowl Football Notes

Here are my other Bowl picks: Florida over Maryland in the Gator Bowl Monday night; North Carolina State over West Virginia in the Peach Bowl and Alabama over Penn State in the Sugar Bowl New Year's Eve.

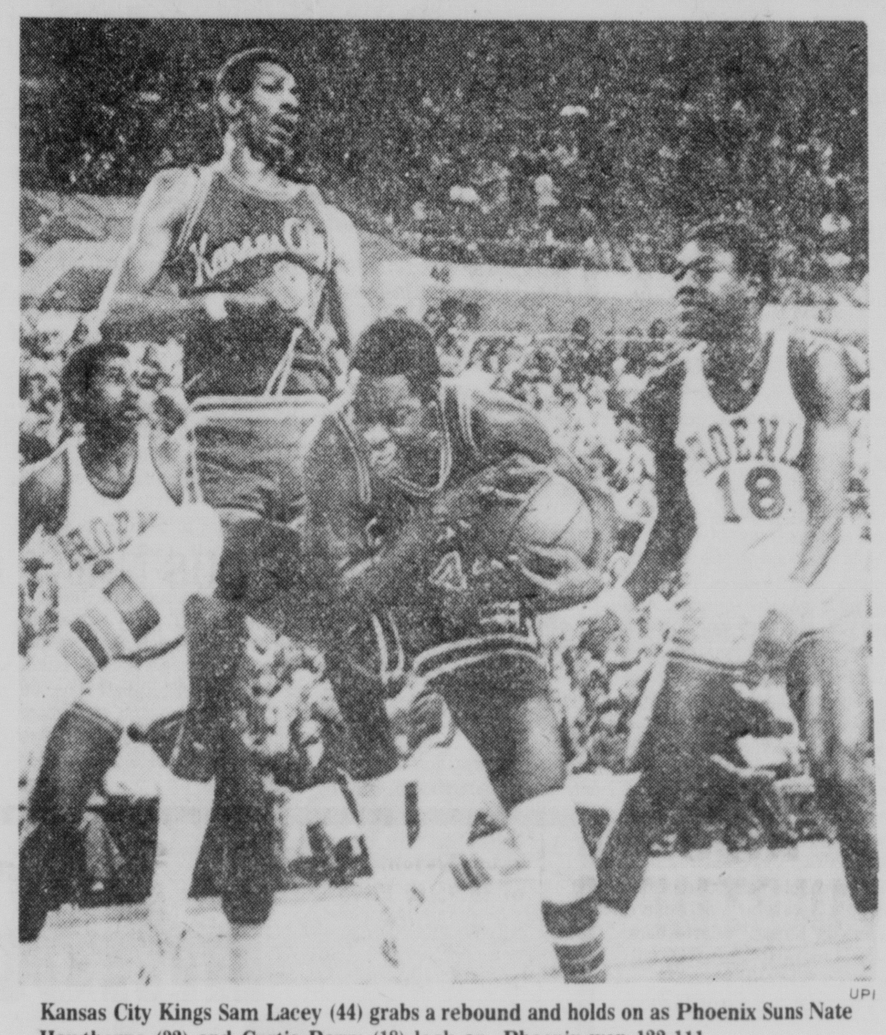

It'll be Ohio State over UCLA in the Rose Bowl, Akransas over Georgia in the Cotton Bowl and Oklahoma over Michigan in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 1.

Olshan's picks: North Carolina State 27, West Virginia 20; Alabama 17, Penn State 13; Arkansas 27, Georgia 17; Ohio State 30, UCLA 20; Oklahoma 24, Michigan 13.

Looking at the Big Eight basketball tournament, Olshan has ranked Nebraska at 10-1 with Oklahoma State and Oklahoma. Those odds were made, however, before Nebraskas's sweep of the Roadrunner Invitational and road victory over Vanderbilt.

Kansas State is listed a 2-1 favorite with Kansas and Missouri at 3-1. Colorado and Iowa State are 20-1.

On his latest Hoop Ratings, Kansas is a three-point favorite in Saturday's first round game. Other first-round choices are K-State, 16 over Iowa State, Missouri, 4 over Oklahoma State, and Oklahoma, 5 over Colorado.

UPI

Kansas City Kings Sam Lacey (44) grabs a rebound and holds on as Phoenix Suns Nate Hawthorne (32) and Curtis Perry (18) look on. Phoenix won 122-111.

Plaza Fiesta's Davis Transplanted Nebraskan

By RANDY YORK

Scottsdale, Ariz. — Two years ago, when the Fiesta Bowl decided it wanted a Southwestern type Mardi Gras, Don Davis was the one put in charge.

Ironically, he has solid Nebraska ties. He was a tailback for Lincoln High in 1957 and played on Nebraska's freshman football team that fall.

His father, Bob Davis, is a former standout quarterback at Kentucky and was Nebraska's offensive backfield coach from 1949 to 1956.

"No one told me this was supposed to be a victory party for Nebraska," says Davis, a Scottsdale resident for 17 years and a 12-year Arizona State season ticket holder.

Regardless of the outcome of Friday's Fiesta Bowl between the Cornhuskers and Sun Devils, Davis' job is to supply Arizona hospitality at the second Plaza Fiesta at the Phoenix Civic Center.

He's hoping for a better turnout than last year's initial venture, which drew 4,000. "It was too confusing last year," admits Davis. "We had a free area and a pay area and people didn't know which way to turn."

This year, participation in the Plaza Fiesta has a price tag. But Davis is convinced the post-game entertainment from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. is worth the price of admission.

Headlining the show is Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass. Nebraska's Scarlet and Cream singers will perform from 8 to 9 p.m. and Davis believes they might be the key for an expected crowd of 8,000 to 7,000.

A local Phoenix television station and CBS have agreed to allow the Plaza Fiesta continuous replay of the bowl throughout Friday night on a giant 11 by 14-foot screen.

"We've got Judy Winters, a local singer, the Phoenix Boys Choir and the Strumming Amigos, who are just super," Davis points out. "The Nashville Brass has two performances — one at 9 and another at 10:30.

"We've also lined up another very popular local group (Azure Blue)," adds Davis. "The place is huge and there's been a lot of work put into setting this thing up — about a thousand man hours."

Fifty live Christmas trees, decorated in centennial fashion with red, white and blue lights, are the major showpieces. Huge ASU and Nebraska banners are likely to be equally popular.

Davis' own home decorations drew attention here Christmas Day. Since he's rooting for Arizona State, Davis designed a couple of appropriate Fiesta decorations.

One shows a pitchfork impaling a husk of Nebraska corn, saying "Fork 'Em Devils." Another pitchfork disects a big orange, saying "Sorry About The Orange Bowl. But the Fiesta Bowl Is Better."

It made for some good-natured kidding from Davis' father-in-law, Lincoln's Dr. Art Smith, who follows the Cornhuskers weekly at home and on the road.

"I've got to root for the home team," insists Davis. "It kind of hurts going against Nebraska since I've followed them from coast-to-coast, from Los Angeles to Miami, these past few years.

"But," he reasons, "ASU is a good bunch of kids and I've been pulling for them all these years. I've never seen so much enthusiasm for a football game since I've lived down here.

"The arguments and harassments are unbelievable," he says. "I love it. I've talked to Nebraska players and coaches and Arizona State players and coaches and they're all up. We even went to watch the band practice today and they're up. Most people are looking for an outstanding game."

Fiesta Wager

A friendly Fiesta Bowl wager between A. J. Bayless Markets of Arizona and Hinky Dinky Supermarkets of Nebraska is not in dollars, but in pounds — pounds of beef.

Bayless has wagered a 1,000-pound steer that ASU will triumph over NU and Hinky Dinky has put a similar amount of Nebraska corn-fed beef "on the hoof."

If the Sun Devils win, Hinky Dinky will donate the beef to the ASU band. If the Cornhuskers win, Bayless will donate its steer to the NU Athletic Department.

Big Eight Cage Meet Challenge To Huskers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas State, Kansas and Missouri appear to be the teams to beat in the 30th annual Big Eight Conference Preseason Basketball Tournament which opens Friday night at Kemper Arena.

If another club has more than a so-so chance, it's Nebraska.

Missouri goes into the preseason fireworks with the best record of 7-2. K-State is 6-2, and Kansas and Nebraska have carved 5-3 marks.

Kansas, the defending champion, has been bothered by injuries but, despite the handicaps, came close to beating two ranked teams, Notre Dame and Kentucky.

Missouri ran up a 6-0 record before defeats by UCLA and Hawaii. After losing to the Rainbows in Honolulu last Saturday night, the Tigers bounced back Monday night and outscored Hawaii 99-91 even though they had to finish the game with only four players.

K-State has suffered both of its losses on the road. The Wildcats haven't won the preseason event since 1963 but a lot of people think this may be their year.

K-State and Iowa State, winless after seven outings, get the tournament under way. Their game will be followed by Oklahoma State's battle with Missouri. The Cowboys are 4-4.

After the opening Saturday night game between Colorado and Oklahoma, both 2-5, Kansas makes its debut against Nebraska, a team that seemingly has come on strong of late.

There will be plenty of stars . . . Kansas' Norm Cook, K-State's Mike Evans and Chuckie Williams, Missouri's Willie Smith, Iowa State's Hercle Ivy, Nebraska's Jerry Fort to name a few.

Kansas may be strengthened by Paul Mokeski, a seven-foot freshman, who has seen no action yet because of a severly pulled hamstring.

What are Kansas' chances of repeating?

"I've said this before but it still holds true — we're improving from game to game," says Jayhawk Coach Ted Owens. "Depth is a problem and will be throughout the season. But I'm still as confident as ever that we can develop into a very good basketball team. We're making progress toward that goal although the injuries have impeded it."

After a break Sunday, the tourney will continue with the semifinals Monday night. The championship game will be Tuesday night.

'Cinderella' Tag To Steelers?

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Franco Harris thinks the media's image of the Baltimore Colts as this year's Cinderella team is a lot of bunk.

"If you think of Baltimore, they have a history of being in the playoffs. If anybody is a Cinderella team, we still are," says Harris, the top running back of the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

"After so many years we've finally gotten there. It took us a long time, and we're not done being there.

"Plus," the fourth-year player added following a Christmas Day practice, "it makes us feel you're talking about a bunch of old men. But basically we're still one of the youngest teams in the league."

The large spot surprised some sports fans. The new-look Colts, directed by first-year coach Ted Marchiboda and quarterbacked by 24-year-old Bert Jones, sported a miserable 1-4 record before they went on an impressive nine-game winning streak to finish the season.

Jones was a big factor, completing 59 per cent of his passes for 18 TDs while being intercepted only eight times.

Rams' Harris, McCutcheon May See Playoff Action

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams' Christmas stocking was filled with a couple of pleasant surprises Thursday as Round 1 of the National Football League playoffs against the St. Louis Cardinals fast approached.

Following Ram workouts Christmas Day, a club spokesman reported that sore-arm quarterback James Harris was back throwing the ball and that running back John Cappelletti, stricken with mononucleosis a week ago, had returned to the backfield.

Coach Chuck Knox said he probably won't make an announcement until the morning of the game whether Harris of Ron Jaworski will start at quarterback Saturday afternoon. The coach also said there was a chance that Cappelletti would see action.

In other injury notes, 15-year veteran tackle Charlie Cowan reported that his sprained ankle felt a little better Thursday, but he was still held out of the drills.

Running back Lawrence McCutcheon, prevented from making an attempt to reach the 1,000-yard mark for the third straight year in the Pittsburgh game because of a pulled thigh muscle, was now expected to play Saturday.

If Jaworski does get the call to start against St. Louis, it's a sure bet the second-year pro will be ready.

"Chuck Knox knows me pretty well," said Jaworski. "I have all the confidence in the world in my own ability. Believe me, that will never change.

"The Pittsburgh game meant quite a bit to me because I got a chance to contribute. Up to now, I haven't made many contributions to the Rams. I'd like to help this club get to the Super Bowl.

"It's not easy when you're not playing. You can get discouraged. I don't think a coach wants a guy who is satisfied with sitting on the bench, either. He wants a guy who wants to start. That's what winning is all about."

Fire Chief Raps Code For Blaze

Sydney, Australia (UPI) — The New South Wales fire chief Thursday blamed lenient building codes for the Christmas morning fire that swept through the Savoy Hotel, killing 14 holiday guests and injuring more than 25 others.

Authorities, who earlier said 18 persons died in the pre-dawn blaze, lowered the toll by four, explaining confusion had arisen becaue the injured were taken to three different hospitals.

The fire, which trapped many of the victims in hotel rooms where they suffocated from the dense smoke, was the second Christmas tragedy in a row for Australia.

Last Dec. 25, Cyclone Tracy smashed through the northern city of Darwin, demolishing 90% of the homes and killing more than 50 persons.

Police, citing heavy fire damage near a wall unit housing the Savoy's electrical circuit, beheved an electrical fault may have caused the fire.

Detectives combed the building for signs of arson.

Fire officials said the blaze apparently started in an elevator shaft on the ground floor of the four-story hotel in Sydney's night club district, startling awake some 75 holiday guests.

Most of the dead were trapped in smoke-filled rooms and corridors. Some victims apparently died while trying to jump to safety.

New South Wales Fire Chief Fred Davies warned that similar fires could break out in other buildings under 84 feet high.

Such structures are not covered by the Height of Buildings Act which lays down stringent codes for fire prevention.

"The hotel was not breaking fire regulations, but it still had no fire protection," Davies said.

"The fire brigade is powerless to do anything about old buildings," he said.

At least 26 persons were injured, eight seriously.

Eight fire brigades fought the blaze for six hours and ambulances ran a shuttle service to Sydney hospitals.

Supersonic Flight Debut Postponed

Moscow (UPI) — The Soviet Union postponed the Christmas Day inauguration of the world's first supersonic airline service because of bad weather.

A responsible employe at Moscow's Domodedovo Airport said the first regular flight of the TU144 was delayed a day because of heavy snow at Alma Ata, capital of the Kazakh republic.

The Soviet government declined comment on the postponement. The ministry of civil aviation said it had "no knowledge" of the flight.

But the Moscow airport employe said the 1,900-mile flight between Moscow and Alma Ata was rescheduled for 8 a.m. Friday.

Last week, Nikolai Bykov, deputy civil aviation minister, said the 1,550 mile per hour "Konkordski" would start non-passenger service Christmas Day, flying over remote regions because of "some unresolved questions" about the aircraft.

He said the plane would carry only freight and mail until mid-1976.

Air France and British Airways have announced plans to begin Supersonic Concorde passenger service from Paris to Rio De Janeiro and from London to the Persian gulf state of Bahrein Jan. 21.

Bykov said in a news conference last week the TU144, operated by the National Airline Aeroflot, would eventually go into international passenger service if granted approval by other governments.

The Concorde has been refused permission to land in New York and Washington because of environmental considerations Bykov said such questions also influenced Soviet officials in their choice of the Moscow-Alma Ata route.

"We chose this route to see whether the noise produced by the plane is really that great," he said, adding there had been "a big hubbub" about noise and pollution in the west.

The Soviet plane, an improvement on the prototype that crashed at the 1973 Paris air show killing 14 persons, will make the flight to Alma Ata in one hour and 55 minutes against the four hours taken by a Soviet IL62.

Jayhawks Favored In Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Pittsburgh's Panthers and Kansas' Jayhawks are hoping to give their fans a day-late Christmas present Friday with a victory in the 41st annual Sun Bowl football clash.

The 18th-rated and slightly favored Jayhawks will square off against the 20th-ranked Panthers at 11:10 CST before a sellout crowd of more than 30,000 and a nationwide television audience.

Sunshine with temperatures in the lower 50s is expected for the game.

Pitt Coach Johnny Majors and Kansas' boss, Bud Moore, have been saying since the teams arrived in El Paso Saturday that the Panthers and Jayhawks appear to be as evenly matched as the identical 7-4 records they will carry into the game.

"On paper it looks like the teams are pretty even," said Majors, who believes it will take at least three touchdowns to win.

Moore agreed the teams are about equal and said he thinks the game should be a good one because, "We both have pretty good football teams or we wouldn't be here."

Both teams finished their preparations on Christmas Day with light workouts described by the coaches as "polishing sessions."

The Panthers and the Jayhawks followed similar paths to their Sun Bowl invitations.

Both built successful seasons around potent offensive units and solid defensive squads. And both came up with some of the major upsets this season with Kansas turning back Orange Bowl-bound Oklahoma and Pitt thumping Cotton Bowl-bound Georgia and perennial national power Notre Dame.

It's the offenses that appear to hold the key to the outcome of the first meeting between teams from the two schools.

The two clubs boast two of the nation's premier offensive players in Kansas' quarterback Nolan Cromwell and Pitt tailback Tony Dorsett.

"Cromwell is an outstanding option quarterback," Majors said of the junior signal caller who earned Big Eight offensive player of the year honors while directing the Kansas wishbone attack.

Majors said the Jayhawk quarterback is the key to Kansas' offense and added, "We'll have to try to slow Cromwell."

Moore said his players face a similar task in stopping Pitt.

"Pittsburgh is an excellent overall football team, and of course in Tony Dorsett it may have one of the two or three best running backs in the country," Moore said. "Obviously it will be important for us to slow him down if we're to have a chance at winning."

Cromwell, who became one of only four quarterbacks ever to rush for more than 1,000 yards in a season with 1,124 yards this year, and his Kansas mates keep the ball on the ground most of the time.

When Cromwell doesn't carry the ball he likes to give it to halfback Laverne Smith, who piled up 910 yards, or fullback Norris Banks, who stepped off 648 yards.

Pitt tries to balance its attack with Dorsett, a second team All-American who gained 1,544 yards this season, and fullback Elliott Walker, who gained 780 yards rushing, handling the running chores. The passing is left to quarterbacks Robert Haygood and Matt Cavanaugh, who share signal calling duties. The two combined for 1,115 aerial yards this season.

Cage Rivalries Spark Tourney

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

If you thought you had to get to Pershing Auditorium early to find good seats for the traditional East-Northeast basketball matchups of the past, try this on for size.

There may not be any seats for the next encounter.

Well, there would be a few if the matchup materializes in the holiday tournament at East High Friday and Saturday, but 3,500 is a far cry from what Pershing can handle.

With Millard and Ralston joining Northeast and East in a boys and girls holiday tournament, the possibility of two intra-city rivalries can materialize if both of the Northeast and East teams advance to the finals Saturday.

Friday's action sends the East girls team against Millard's at 9:30 a.m. and the two respective boys teams following at 11:30 a.m.

Fiesta Break

Northeast and Ralston will come back at 5:30 p.m. for the girls game and 7:30 p.m. for the boys, giving the spectators a chance to break for the Fiesta Bowl game.

Should Northeast and East pass their opening tests, East High principal Jim Huge says a shoe horn might be in order for Saturday's 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. title contests.

"We talked about moving the finals to the Nebraska Coliseum if both Northeast and East won in the first round," Huge says. "But we would have had to rent it under a contingency basis and it was just too much trouble."

"If we were guaranteed that both East and Northeast would make the finals, I would have opted for the Coliseum," East athletic director Phil Sprague adds. "We would make it financially if the two Lincoln teams were at the Coliseum for the finals. But probably not if both teams didn't make it.

"We'll just have to take people first come, first served and fill it up," Sprague says. "We hate to do it, but there really isn't any other choice. We found out it's not cheap to run a holiday tournament."

"It would be a little home court advantage for us to play the game at East," Huge says. "But Northeast plays home games here too, so that shouldn't be a factor."

If the finals do include both Lincoln teams, the girls segment of the tournament will get even more exposure since the gym is almost certain to fill around the 5:30 p.m. tip off.

"We would really hate to turn anyone away," Huge says. "But fire regulations just won't permit overfilling the gym."

Other Tourneys

If the gym does indeed fill up, and fans are turned away, there are two other Lincoln area holiday tournaments to enjoy.

Lincoln Pius X will be in action at Waverly while area Class C and D schools are scheduled for the W-Club Tournament at Nebraska Wesleyan. Both tournaments are also Friday, Saturday affairs.

Monday and Tuesday, the same situation might arise with another holiday meet at Lincoln High involving Southeast, Lincoln High, Papillion and Fremont.

Should the Links and the Knights make Tuesday's finals, seats could also be at a premium.

Look-alikes Texas, Colorado Prepared

HOUSTON (UPI) — Coaches Bill Mallory and Darrell Royal, the innovative and traditional, the upstart and old pro of collegiate postseason football, match their similar Colorado and Texas teams Saturday afternoon in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Bowl officials are smiling at the matchup, the best in the game's 17 years. In national rankings Texas is ninth and Colorado 11th.

Kickoff before a national television audience and an expected sellout in the Astrodome is 2:30 p.m. CST.

Each team has had several weeks to prepare after finishing rugged 9-2 seasons.

The Colorado Golden Buffaloes, under second-year head coach Mallory, were 5-2 and third place in the Big Eight. The Texas Longhorns backed into a share of the Southwest Conference crown with a 6-1 record.

Mallory has worked his team harder than Texas this week. His Christmas Eve and Christmas Day practices were not matched by Royal. But several Buffs players developed weary legs from all the practice on artificial turf.

During the regular season, both teams fell victim to Oklahoma, the Buffs by a point on a missed point after touchdown, the Longhorns by a touchdown on a late Sooner score.

Both utilized high scoring offenses led by big fullbacks.

"I expect Earl Campbell (the Texas super soph) to carry the ball 30 times," said Mallory, "especially if (Texas quarterback) Marty Akins does not play."

And Texas defenders, much lighter but more agile than Colorado's, can look for 20 or more bruising carries from Buffs' fullback Terry Kunz, who became the top single season rusher in Colorado history with 882 yards.

Campbell piled up more than 1,000 yards, but his will be tough yardage Saturday against a massive defensive line which will key on him with Akins out.

"I think they will pass more," said Buffs defensive end Troy Archer. "I don't think he's (freshman Ted Constanzo) the runner Akins is. But he can throw better."

Archer said his defensive unit has faced a wishbone offense, the Texas specialty, twice this season.

"You saw what we did to Kansas (24-21 Colorado), but did you know we held the Oklahoma offense to its lowest rushing day in three seasons?" he asked.

Texas can boost that in three games against Colorado, the combined score was 149 to 13. Colorado can come back that the most recent game was 27 years ago.

Also, on their two previous visits to the Houston bowl, Colorado has won impressively, had one of its players selected most valuable and set reams of records.

In beating Miami (Fla.) 31-21 in 1967 at Rice Stadium, Buffs' quarterback Bobby Anderson ran for 108 yards and was voted the top player. Four years later in the Astrodome, Colorado tailback Charlie Davis ripped for 202 yards as the Buffs beat Houston 29-17.

"We've got something to uphold, don't we?" said Mallory.

The fact that Colorado has not been to a bowl since 1972 has the Buffs excited about this one. Texas has been to a post-season game eight straight years.

"What, has Darrell lost his last two bowl games?" Mallory asked.

In 15 of the 19 seasons Royal has been at Texas, he has a 7-71 bowl record. His only other appearance at the Houston bowl was in 1966 when the Longhorns beat Ole Miss 19-0.

The Texas' visit to the Astrodome will be a first for Royal.

College Cage Tourneys Set

Columbia is in the middle of building up its basketball program while Indiana is tearing everyone else's down.

The apparent mismatch will be featured Friday in the opening of the 24th Holiday Festival Tournament at Madison Square Garden, one of a host of tournaments to be played around the country this weekend.

"The pairings were made by the same people who booked Custer and the Indians," joked Columbia Coach Tom Penders. "I think Bobby Knight's father-in-law made the pairings. I feel like I was on Monty Hall's 'Let's Make A Deal' and I chose the wrong door."

But seriously, Knight's hot-shot Hoosiers do pose a mountainous problem for Columbia, or any other club in the eight-team Holiday Festival field which also includes St. Bonaventure, Manhattan, St. John's, Temple, South Carolina and Villanova.

The Hoosiers, ranked No. 1 in the country, are not only prohibitive favorites to beat Columbia, but are favored to sweep through everyone else.

The Lions, with 11 sophomores on the 12-man roster, will play a stunning Big Ten team that walloped defending national champion UCLA on opening day and has remained firmly entrenched in the No. 1 spot from the start of the season.

"I've thought an awful lot about what we're going to do against them," Penders said. "I've had quite a few suggestions from the alumni that we stall against them, but I wouldn't play it like that. Unless of course I knew we could win that way, but we just don't have the personnel to do that."

Other tournaments getting under way Friday include:

—the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., with Wake Forest vs. St. Joseph's, Pa., and Florida vs. Jacksonville.

—the Pillsbury Classic at Minneapolis, with Penn State vs. Creighton and Butler vs. 19th-ranked Minnesota.

—the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore., with Florida State vs. 13th-ranked Washington and Northwestern vs. Oregon State.

—the Big Eight at Kansas City, with Iowa State vs. Kansas State and Oklahoma State vs. Missouri.

—the Ocean State Classic at Providence, R.I., with Rhode Island vs. Brown and Niagara vs. San Francisco.

—the Motor City Classic at Detroit, with George Washington vs. DePaul and Wyoming vs. Detroit.

—the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu, with St. Peter's vs. Southern California and Yale vs. Hawaii.

—the Holiday Classic at Louisville, with Texas A&M vs. Seattle and Kentucky State vs. 11th-ranked Louisville.

There will also be a holiday doubleheader at Raleigh, N.C., pitting Duke against Auburn and Western Kentucky against ninth-ranked North Carolina State.

Aspen may be a small car on the outside, but it's a big car on the inside. When you add up the front and rear leg-, head-, shoulder-, and hiproom, an Aspen sedan has over 15 inches more total room than a Cadillac Seville. And for a car that costs about a third as much as a Seville, that's unbelievable.

Huskers, Sun Devils Primed For Fiesta

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Tempe, Ariz. — Nebraska, co-champion of the Big Eight Conference, and undefeated Arizona State, champion of the Western Athletic Conference, meet at 1 p.m., Lincoln time, Friday in the fifth Fiesta Bowl football game.

A sellout crowd of over 51,000 and a national television audience will watch these two nationally ranked powers in what is expected to be an "emotional" game for both.

The Cornhuskers, who won ten games in a row before falling to Oklahoma, view the game as an opportunity for 25 seniors to bow out as "winners," which they have been most of the time.

During the past three seasons, Nebraska has won 28 games, lost six and tied one and ended up ranked in the top ten each year in final Associated Press polls.

"We were very disappointed in not getting a big bowl bid," co-captain Terry Luck said Wednesday. "But after being here and seeing everything this bowl does for you, there's no way you can classify the Fiesta Bowl minor It's really a great honor to play in this bowl, and especially against a fine team like Arizona State."

Arizona State Coach Frank Kush and his Sun Devil players look at the game as an opportunity to show the rest of the football world that the pollsters have been wrong through the years in not rating ASU and other Western Athletic Conference teams higher.

Despite being undefeated at 11-0, the Sun Devils are ranked seventh in both the AP and United Press International polls while Nebraska goes into the game fifth in UPI and sixth in AP.

In five of the past six seasons, Arizona State has won 11 games four times and ten another time. Only last season, when ASU went 7-5, were the Sun Devils not ranked in the top 11 in that period, but their highest finish has been sixth in 1970.

Over the past five seasons, ASU ranks first in scoring offense (37.2 points a game), first in total offense (478 yards a game), fifth in passing offense (193 yards a game), and fifth in rushing defense (yielding 124 yards a game).

The Fiesta Bowl game, theoretically, will decide if Sun Devil claims they've been underranked are correct.

Arizona State is 4-1 against Big Eight teams, but three of the victories are over Kansas State, the Big Eight's all-time last place team.

The Sun Devils defeated Missouri in the 1972 Fiesta Bowl 49-35. That same season Nebraska whipped the Tigers 62-0. Also, in 1972, ASU won from K-State 56-14 while Nebraska beat the Wildcats 59-7

Kush goes into the Fiesta Bowl with an impressive 150-39-1 overall record, but his current team gave him the most satisfaction in all of his 18 seasons at ASU.

"No, I didn't envision this team going undefeated," Kush said. "Of course, we never go into a game figuring to lose, but to win them all you need an absolute combination of skill, position talent, experienced veterans and luck."

He opened the season with a sophomore at the skill position of quarterback and two sophs at the wide receiver spots and all came through.

"For the most part we didn't have super talent, but we made weekly progress and always seemed to do what we had to do. We had poise and pride that belied our experience."

Nebraska, too, opened with inexperienced quarterbacking, but also had an almost all-new offensive line, new linebackers, and other first-year starters at key defensive back spots.

Like Arizona State, the Huskers under third-year coach Tom Osborne, showed improvement every week, escaped a couple of potential upsetters (Kansas and Oklahoma State), and rolled into the Oklahoma game with a spotless record.

The only time during the season the Huskers had turnover problems was against the Sooners, losing two interceptions, four fumbles and the game 35-10

So, after recovering from that disappointment — after "sleeping" on a Fiesta bid — the squad elected to come here to atone for that loss and go out as winners.

Nebraska will be going for its seventh consecutive victory in a bowl game (ASU) has won four in a row).

The Huskers will line up the same way they did at Oklahoma and all of the 85 players here are healthy and ready to play.

Senior fullback Tony Davis will be trying to get at least 35 yards in order to become Nebraska's all-time rushing leader.

Davis has been a Nebraska hero in the past two bowl victories over Florida (1974 Sugar Bowl) and Texas (1974 Cotton Bowl).

"I'm real impressed with their (ASU's) overall team speed," Osborne said. "Arizona State always has had a lot of quickness in their running attack and this club doesn't seem to be any different. They play an I-formation and we have faced that a lot this year. They also play a 5-2 defense, which we see all the time in the Big Eight.

"I do know this we'll have our work cut out for us playing Arizona State, especially in their own stadium. If any of our kids are fat-headed, we'll get that out of them real quick It's a big game for us, and we won't be going through the motions, I promise you."

Coaches Capsules

Arizona State's Frank Kush: "We're not a 'physical' team, not physical enough to attack Nebraska head-on. But we're a good team, and have a lot of cohesiveness on and off the field. The kids are enthused about the game, and are in no way apprehensive about playing a power like Nebraska."

Nebraska's Tom Osborne: "I felt in preseason we had enough weaknesses that we were looking at a possible 6-5 or 7-4 year. A lot of people had to come through for us, and they did. We got improvement from a lot of people and we got tremendous leadership from our older kids."

Will The Best Go On?

Tempe, Ariz. — Nebraskans have had a lot to cheer about since Bob Devaney came to Lincoln and turned around a sick program and started all this bowl-trip business.

The Huskers went 21 years with just one bowl invitation, went through eight coaches before Devaney arrived, and won just 68 games while losing 125 in the interim. Since then the NU record is 129-26-3.

The Fiesta Bowl game against Arizona State Friday afternoon will be the 12th Nebraska appearance in a post-season classic in the last 15 years, including seventh year in a row. The Huskers have won eight of them, including the last six in a row.

Tom Osborne, Devaney's hand-picked successor, has kept up the winning ways of his predecessor in three short seasons. His record is 28-6-1, with two bowl victories included.

Had the Huskers beaten Oklahoma and then won the Orange Bowl game against Michigan, it's likely Osborne would get a lot of votes for coach of the year.

Even with the loss to the Sooners, the job done by Osborne and his staff has to rank among the great feats in Nebraska's football history.

CBS Television Game

The Nebraska-Arizona State game will be the second half of a nationally televised doubleheader Friday. Kickoff here will be at 2 p.m. Lincoln Time.

The first game, starting at 10 a.m. will match the surprising Kansas Jayhawks against Pittsburgh, in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex. I'll take the Jayhawks 30-21. I picked Nebraska 24-14 in my Christmas Day Column.

Rumor has it that Pitt back Tony Dorsett has had influenza and has lost 15 pounds. Even with him healthy, I'd take Kansas, which was the Big Eight's leading team in rushing offense.

The Jayhawks also tied Nebraska as the conference team which protected the football best. Both squads had plus-14 ratios in the giveaway-takeaway department. Kansas reversed its 4-7 record of a year ago and scored impressive victories over Oklahoma, Missouri and Wisconsin.

Star handicapper Mort Olshan likes Kansas, too, by 27-17. He talks not of Pittsburgh's minus-6 ration and says, "Simply stated KU is the steadier, more dependable football team."

This weekend's only other bowl game will see Colorado meeting Texas. Olshan says it will be the Buffaloes 27-16 if the Longhorns have to play without quarterback Marty Akins, the Football Writers Association All-American pick. If Akins plays, Olshan says it'll be CU by 24-20.

Bowl Football Notes

Here are my other Bowl picks: Florida over Maryland in the Gator Bowl Monday night; North Carolina State over West Virginia in the Peach Bowl and Alabama over Penn State in the Sugar Bowl New Year's Eve.

It'll be Ohio State over UCLA in the Rose Bowl, Arkansas over Georgia in the Cotton Bowl and Oklahoma over Michigan in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 1.

Olshan's picks: North Carolina State 27, West Virginia 20; Alabama 17, Penn State 13; Arkansas 27, Georgia 17; Ohio State 30, UCLA 20; Oklahoma 24, Michigan 13.

Looking at the Big Eight basketball tournament, Olshan has ranked Nebraska at 10-1 with Oklahoma State and Oklahoma. Those odds were made, however, before Nebraskas's sweep of the Roadrunner Invitational and road victory over Vanderbilt.

Kansas State is listed a 2-1 favorite with Kansas and Missouri at 3-1. Colorado and Iowa State are 20-1.

On his latest Hoop Ratings, Kansas is a three-point favorite in Saturday's first round game. Other first-round choices are K-State, 16 over Iowa State, Missouri, 4 over Oklahoma State, and Oklahoma, 5 over Colorado.

Kansas City Kings Sam Lacey (44) grabs a rebound and holds on as Phoenix Suns Nate Hawthorne (32) and Curtis Perry (18) look on. Phoenix won 122-111.

Plaza Fiesta's Davis Transplanted Nebraskan

By RANDY YORK

Scottsdale, Ariz. — Two years ago, when the Fiesta Bowl decided it wanted a Southwestern type Mardi Gras, Don Davis was the one put in charge.

Ironically, he has solid Nebraska ties. He was a tailback for Lincoln High in 1957 and played on Nebraska's freshman football team that fall.

His father, Bob Davis, is a former standout quarterback at Kentucky and was Nebraska's offensive backfield coach from 1949 to 1956.

"No one told me this was supposed to be a victory party for Nebraska," says Davis, a Scottsdale resident for 17 years and a 12-year Arizona State season ticket holder.

Regardless of the outcome of Friday's Fiesta Bowl between the Cornhuskers and Sun Devils, Davis' job is to supply Arizona hospitality at the second Plaza Fiesta at the Phoenix Civic Center.

He's hoping for a better turnout than last year's initial venture, which drew 4,000. "It was too confusing last year," admits Davis. "We had a free area and a pay area and people didn't know which way to turn."

This year, participation in the Plaza Fiesta has a price tag But Davis is convinced the post-game entertainment from 5 p m to 1 a m. is worth the price of admission.

Headlining the show is Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass. Nebraska's Scarlet and Cream singers will perform from 8 to 9 p m. and Davis believes they might be the key for an expected crowd of 8,000 to 7,000.

A local Phoenix television station and CBS have agreed to allow the Plaza Fiesta continuous replay of the bowl throughout Friday night on a giant 11 by 14-foot screen.

"We've got Judy Winters a local singer, the Phoenix Boys Choir and the Strumming Amigos, who are just super," Davis points out. "The Nashville Brass has two performances — one at 9 and another at 10:30.

"We've also lined up another very popular local group (Azure Blue)," adds Davis. "The place is huge and there's been a lot of work put into setting this thing up — about a thousand man hours."

Fifty live Christmas trees, decorated in centennial fashion with red, white and blue lights, are the major showpieces Huge ASU and Nebraska banners are likely to be equally popular

Davis' own home decorations drew attention here Christmas Day. Since he's rooting for Arizona State, Davis designed a couple of appropriate Fiesta decorations

One shows a pitchfork impaling a husk of Nebraska corn, saying "Fork 'Em Devils." Another pitchfork disects a big orange, saying "Sorry About The Orange Bowl But the Fiesta Bowl Is Better."

It made for some good-natured kidding from Davis' father-in-law, Lincoln's Dr Art Smith, who follows the Cornhuskers weekly at home and on the road

"I've got to root for the home team," insists Davis "It kind of hurts going against Nebraska since I've followed them from coast-to-coast, from Los Angeles to Miami, these past few years.

"But," he reasons, "ASU is a good bunch of kids and I've been pulling for them all these years. I've never seen so much enthusiasm for a football game since I've lived down here.

"The arguments and harassments are unbelievable," he says. "I love it. I've talked to Nebraska players and coaches and Arizona State players and coaches and they're all up. We even went to watch the band practice today and they're up. Most people are looking for an outstanding game."

Fiesta Wager

A friendly Fiesta Bowl wager between A. J. Bayless Markets of Arizona and Hinky Dinky Supermarkets of Nebraska is not in dollars, but in pounds — pounds of beef.

Bayless has wagered a 1,000-pound steer that ASU will triumph over NU and Hinky Dinky has put a similar amount of Nebraska corn-fed beef "on the hoof."

If the Sun Devils win, Hinky Dinky will donate the beef to the ASU band If the Cornhuskers win, Bayless will donate its steer to the NU Athletic Department

Big Eight Cage Meet Challenge To Huskers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas State, Kansas and Missouri appear to be the teams to beat in the 30th annual Big Eight Conference Preseason Basketball Tournament which opens Friday night at Kemper Arena.

If another club has more than a so-so chance, it's Nebraska.

Missouri goes into the preseason fireworks with the best record of 7-2. K-State is 6-2, and Kansas and Nebraska have carved 5-2 marks

Kansas, the defending champion, has been bothered by injuries but, despite the handicaps, came close to beating two ranked teams, Notre Dame and Kentucky.

Missouri ran up a 6-0 record before defeats by UCLA and Hawaii After losing to the Rainbows in Honolulu last Saturday night, the Tigers bounced back Monday night and outscored Hawaii 99-91 even though they had to finish the game with only four players.

K-State has suffered both of its losses on the road The Wildcats haven't won the preseason event since 1963 but a lot of people think this may be their year.

K-State and Iowa State, winless after seven outings, get the tournament under way Their game will be followed by Oklahoma State's battle with Missouri. The Cowboys are 4-4.

After the opening Saturday night game between Colorado and Oklahoma, both 2-5, Kansas makes its debut against Nebraska, a team that seemingly has come on strong of late

There will be plenty of stars Kansas' Norm Cook, K-State's Mike Evans and Chuckie Williams, Missouri's Willie Smith, Iowa State's Hercle Ivy, Nebraska's Jerry Fort to name a few

Kansas may be strengthened by Paul Mokeski, a seven-foot freshman, who has seen no action yet because of a severly pulled hamstring

What are Kansas' chances of repeating?

I've said this before but it still holds true — we're improving from game to game," says Jayhawk Coach Ted Owens "Depth is a problem and will be throughout the season But I'm still as confident as ever that we can develop into a very good basketball team We're making progress toward that goal although the injuries have impeded it

After a break Sunday, the tourney will continue with the semifinals Monday night The championship game will be Tuesday night.

Rams' Harris, McCutcheon May See Playoff Action

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams' Christmas stocking was filled with a couple of pleasant surprises Thursday as Round 1 of the National Football League playoffs against the St Louis Cardinals last approached

Following Ram workouts Christmas Day, a club spokesman reported that sore-arm quarterback James Harris was back throwing the ball and that running back John Cappelletti, stricken with mononucleosis a week ago, had returned to the backfield

Coach Chuck Knox said he probably won't make an announcement until the morning of the game whether Harris or Ron Jaworski will start at quarterback Saturday afternoon. The coach also said there was a chance that Cappelletti would see action

In other injury notes, 15-year veteran tackle Charlie Cowan reported that his sprained ankle felt a little better Thursday, but he was still held out of the drills

Running back Lawrence McCutcheon, prevented from making an attempt to reach the 1,000-yard mark for the third straight year in the Pittsburgh game because of a pulled thigh muscle, was now expected to play Saturday

If Jaworski does get the call to start against St Louis, it's a sure bet the second-year pro will be ready

"Chuck Knox knows me pretty well," said Jaworski "I have all the confidence in the world in my own ability Believe me, that will never change

The Pittsburgh game meant quite a bit to me because I got a chance to contribute I p to now, I haven't made many contributions to the Rams I'd like to help this club get to the Super Bowl

It's not easy when you're not playing You can get discouraged I don't think a coach wants a guy who is satisfied with sitting on the bench, either. He wants a guy who wants to start That's what winning is all about."

'Cinderella' Tag To Steelers?

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Franco Harris thinks the media's image of the Baltimore Colts as this year's Cinderella team is a lot of bunk

"If you think of Baltimore, they have a history of being in the playoffs. If anybody is a Cinderella team, we still are," says Harris, the top running back of the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

"After so many years we've finally gotten there It took us a long time, and we're not done being there

"Plus," the fourth-year player added following a Christmas Day practice, "it makes us feel you're talking about a bunch of old men But basically we're still one of the youngest teams in the league."

The large spot surprised some sports fans The new-look Colts, directed by first-year coach Ted Marchiboda and quarterbacked by 24-year-old Bert Jones, sported a miserable 1-4 record before they went on an impressive nine-game winning streak to finish the season.

Jones was a big factor, completing 59 per cent of his passes for 18 TDs while being intercepted only eight times.

Steelers, Cards Picked In Playoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — For the Pittsburgh Steelers, Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings, home is where the heart is— and where the victory is, too. For the Los Angeles Rams, it just isn't in the Cards.

For the first time since the National Football League went to its current alignment and playoff formula, home fields have been decided on merit, not just by whim. That's probably why, in each game, the home team is the odds-makers' substantial favorite.

In three of four cases, we agree.

The Baltimore Colts have come so far so quickly. It's too bad the "impossible dream" has to end up as just that—impossible. Bert Jones, Lydell Mitchell & Co. won't be able to penetrate Pittsburgh's Steel curtain enough times to overcome Franco Harris, Terry Bradshaw and the Steelers' wealth of receivers.

A Pittsburgh victory on Saturday will set up what has almost become tradition in the NFL, a showdown with the Raiders. Cincinnati quarterback Ken Anderson will have his moments in Oakland on Sunday, but without a running game to complement his aerial game, the Bengals will falter.

In Minnesota on Sunday, the Vikings will force Dallas to go to the shotgun much too often. The result: the Cowboys will get blown off the field.

But on Saturday in Los Angeles, the remains of a less-than-awesome season will catch up with the Rams. Our Upset Special of the Week calls for the St. Louis Cardinals to strike quickly and often.

After a mark of 10-3 in the final week of action that put the regular-season record at 130-52 for a .714 percentage, here's what we look for this weekend on the bumpy road to the Super Bowl:

American Conference

Steelers 24, Colts 14

Some of the matchups, man for man, are gut-busting close. Bert Jones vs. Terry Bradshaw at quarterback. Lydell Mitchell vs. Franco Harris at running back. The Steel Curtain vs. the Looney Tunes.

But the edge has to go to Pittsburgh on experience. These Colts, while all fired up, may not be able to handle the "one loss and you're out" pressure. The Steelers have been through it all.

Raiders 27, Bengals 21

After Ken Anderson's aerials, which made Cincinnati second in conference passing, what has Coach Paul Brown got going for him on offense? Not much. The Bengals were 12th in AFC rushing.

Compare that to Oakland, a balanced third in passing and rushing with Pete Banaszak and Mark Van Eeghan doing the groundwork and Stabler throwing to Cliff Branch, Fred Biletnikoff and others.

National Conference

Cardinals 31, Rams 20

Granted, St. Louis' defense leaves a lot to be desired. The Cards win their games by bombing the opposition into submission while the Rams keep the scores down, their own included.

But Los Angeles is hurting. St. Louis will at least fend off the Rams, if not shut them down. Conversely, Los Angeles will have fits trying to tame the lightning assault led by Jim Hart, Terry Metcalf, Mel Gray, Jim Otis, etc.

Vikings 21, Cowboys 10

Can Dallas, mainly quarterback Roger Staubach, cope with the cold? Maybe. But can he handle Alan Page, Carl Eller, Bobby Bryant and the rest of the Viking defenders?

Probably not. That'll reduce much of the Cowboys' attack to run, run, shotgun pass and punt. Minnesota, with Chuck Foreman running and catching Fran Tarkenton's passes, will grind out the yardage and grind down the Cowboys.

Suns Topple Kings

PHOENIX (AP) — "We gained momentum in that second quarter, cut their lead down, and the momentum carried over," Coach John MacLoud said Thursday after his Phoenix Suns scored a 122-111 National Basketball Association victory over the Kansas City Kings.

"We got our intensity back in the last six minutes of the second quarter and in the second half . . . .We did a good job of jamming things in the middle," MacLeod added.

He was a lot more talkative than King's Coach Phil Johnson, who left the Arena without meeting with reporters and also barred them from the locker room.

Curtis Perry scored a season-high 27 points and Paul Westhal added 25 to pace the Suns to their seventh consecutive Christmas Day victory, raising their season record to 15-11. Kansas City, despite a season-high 39 points from Nate Archibald, now has lost seven in a row and is 10-19.

Larry McNeill scored 10 points and grabbed six rebounds as the Kings, shooting 64 per cent, jumped ahead 33-27 at the end of the first quarter. Archibald had eight points and five assists in the period.

Phoenix, with John Shumate scoring nine points, clawed back in the second quarter and went ahead 56-55. Archibald scored 16 points and with 11 assists helped Scott Wedman to the same number of points—all in the first half. Westphal had 15 points at an Arena-tying five steals in that half.

The Suns tied a team record with 10 steals in the first half.

Perry, with 12 points and six rebounds, helped Phoenix to an 85-82 third quarter lead. Keith Erickson, scoreless in the first half, netted eight points in the third quarter as Phoenix took control of the boards for the first time in the game.

During the first three quarters the Kings were shooting almost 60 per cent from the floor, and they ended the game at 54 per cent. Phoenix shot 56 per cent from the floor.

Wedman followed Archibald in scoring for the Kings with 28 points.

Bullets Tip Hawks, 99-94

Landover, Md. (UPI) — Dave Bing scored 11 points in the final quarter and Elvin Hayes added eight Thursday night to help the Washington Bullets rally to a 99-94 National Basketball Association victory over the Atlanta Hawks at Capital Centre.

The victory elevated the Bullets, now 15-13 for the season, into a tie with Atlanta for the NBA Central Division lead.

Bing, who had 22 points for the game, helped Washington make up a 10-point first-period deficit with 11 points in the first half. His three-point play with 7:06 remaining in the game tied the score 80-80 and his layup with 6:28 remaining gave the Bullets their first lead.

Atlanta's Tom Henderson scored 10 of his game-leading 26 points in the final quarter, including seven of the Hawks' last nine points to keep them in the game.

Henderson hit one of three foul shots with 52 seconds remaining to narrow the Bullet lead to 93-92, but Hayes scored on a layup from Bing and Bing added a pair of free throws in the last 32 seconds to seal the victory.

Hayes led the Bullets with 25 points, Bing added 22 and Phil Chenier 16. Following Henderson's 26 points was Tom Van Arsdale with 23, including ten of 12 field goal attempts.

Monroe Lifts Knicks Over Philadelphia

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Monroe put on a dazzling floor display and scored 27 points, including a clutch basket with 1:27 left and two free throws in the final minute, to lead the New York Knicks to 111-103 National Basketball Association victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Thursday night.

It was the Knicks' third victory in a row and their fifth in the last six games.

Philadelphia led 59-57 at the half but the Knicks took charge in the third quarter, outscoring their Atlantic Division rivals 26-18 behind Monroe. New York led 83-77 at the end of the quarter.

The 76ers came back in the final period behind Doug Collins and George McGinnis and closed the gap to two points, but Monroe and Walt Frazier controlled the ball enough to negate the 76ers' rally.

Collins had 30 points, McGinnis 29 and Fred Carter 20 for the 76ers.

Soviet Teams Eyeing Series

MONTREAL (AP) — Two Soviet hockey teams preparing for an exhibition series against eight National Hockey League clubs turned down a scheduled sightseeing tour of the picturesque Laurentian mountains Christmas Day to practice for their upcoming games.

Red Army and Wings held a joint three-hour practice at a west-end university arena under the watchful eye of their respective coaches, Konstantin Loktev and Boris Kulagin.

NHL officials had planned the sightseeing trip in order to give the Soviet teams a chance to relax, but the offer was refused.

After warming up their goalies for 15 minutes, the two teams then scrimmaged for the balance of the session.

The practice was closely watched by a handful of spectators who knew about the change in plans, including NHL President Clarence Campbell who dropped by to exchange greetings with Soviet officials.

The Soviets arrived in Montreal from Moscow Wednesday. The exhibition tour begins Sunday night in New York when Army faces the New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden.

The Wings play their first game Monday night in Pittsburgh against the Penguins.

New Orleans Nips Houston

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Pete Maravich, playing in his first game in six weeks, stole the ball twice in the closing seconds Thursday to give the New Orleans Jazz a 101-99 come-from-behind victory over the Houston Rockets.

Maravich, who suffered a shoulder separation last month, put the game away with a free throw in the closing seconds to rack up a 19-point game total.

The win gives the Jazz a 12-18 season record while the Rockets are 14-14 for the year.

Top scorer was Houston's Kevin Kunnert with 28 points, followed by teammate Rudy Tomjanovich with 23. Top scorer for the Jazz was Louie nelson with 21 points.

He's Not A Junk Man— He's A Recycling Agent

Lexington (AP) — Some might call him a junk man. But Leonard Hofaker refers to himself as a "recycling agent."

He makes his living finding uses for things that other people don't want.

Metals are carefully sorted and shipped by rail to companies that remelt them for other purposes.

But antique cider presses, knife sharpeners and old metal implements that are brought to his salvage yard are saved to sell to occasional collectors.

And usable wheel parts are rescued from the heap for a nearby company that builds farm wagons.

"There's usually a market somewhere for every item I buy," Hofaker said.

Prices may vary considerably from month to month depending on supply and demand. Hofaker said the market price for used iron has gone from $40 a ton to $16 a ton and steel prices have dropped $17 a ton since September.

Despite the risk of fluctuating markets, the Lexington resident said the job generally has been lucrative enough for him to wonder why he didn't quit his construction job sooner.

He said the public is changing its idea of a junk business. "I believe when you talk about a junk man, what people often picture is a dirty old man in whiskers and rags picking up stuff."

He said the people he deals with do not look down his business.

Neatly dressed, and operating a yard that is partially hidden from view and kept clean, Hofaker doesn't fit the stereotype of a junk dealer.

More accurately, he fits the description of a recycling agent.

Soviets Fire 'Powerful' Nuclear Test

Uppsala, Sweden (UPI) — The Soviet Union set off a powerful underground nuclear explosion Thursday at its Senipalatinsk test site in Siberia, the Uppsala Seimological Institute said.

Prof. Markus Baath, director of the institute, said the 6:17 a.m. explosion measured 6.7 on the open-ended Richter scale. A 7-point reading is considered severe.

"It was a powerful blast and almost identical in characteristics and strength to one carried out on Oct. 29, 1975, and one on May 31, 1974," he said.

He said the three blasts, although Similar, "don't resemble any of the other tests" conducted at the Senipalatinsk nuclear site.

Baath, trying to explain the differences, said the Soviet Union may be testing a new nuclear device, may have moved the test site a little or may have set off the three blasts deeper in the ground than before.

"The seismic signals are different, but we don't really know what is causing that," he said.

Citizenship Is Woman's Gift

NEW YORK (AP) — A 111-year-old woman who, at age 95, left her native Albania to escape Communist rule, received her citizenship papers for Christmas.

They were delivered to her home by a member of Congress in the form of a letter from the White House.

Rep. Mario Biaggi spent part of his holiday visiting with Mrika Mrnacaj in her Bronx home.

Biaggi took her the letter notifying her President Ford had signed a special bill to grant Mrs. Mrnacaj immediate citizenship. It waived residency, English language and American history requirements.

Biaggi said he will accompany the woman when she appears before a federal judge to take the oath of citizenship.

Scottsbluff Man Dies While Driving Car

Scottsbluff (UPI) — The State Patrol said Edwin Beatty, 58, of Scottsbluff, died of an apparent heart attack Thursday while driving on Neb. 71, 12.3 miles north of the city.

The car ran off the road and into a ravine, injuring Shirley Beatty, 56. She suffered bruises and abrasions and was reported in shock. Mrs. Beatty was hospitalized in satisfactory condition at Western Nebraska General Hospital.

Sioux County Coroner John Scavandahl said the death was attributed to natural causes, and the state patrol said it would not be counted as a traffic fatality.

TOKYO (AP) — Harold Child Jr., legal attache of the U.S. embassy in Japan, has been awarded the Order of the Sacred Treasury, third class, for contributing to the improvement of criminal investigation in Japan. The 55-year-old Honolulu resident got the award Wednesday.

DON'T GET SQUEEZED BY THE GAS CRUNCH.

It just doesn't make sense to stuff yourself into a small car to save gas.

Not when you can stretch out in a Volvo and save gas.† Inside a Volvo, there's an abundance of space.

Today of course, the front seats of many cars are amply endowed. Take the Cadillac deVille. It has about the same front seat legroom as a Volvo. And Volvo offers rear seat passengers as much legroom as a Lincoln Continental Mark IV.

And this same generosity extends to the trunk. It's big and boxy. Big enough for six two-suiters standing up. Plus a one-suiter lying down.

The choice is yours. First, be stuffed into a small car. Or second, get poor gas mileage. Or third, avoid the first two.

Buy one of our Volvos.

A Sports Roundup

FOOTBALL

Running back Mercury Morris, long dissatisfied with his share of the playing time, says he doesn't expect to spend much of the new year with the Miami Dolphins. Morris began losing playing time as Dolphin coach Don Shula worked Benny Malone back into the offense. Morris said he would meet with Shula after Jan. 1 in a final attempt to reach an agreement on playing time.

Several professional football players invested hundreds of thousands of dollars with Allen R. Glick, a Nevada casino operator under investigation for alleged links with organized crime. The San Diego Evening Tribune included John Hadl of the Green Bay Packers and Walt Sweeney of the Washington Redskins on the list of players.

Chuck Knox, coach of the Los Angeles Rams and Al Davis, managing general partner of the Oakland Raiders, also have had dealings with Glick-linked interests.

Ohio State's Cornelius Greene is the 1975 winner of the Silver Football award presented annually by the Chicago Tribune to the Big Ten Conference's most valuable football player.

Washington State University is expected to name a new head football coach soon and the top two candidates are University of Pittsburgh assistant Jackie Sherrill and UCLA assistant Lynn Stiles.

BASKETBALL

Superstar Bob McAdoo, claiming he's only "human," continued his one-on-one battle with the Buffalo Braves, after being suspended by the team Wednesday. McAdoo was suspended after failing to play in a game against the Boston Celtics. McAdoo said he had back problems, but the team physician said he could see no reason McAdoo didn't play.

Arizona State University's basketball team was beaten by Palmeiras of Sao Paulo, Brazil, 92-84, in the second round of the Spanish Christmas Basketball Tournament in Madrid.

Jayhawks Favored In Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Pittsburgh's Panthers and Kansas' Jayhawks are hoping to give their fans a day-late Christmas present Friday with a victory in the 41st annual Sun Bowl football clash.

The 18th-rated and slightly favored Jayhawks will square off against the 20th-ranked Panthers at 11:10 CST before a sellout crowd of more than 30,000 and a nationwide television audience.

Sunshine with temperatures in the lower 50s is expected for the game.

Pitt Coach Johnny Majors and Kansas' boss, Bud Moore, have been saying since the teams arrived in El Paso Saturday that the Panthers and Jayhawks appear to be as evenly matched as the identical 7-4 records they will carry into the game.

"On paper it looks like the teams are pretty even," said Majors, who believes it will take at least three touchdowns to win.

Moore agreed the teams are about equal and said he thinks the game should be a good one because. "We both have pretty good football teams or we wouldn't be here."

Both teams finished their preparations on Christmas Day with light workouts described by the coaches as "polishing sessions."

The Panthers and the Jayhawks followed similar paths to their Sun Bowl invitations.

Both built successful seasons around potent offensive units and solid defensive squads. And both came up with some of the major upsets this season with Kansas turning back Orange Bowl-bound Oklahoma and Pitt thumping Cotton Bowl-bound Georgia and perennial national power Notre Dame.

It's the offenses that appear to hold the key to the outcome of the first meeting between teams from the two schools.

The two clubs boast two of the nation's premier offensive players in Kansas' quarterback Nolan Cromwell and Pitt tailback Tony Dorsett.

"Cromwell is an outstanding option quarterback," Majors said of the junior signal caller who earned Big Eight offensive player of the year honors while directing the Kansas wishbone attack.

Majors said the Jayhawk quarterback is the key to Kansas' offense and added, "We'll have to try to slow Cromwell."

Moore said his players face a similar task in stopping Pitt.

"Pittsburgh is an excellent overall football team, and of course in Tony Dorsett it may have one of the two or three best running backs in the country," Moore said. "Obviously it will be important for us to slow him down if we're to have a chance at winning."

Cromwell, who became one of only four quarterbacks ever to rush for more than 1,000 yards in a season with 1,124 yards this year, and his Kansas mates keep the ball on the ground most of the time.

When Cromwell doesn't carry the ball he likes to give it to halfback Laverne Smith, who piled up 910 yards, or fullback Norris Banks, who stepped off 648 yards.

Pitt tries to balance its attack with Dorsett, a second team All-American who gained 1,544 yards this season, and fullback Elliott Walker, who gained 780 yards rushing, handling the running chores. The passing is left to quarterbacks Robert Haygood and Matt Cavanaugh, who share signal calling duties. The two combined for 1,115 aerial yards this season.

Cage Rivalries Spark Tourney

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

If you thought you had to get to Pershing Auditorium early to find good seats for the traditional East-Northeast basketball matchups of the past, try this on for size.

There may not be any seats for the next encounter.

Well, there would be a few if the matchup materializes in the holiday tournament at East High Friday and Saturday, but 3,500 is a far cry from what Pershing can handle.

With Millard and Ralston joining Northeast and East in a boys and girls holiday tournament, the possibility of two intra-city rivalries can materialize if both of the Northeast and East teams advance to the finals Saturday.

Friday's action sends the East girls team against Millard's at 9:30 a.m. and the two respective boys teams following at 11:30 a.m.

Fiesta Break

Northeast and Ralston will come back at 5:30 p.m. for the girls game and 7:30 p.m. for the boys, giving the spectators a chance to break for the Fiesta Bowl game.

Should Northeast and East pass their opening tests, East High principal Jim Huge says a shoe horn might be in order for Saturday's 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. title contests.

"We talked about moving the finals to the Nebraska Coliseum if both Northeast and East won in the first round," Huge says. "But we would have had to rent it under a contingency basis and it was just too much trouble."

"If we were guaranteed that both East and Northeast would make the finals, I would have opted for the Coliseum," East athletic director Phil Sprague adds. "We would make it financially if the two Lincoln teams were at the Coliseum for the finals. But probably not if both teams didn't make it.

"We'll just have to take people first come, first served and fill it up," Sprague says. "We hate to do it, but there really isn't any other choice. We found out it's not cheap to run a holiday tournament."

"It would be a little home court advantage for us to play the game at East," Huge says. "But Northeast plays home games here too, so that shouldn't be a factor."

If the finals do include both Lincoln teams, the girls segment of the tournament will get even more exposure since the gym is almost certain to fill around the 5:30 p.m. tip off.

"We would really hate to turn anyone away," Huge says. "But fire regulations just won't permit overfilling the gym."

Other Tourneys

If the gym does indeed fill up, and fans are turned away, there are two other Lincoln area holiday tournaments to enjoy.

Lincoln Pius X will be in action at Waverly while area Class C and D schools are scheduled for the W-Club Tournament at Nebraska Wesleyan. Both tournaments are also Friday, Saturday affairs.

Monday and Tuesday, the same situation might arise with another holiday meet at Lincoln High involving Southeast, Lincoln High, Papillion and Fremont.

Should the Links and the Knights make Tuesday's finals, seats could also be at a premium.

Look-alikes Texas, Colorado Prepared

HOUSTON (UPI) — Coaches Bill Mallory and Darrell Royal, the innovative and traditional, the upstart and old pro of collegiate postseason football, match their similar Colorado and Texas teams Saturday afternoon in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Bowl officials are smiling at the matchup, the best in the game's 17 years. In national rankings Texas is ninth and Colorado 11th.

Kickoff before a national television audience and an expected sellout in the Astrodome is 2:30 p.m. CST.

Each team has had several weeks to prepare after finishing rugged 9-2 seasons.

The Colorado Golden Buffaloes, under second-year head coach Mallory, were 5-2 and third place in the Big Eight. The Texas Longhorns backed into a share of the Southwest Conference crown with a 6-1 record.

Mallory has worked his team harder than Texas this week. His Christmas Eve and Christmas Day practices were not matched by Royal. But several Buffs players developed weary legs from all the practice on artificial turf.

During the regular season, both teams fell victim to Oklahoma, the Buffs by a point on a missed point after touchdown, the Longhorns by a touchdown on a late Sooner score.

Both utilized high scoring offenses led by big fullbacks.

"I expect Earl Campbell (the Texas super soph) to carry the ball 30 times," said Mallory, especially if (Texas quarterback) Marty Akins does not play."

And Texas defenders, much lighter but more agile than Colorado's, can look for 20 or more bruising carries from Buffs fullback Terry Kunz who became the top single season rusher in Colorado history with 882 yards.

Campbell piled up more than 1,000 yards, but his will be tough yardage Saturday against a massive defensive line which will key on him with Akins out.

"I think they will pass more," said Buffs defensive end Troy Archer. "I don't think he's (freshman Ted Constanzo) the runner Akins is. But he can throw better."

Archer said his defensive unit has faced a wishbone offense, the Texas specialty, twice this season.

"You saw what we did to Kansas (24-21 Colorado), but did you know we held the Oklahoma offense to its lowest rushing day in three seasons?" he asked.

Texas can boost that in three games against Colorado, the combined score was 149 to 13. Colorado can come back that the most recent game was 27 years ago.

Also, on their two previous visits to the Houston bowl, Colorado has won impressively, had one of its players selected most valuable and set reams of records.

In beating Miami (Fla.) 31-21 in 1967 at Rice Stadium, Buffs' quarterback Bobby Anderson ran for 108 yards and was voted the top player. Four years later in the Astrodome, Colorado tailback Charlie Davis ripped for 202 yards as the Buffs beat Houston 29-17.

"We've got something to uphold, don't we?" said Mallory.

The fact that Colorado has not been to a bowl since 1972 has the Buffs excited about this one. Texas has been to a post-season game eight straight years.

"What has Darrell lost his last two bowl games?" Mallory asked.

In 15 of the 19 seasons Royal has been at Texas, he has a 7-71 bowl record. His only other appearance at the Houston bowl was in 1966 when the Longhorns beat Ole Miss 19-0.

The Texas' visit to the Astrodome will be a first for Royal.

College Cage Tourneys Set

By The Associated Press

Columbia is in the middle of building up its basketball program while Indiana is tearing everyone else's down.

The apparent mismatch will be featured Friday in the opening of the 24th Holiday Festival Tournament at Madison Square Garden, one of a host of tournaments to be played around the country this weekend.

"The pairings were made by the same people who booked Custer and the Indians," joked Columbia Coach Tom Penders. "I think Bobby Knight's father-in-law made the pairings. I feel like I was on Monty Hall's 'Let's Make A Deal' and I chose the wrong door."

But seriously, Knight's hot-shot Hoosiers do pose a mountainous problem for Columbia, or any other club in the eight-team Holiday Festival field which also includes St. Bonaventure, Manhattan, St. John's, Temple, South Carolina and Villanova.

The Hoosiers, ranked No. 1 in the country, are not only prohibitive favorites to beat Columbia, but are favored to sweep through everyone else.

The Lions, with 11 sophomores on the 12-man roster, will play a stunning Big Ten team that walloped defending national champion UCLA on opening day and has remained firmly entrenched in the No. 1 spot from the start of the season.

"I've thought an awful lot about what we're going to do against them," Penders said. "I've had quite a few suggestions from the alumni that we stall against them, but I wouldn't play it like that. Unless of course I knew we could win that way, but we just don't have the personnel to do that."

Other tournaments getting under way Friday include:

—the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., with Wake Forest vs. St. Joseph's, Pa., and Florida vs. Jacksonville.

—the Pillsbury Classic at Minneapolis, with Penn State vs. Creighton and Butler vs. 19th-ranked Minnesota.

—the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore., with Florida State vs. 13th-ranked Washington and Northwestern vs. Oregon State.

—the Big Eight at Kansas City, with Iowa State vs. Kansas State and Oklahoma State vs. Missouri.

—the Ocean State Classic at Providence, R.I., with Rhode Island vs. Brown and Niagara vs. San Francisco.

—the Motor City Classic at Detroit, with George Washington vs. DePaul and Wyoming vs. Detroit.

—the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu, with St. Peter's vs. Southern California and Yale vs. Hawaii.

—the Holiday Classic at Louisville, with Texas A&M vs. Seattle and Kentucky State vs. 11th-ranked Louisville.

There will also be a holiday doubleheader at Raleigh, N.C., pitting Duke against Auburn and Western Kentucky against ninth-ranked North Carolina State.

Introducing Dodge Aspen. It's priced lower than Pacer. And has more total room than Cadillac Seville.

Aspen got 27 MPG highway. 18 MPG city.
According to official 1976 EPA mileage estimates for an Aspen sedan equipped with a 225 Six and manual transmission. Your actual mileage may differ depending on how and where you drive the condition of your car and its optional equipment.

Aspen is priced lower than Pacer.
Based on a comparison of manufacturers suggested retail prices for base models.

Aspen has more total room than Cadillac Seville.
Aspen may be a small car on the outside but it's a big car on the inside. When you add up the front and rear leg, head-, shoulder- and hiproom, an Aspen sedan has over 15 inches more total room than a Cadillac Seville. And for a car that costs about a third as much as a Seville that's unbelievable.

If you have a head for cars, head for Dodge.

Steelers, Cards Picked In Playoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — For the Pittsburgh Steelers, Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings, home is where the heart is— and where the victory is, too. For the Los Angeles Rams, it just isn't in the Cards.

For the first time since the National Football League went to its current alignment and playoff formula, home fields have been decided on merit, not just by whim. That's probably why, in each game, the home team is the odds-makers' substantial favorite.

In three of four cases, we agree.

The Baltimore Colts have come so far so quickly. It's too bad the "impossible dream" has to end up as just that—impossible. Bert Jones, Lydell Mitchell & Co. won't be able to penetrate Pittsburgh's Steel curtain enough times to overcome Franco Harris, Terry Bradshaw and the Steelers' wealth of receivers.

A Pittsburgh victory on Saturday will set up what has almost become tradition in the NFL, a showdown with the Raiders. Cincinnati quarterback Ken Anderson will have his moments in Oakland on Sunday, but without a running game to complement his aerial game, the Bengals will falter.

In Minnesota on Sunday, the Vikings will force Dallas to go to the shotgun much too often. The result: the Cowboys will get blown off the field.

But on Saturday in Los Angeles, the remains of a less-than-awesome season will catch up with the Rams. Our Upset Special of the Week calls for the St. Louis Cardinals to strike quickly and often.

After a mark of 10-3 in the final week of action that put the regular-season record at 130-52 for a .714 percentage, here's what we look for this weekend on the bumpy road to the Super Bowl:

American Conference

Steelers 24, Colts 14

Some of the matchups, man for man, are gut-busting close. Bert Jones vs. Terry Bradshaw at quarterback. Lydell Mitchell vs. Franco Harris at running back. The Steel Curtain vs. the Looney Tunes.

But the edge has to go to Pittsburgh on experience. These Colts, while all fired up, may not be able to handle the "one loss and you're out" pressure. The Steelers have been through it all.

Raiders 27, Bengals 21

After Ken Anderson's aerials, which made Cincinnati second in conference passing, what has Coach Paul Brown got going for him on offense? Not much. The Bengals were 12th in AFC rushing.

Compare that to Oakland, a balanced third in passing and rushing with Pete Banaszak and Mark Van Eeghan doing the groundwork and Stabler throwing to Cliff Branch, Fred Biletnikoff and others.

National Conference

Cardinals 31, Rams 20

Granted, St. Louis' defense leaves a lot to be desired. The Cards win their games by bombing the opposition into submission while the Rams keep the scores down, their own included.

But Los Angeles is hurting. St. Louis will at least fend off the Rams, if not shut them down. Conversely, Los Angeles will have fits trying to tame the lightning assault led by Jim Hart, Terry Metcalf, Mel Gray, Jim Otis, etc.

Vikings 21, Cowboys 10

Can Dallas, mainly quarterback Roger Staubach, cope with the cold? Maybe. But can he handle Alan Page, Carl Eller, Bobby Bryant and the rest of the Viking defenders?

Probably not. That'll reduce much of the Cowboys' attack to run, run, shotgun pass and punt. Minnesota, with Chuck Foreman running and catching Fran Tarkenton's passes, will grind out the yardage and grind down the Cowboys.

Suns Topple Kings

PHOENIX (AP) — "We gained momentum in that second quarter, cut their lead down, and the momentum carried over," Coach John MacLoud said Thursday after his Phoenix Suns scored a 122-111 National Basketball Association victory over the Kansas City Kings.

"We got our intensity back in the last six minutes of the second quarter and in the second half . . . .We did a good job of jamming things in the middle," MacLeod added.

He was a lot more talkative than King's Coach Phil Johnson, who left the Arena without meeting with reporters and also barred them from the locker room.

Curtis Perry scored a season-high 27 points and Paul Westhal added 25 to pace the Suns to their seventh consecutive Christmas Day victory, raising their season record to 15-11. Kansas City, despite a season-high 39 points from Nate Archibald, now has lost seven in a row and is 10-19.

Larry McNeill scored 10 points and grabbed six rebounds as the Kings, shooting 64 per cent, jumped ahead 33-27 at the end of the first quarter. Archibald had eight points and five assists in the period.

Phoenix, with John Shumate scoring nine points, clawed back in the second quarter and went ahead 56-55. Archibald scored 16 points and with 11 assists helped Scott Wedman to the same number of points—all in the first half. Westphal had 15 points at an Arena-tying five steals in that half.

The Suns tied a team record with 10 steals in the first half.

Perry, with 12 points and six rebounds, helped Phoenix to an 85-82 third quarter lead. Keith Erickson, scoreless in the first half, netted eight points in the third quarter as Phoenix took control of the boards for the first time in the game.

During the first three quarters the Kings were shooting almost 60 per cent from the floor, and they ended the game at 54 per cent. Phoenix shot 56 per cent from the floor.

Wedman followed Archibald in scoring for the Kings with 28 points.

Bullets Tip Hawks, 99-94

Landover, Md. (UPI) — Dave Bing scored 11 points in the final quarter and Elvin Hayes added eight Thursday night to help the Washington Bullets rally to a 99-94 National Basketball Association victory over the Atlanta Hawks at Capital Centre.

The victory elevated the Bullets, now 15-13 for the season, into a tie with Atlanta for the NBA Central Division lead.

Bing, who had 22 points for the game, helped Washington make up a 10-point first-period deficit with 11 points in the first half. His three-point play with 7:06 remaining in the game tied the score 80-80 and his layup with 6:28 remaining gave the Bullets their first lead.

Atlanta's Tom Henderson scored 10 of his game-leading 26 points in the final quarter, including seven of the Hawks' last nine points to keep them in the game.

Henderson hit one of three foul shots with 52 seconds remaining to narrow the Bullet lead to 93-92, but Hayes scored on a layup from Bing and Bing added a pair of free throws in the last 32 seconds to seal the victory.

Hayes led the Bullets with 25 points, Bing added 22 and Phil Chenier 16. Following Henderson's 26 points was Tom Van Arsdale with 23, including ten of 12 field goal attempts.

Soviet Teams Eyeing Series

MONTREAL (AP) — Two Soviet hockey teams preparing for an exhibition series against eight National Hockey League clubs turned down a scheduled sightseeing tour of the picturesque Laurentian mountains Christmas Day to practice for their upcoming games.

Red Army and Wings held a joint three-hour practice at a west-end university arena under the watchful eye of their respective coaches, Konstantin Loktev and Boris Kulagin.

NHL officials had planned the sightseeing trip in order to give the Soviet teams a chance to relax, but the offer was refused.

After warming up their goalies for 15 minutes, the two teams then scrimmaged for the balance of the session.

The practice was closely watched by a handful of spectators who knew about the change in plans, including NHL President Clarence Campbell who dropped by to exchange greetings with Soviet officials.

The Soviets arrived in Montreal from Moscow Wednesday. The exhibition tour begins Sunday night in New York when Army faces the New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden.

The Wings play their first game Monday night in Pittsburgh against the Penguins.

Monroe Lifts Knicks Over Philadelphia

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Monroe put on a dazzling floor display and scored 27 points, including a clutch basket with 1:27 left and two free throws in the final minute, to lead the New York Knicks to 111-103 National Basketball Association victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Thursday night.

It was the Knicks' third victory in a row and their fifth in the last six games.

Philadelphia led 59-57 at the half but the Knicks took charge in the third quarter, outscoring their Atlantic Division rivals 26-18 behind Monroe. New York led 83-77 at the end of the quarter.

The 76ers came back in the final period behind Doug Collins and George McGinnis and closed the gap to two points, but Monroe and Walt Frazier controlled the ball enough to negate the 76ers' rally.

Collins had 30 points, McGinnis 29 and Fred Carter 20 for the 76ers.

Spencer Haywood added 21 points for New York while Frazie and Neal Walk had 16 each.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Pete Maravich, playing in his first game in six weeks, stole the ball twice in the closing seconds Thursday to give the New Orleans Jazz a 101-99 come-from-behind victory over the Houston Rockets.

Maravich, who suffered a shoulder separation last month, put the game away with a free throw in the closing seconds to rack up a 19-point game total.

The win gives the Jazz a 12-18 season record while the Rockets are 14-14 for the year.

Top scorer was Houston's Kevin Kunnert with 28 points, followed by teammate Rudy Tomjanovich with 23. Top scorer for the Jazz was Louie nelson with 21 points.

He's Not A Junk Man— He's A Recycling Agent

Lexington (AP) — Some might call him a junk man. But Leonard Hofaker refers to himself as a "recycling agent."

He makes his living finding uses for things that other people don't want.

Metals are carefully sorted and shipped by rail to companies that remelt them for other purposes.

But antique cider presses, knife sharpeners and old metal implements that are brought to his salvage yard are saved to sell to occasional collectors.

And usable wheel parts are rescued from the heap for a nearby company that builds farm wagons.

"There's usually a market somewhere for every item I buy," Hofaker said.

Prices may vary considerably from month to month depending on supply and demand. Hofaker said the market price for used iron has gone from $40 a ton to $16 a ton and steel prices have dropped $17 a ton since September.

Despite the risk of fluctuating markets, the Lexington resident said the job generally has been lucrative enough for him to wonder why he didn't quit his construction job sooner.

He said the public is changing its idea of a junk business. "I believe when you talk about a junk man, what people often picture is a dirty old man in whiskers and rags picking up stuff."

He said the people he deals with do not look down his business.

Neatly dressed, and operating a yard that is partially hidden from view and kept clean, Hofaker doesn't fit the stereotype of a junk dealer.

More accurately, he fits the description of a recycling agent.

Soviets Fire 'Powerful' Nuclear Test

Uppsala, Sweden (UPI) — The Soviet Union set off a powerful underground nuclear explosion Thursday at its Senipalatinsk test site in Siberia, the Uppsala Seimological Institute said.

Prof. Markus Baath, director of the institute, said the 6:17 a.m. explosion measured 6.7 on the open-ended Richter scale. A 7-point reading is considered severe.

"It was a powerful blast and almost identical in characteristics and strength to one carried out on Oct. 29, 1975, and one on May 31, 1974," he said.

He said the three blasts, although Similar, "don't resemble any of the other tests" conducted at the Senipalatinsk nuclear site.

Baath, trying to explain the differences, said the Soviet Union may be testing a new nuclear device, may have moved the test site a little or may have set off the three blasts deeper in the ground than before.

"The seismic signals are different, but we don't really know what is causing that," he said.

Citizenship Is Woman's Gift

NEW YORK (AP) — A 111-year-old woman who, at age 95, left her native Albania to escape Communist rule, received her citizenship papers for Christmas.

They were delivered to her home by a member of Congress in the form of a letter from the White House.

Rep. Mario Biaggi spent part of his holiday visiting with Mrika Mrnacaj in her Bronx home.

Biaggi took her the letter notifying her President Ford had signed a special bill to grant Mrs. Mrnacaj immediate citizenship. It waived residency, English language and American history requirements.

Biaggi said he will accompany the woman when she appears before a federal judge to take the oath of citizenship.

Scottsbluff Man Dies While Driving Car

Scottsbluff (UPI) — The State Patrol said Edwin Beatty, 58, of Scottsbluff, died of an apparent heart attack Thursday while driving on Neb. 71, 12.3 miles north of the city.

The car ran off the road and into a ravine, injuring Shirley Beatty, 56 She suffered bruises and abrasions and was reported in shock. Mrs. Beatty was hospitalized in satisfactory condition at Western Nebraska General Hospital.

Sioux County Coroner John Scavandahl said the death was attributed to natural causes, and the state patrol said it would not be counted as a traffic fatality.

DON'T GET SQUEEZED BY THE GAS CRUNCH.

It just doesn't make sense to stuff yourself into a small car to save gas.

Not when you can stretch out in a Volvo and save gas. Inside a Volvo, there's an abundance of space.

Today of course, the front seats of many cars are amply endowed. Take the Cadillac deVille. It has about the same front seat legroom as a Volvo. And Volvo offers rear seat passengers as much legroom as a Lincoln Continental Mark IV.

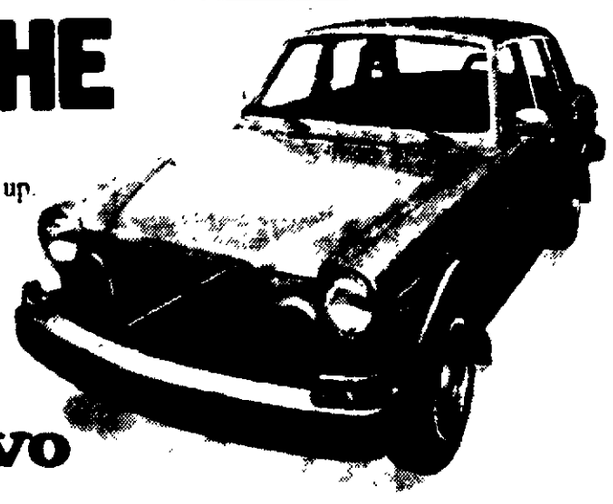

And this same generosity extends to the trunk. It's big and boxy. Big enough for six two-suiters standing up. Plus a one-suiter lying down.

The choice is yours. First, be stuffed into a small car. Or second, get poor gas mileage. Or third, avoid the first two.

Buy one of our Volvos.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Friday, December 26, 1975

Many born under Capricorn can look forward to a productive, satisfying year — especially as contrasted to 1975. More responsibility indicated for natives of Capricorn, especially those born between four and six in the morning. Confidence returns and Capricorn could make a remarkable "comeback" in 1976, with September indicated as an outstanding month.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Holiday letdown should be dealt with, properly interpreted. Keep events and people in perspective. Fatigue will be replaced by energy. Accent on expansion, compliments and special consideration connected with partner, mate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Deal with older individual concerned with time, motion, costs and security. Be forthright. One who is "important" works behind scenes in your behalf. You are not without allies. Be aware of it and state case in positive manner. Message will be clarified.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Finish rather than begin. Take long-range view. Fulfill commitment. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. Accent on friends, romance, creative endeavors, special understanding with children. One who makes "cutting remark" is lonely and wants your attention.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Status quo is shaken — what was planned might be revised. Know it and be familiar with alternatives. Leo, Aquarius individuals are in picture. A "homebody" may suddenly express desire to be on the go, to make changes, to have a "monumental fling."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Family affairs could dominate. Older person, with your best interests at heart, could be tiresome. You need not be nagged by guilty conscience. A bore is a bore is a bore — whether or not he is related to you!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Social calls, activities take command. You have fun, but tend to forgo important resolutions. Gemini and Sagittarius could be in picture. You may be counting, checking, revising budget, figuring costs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar cycle at peak — be optimistic, confident. Exude charm, goodwill. Popularity is on upswing. Your judgment, intuition are on target. Social activity is favored. You have fun and you can relax. Tension takes a holiday!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You could gain access to information deliberately or unwittingly obscured. Be analytical. Perceive reasons for recent happenings. Gemini, Virgo persons could be in picture. You could be involved in "backstage activity."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friend could act in "unusual manner." Key is to be diplomatic, to strive for harmony at home, to express gratitude for "being remembered." Tender lovin care is now best policy. Act accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be basic — means ask for facts, not fantasies. See as it, not merely as you wish situations to be. Pisces, Virgo persons could be in picture. Friend "pulls strings" to give you needed boost. You gain spiritual insight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Holiday brought you closer to "special person." You'll know it. Get priorities in focus. Form resolutions that you intend to keep. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. Emphasis on distance, language, communication.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish task. Take long-range view. Cut through red tape. Get estimate on costs. Get possession in semblance of order. Express gratitude to one who showed unique concern for your welfare.

IF DEC. 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are direct, introspective with most persons, completely outgoing with those close to you. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. You've made domestic adjustment. In 1976, January and October should be your most significant months. You are determined, stubborn, passionate and have tendency to bump your knees. You react well during periods of crisis. You are due for happier times following emotional wound.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you
